Festival off to great start

Cool temperatures did not deter the crowds who were out in full force Monday to enjoy Canada Day celebrations.

The Canada Day/Silver Jubilee parade wound its way through downtown Monday evening with only a few minor glitches, most notably in the pacing department.

But while spectators had to crane their necks to see when the next float was coming, the mood was one of general excitement when it finally did arrive.

Green Thumb Landscaping won the overall prize for their entry; the float also won the best commercial float category.

The latter contingent was also not without its problems, as one of the motorcycles needed a jumpstart to get going after stalling near the corner of Main and St. Patrick streets.

Classic cars were a highlight of the parade, with Nelson Morrison of Bathurst taking top honors in that category; and finally, the top clown award went to Ron Christie, also known as Cou-Cou the Clown, who has won numerous awards in the past, including Top Clown in Canada.

The spectators who had converged on Causeway Park to watch the parade were not quick to leave once the procession came to an end; as soon as darkness fell, $10,600 worth of fireworks were set off behind Coronation Park, with the Causeway again being a favorite vantage point.

But those who stayed soon paid the price, as traffic moved slowly in and around the downtown area while thousands of satisfied customers headed home.

The 1991 Silver Jubilee Festival has only just begun, however.

Among the activities still to come are the Miss Bathurst Pageant, this evening Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Bathurst High School Theatre; and on Friday, the ever-popular hoedown will feature the music of the Good Ol' Boys, from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

At the same time, the Bathurst Curling Club Summer Swing 1991 will feature the Calnans, while Donnie and the Monarchs travel from Saint John, N.B. to the Bathurst Arena for a 50s and 60s extravaganza.

From even farther afield come Canadian rockers Trooper, backed up by Maritime music legend Matt Minglewood. Both acts will perform at Causeway Park next Sunday, with tickets available both in advance and at the park.

Other events are listed, along with dates, times and locations, in the 1991 Silver Jubilee Festival program.

Hornibrook seeks PC nod

Robert Hornibrook, a local entrepreneur and recently-elected vice-president of the Nepisiguit-Chaleur Progressive Conservative Association, announced his intention to seek the PC nomination in a press conference Tuesday.

A Janeville resident who has been a member of the Nepisiguit-Chaleur riding for the past 18 years, Mr. Hornibrook is co-owner of Fleet Realty, president of Robert Hornibrook Enterprises Ltd., and owner of Main and King Convenience.

Mr. Hornibrook is seeking the Legislature seat held by Liberal MLA and Speaker of the House Frank Branch.

He has received the full support of Leo Cormier, past-president of the Nepisiguit-Chaleur PC Association, who himself had recently been considering the possibility of seeking the nomination. The nominating convention is expected to be scheduled sometime in August.

Mr. Cormier cited family commitments as the prime motivator behind his decision to pass on the flag to Mr. Hornibrook.

At Tuesday's press conference, Mr. Cormier said he will support Mr. Hornibrook in order to ensure "a return to democracy in Nepisiguit-Chaleur."

"I am totally disappointed in what I have seen take place in the last 18 years I've been living (here)," Mr. Hornibrook told reporters.

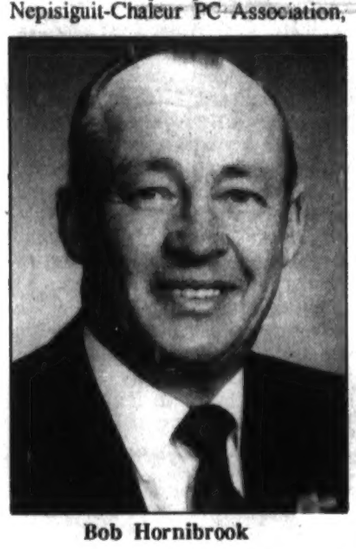
Mr. Branch, who won the Liberal nomination at a convention last May, has represented Nepisiguit-Chaleur in the legislature since 1970.

Mr. Hornibrook feels the province is in need of change, and Nepisiguit-Chaleur in particular is in need of better representation.

"The arrogance has got to go," he said, adding one way to accomplish that is to elect an MLA who will listen and respond to the needs of the riding, including the rural areas.

The "desperate, terrible condition" of rural roads is one priority Mr. Hornibrook hopes to address.

If premier Frank McKenna prefers to wait until the completion of a four-lane Trans-Canada Highway, he "may as well give us horses and wagons," Mr. Hornibrook said, because that will soon be the only way for rural New Brunswickers to travel.



Health care problems and abuse of the welfare system are also priority items, as is reversing what Mr. Hornibrook sees as a trend toward empty promises of job creation.

"There's little to be said in a positive direction in the past four years about the McKenna government in Nepisiguit-Chaleur," he said.

Mr. Hornibrook feels many constituents share his views, and believes "they will see the merits of what I'm saying (despite) my deficiency in both official languages."

He was quick to note, however, that he understands French, and plans to study toward becoming fluently bilingual "as soon as possible."

"My objective is to serve the people, no matter if they are French or English," he said, adding, "I'm not in this race to see how close I can get to Frank Branch; I'm in it to win."

Long weekend quiet

The Canada Day weekend was a quiet one in the city of Bathurst, at least for the Bathurst City Police Department.

"It was pretty good; there was nothing major at all," a police spokesman told The Northern Light this morning Wednesday.

"There was more traffic than last year," he added, referring to the congestion caused by revelers trying to head home after Monday's parade and fireworks display.

Traffic moved slowly through downtown streets and along major arteries, forcing motorists to spend a little more time in their vehicles than they may have planned.

On the whole, though, this holiday weekend was about the same as past years, in terms of incidents arising from Canada Day festivities, the spokesman said.

Miss Bathurst chosen tonight

"Now they're at the stage where they want to just put on the show," organizer Diana Case said in an interview last week.

The show is set for tonight Wednesday, at 7 p.m. in the Bathurst High School theatre. Tickets are $8 in advance and at the door.

The girls will also model furs from Frank's Furs in what Ms. Case called "a unique little number."

Ms. Case was mum on further details, preferring to retain an element of surprise.

In the running for the crown are Miss Stothart Toyota Chantal Guitard, Miss Bayside Chrysler-Dodge Kim Vienneau, Miss Canadian Tire Marie-Claire Boulay, Miss Bathurst Honda Shannon Scott, Miss Frank's Furs Gaetane Hachey, Miss Bowlarama Rhonda Riordan, Miss Northern Light Kimberly Keoughan, and Miss Irving Car Wash Cathy Pitre.

"That tells you how fast things happened," said New Bandon-Salmon Beach Fire Department chief Ernie Scott.

Mr. Scott blamed the combination of the proximity of the buildings, and the high winds for the swift destruction Saturday's fire inflicted on the property of Douglas and Mary Knowles of Clifton.

The family lost its home, a barn, and three sheds, as well as eight head of cattle, a horse, a dog and a pig, Mr. Scott said.

Firefighters were called to the scene at about 1:25 p.m.

The fire started when the Knowles' son, Steven, was doing some welding near the barn, Mr. Scott said.

A nearby bale of hay caught fire, and, despite Steven's best efforts, "within seconds, the barn was on fire."

The New Bandon-Salmon Beach firefighters responded in full force, with two trucks, 30 men and 20,000 gallons of water; while on their way to the scene, Mr. Scott radioed to the St. Anne Volunteer Fire Department, which arrived with two back-up vehicles and eight men.

"I knew we had a big one," he noted.

Three trucks and two water bombers from the Department of Natural Resources and Energy were also called in to deal with spotfires in nearby woods.

The firefighters concentrated their attention on attempting to save the family home, but with wind gusts as strong as 43 kilometres an hour, the fire quickly became too much to handle.

The total estimate of damage had not been compiled as of Tuesday, but Mr. Scott said it is within the six-digit range.

"They did all they could," Mr. Scott said.

A July 13th music night will be held at the Christ Church Hall in Clifton at 7:30 p.m., with an open offering to be used for the purchase of musical instruments to replace those lost in the fire.

The fire destroyed such items as guitars, mandolins and two valuable violins, a spokesman for the effort said.

July 14th will see another open offering at an ecumenical church service at Central United in Clifton at 3 p.m.

A pork barbecue will take place Aug. 14, from about 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., with a location to be announced later. All proceeds will go to the Knowles family.

Monetary donations may also be made through the three downshore churches, and official receipts will be issued, the spokesman said.

Deputy chief chosen soon

With any luck, the Bathurst City Police Department will soon have a new deputy chief.

"I would hope by the end of July," chief Lloyd Armstrong said Tuesday, when asked when a candidate will be chosen.

The position became available in early May, when deputy chief Etienne Noel left on sick leave, and it was later learned he would not be returning to the force.

Chief Armstrong said several applications have been received to fill the position, and the competition is now closed.

From the applications received, a shortlist will be made, followed by the interview process in the coming weeks.

Tunisians' warmth a lasting memory for Robertville girl

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

For Linda Hachey of Robertville, a recent trip to Tunisia revealed a country rife with social ills, but rich in charm and culture.

The 21-year old Université de Moncton student travelled to the North African nation in January for a five-month stay under an agreement between the university's school of Social Studies and the Tunisian social studies institute.

The working holiday was part of her fourth-year studies, and it all began simply because she showed an interest in the program.

"I had been talking about it for two years; it wasn't a last minute thing," she said in a recent interview with The Northern Light.

"I've always been interested in other cultures, and all my friends at university are African or Arab; so I wanted to go over there and see what it was like."

Linda, the daughter of Leona and Henri Hachey of Robertville, was one of four U de M students who applied for the Tunisian program, which includes an annual visit to Moncton from Tunisian students studying toward their Master's degree in Social Studies.

She left in the beginning of January, and when she arrived at the airport in the capital city of Tunis, she and her colleagues were warmly welcomed, providing Linda with a first impression of the Tunisian people that would last until her departure in May.

"The warmth of the people is the first thing you notice in an Arabic country," she said, adding a typical meeting of two Arabs of either sex involves a tender display of hugging, handshaking and kisses on the cheek.

"I was kind of surprised by it."

A one-month observation program marked the beginning of Linda's adventure, and it offered her a chance to get a feel for the social problems she would be studying during her stay.

POVERTY

Stationed for the remainder of her stay in one of the most poverty-stricken areas of Tunisia, a country with a population of some 22 million, she discovered "a multitude of problems," affecting the handicapped, the elderly, the unemployed and the uneducated.

Linda Hachey

Part of her job was to research student problems at the Grades 7 to 9 level, collecting data through the distribution of questionaires.

Due to a lack of time and the general pace of the Tunisian administrative process, Linda did not get an opportunity to conduct interviews and complete her research, but her work will nonetheless make a difference.

"The results (of the questionaires) will help facilitate follow-ups," she said, and could lead to the prevention of juvenile delinquency cases.

Apart from her work, one of the more prevalent challenges Linda faced in Tunisia was the language barrier.

"We were dependent on our (translator)," she said, adding some Tunisians spoke French outside the group's work area, but where education was scarce, so was the country's second language.

"The war made it tough, being that we were in an Arabic country," she said.

"They're a very warm people, and they have a knack for forming friendly ties; but when the war started, they were scared and they were frustrated."

Linda quickly discovered the Tunisians made no distinction between Americans and Canadians. She was suddenly the enemy.

"There was a lot of verbal abuse, because I'm white; I had to stay in the house."

As it turned out, most Tunisians also remained indoors for the duration of the war, watching the developments on television.

Then something strange happened. The war ended, and suddenly, the warmth of the Tunisians shone through once again.

"The day after the war ended, everything changed; we were no longer enemies," Linda noted, adding, "It took me a while to regain the confidence I had in the them, but I should have known better."

On a more upbeat note, Linda's stay in Tunisian coincided with the country's 30-day festival that is roughly the equivalent of Christmas in the West.

RELAXED PACE

A relaxed pace partly characterizes the Tunisian social structure, where "they take the time to have a cup of coffee."

To the Tunisians, the most important element of life is family, which gave Linda a greater appreciation of her own family back home.

"When I got home five months later, I hugged my dad and kissed my mom; I was looking around for someone to hug."

Linda's plans now are to study toward her Masters degree in Social Studies at U de M; however, the Tunisian way of life having rubbed off on her, she fully intends to return to the country, not to work but to visit the many friends she made.

She also hopes others her age who are given the opportunity to partake in such an experience will not miss out on it.

"It's really worthwhile," she said.

For all its cultural, social and political differences, Linda summed up the country of Tunisia in one simple sentence that takes at least part of the mystique out of the Arab world: "Flowers grow there in the spring, just like they do here."

Not surprised, but union wants specifics

A restructuring plan that will see about 100 employees laid off from the Belledune smelter comes as no surprise to the union.

"In this day and age, you expect anything at anytime, I guess," said a spokesman for Local 7085 of the United Steelworkers of America, which represents unionized workers at Brunswick Mining and Smelting's lead smelter.

Smelting vice-president Richard Faucher announced last week that the smelter would undergo a workforce reduction that would affect approximately 100 employees.

This restructuring is to be done "in an effort to cut costs and meet the competition in a period of depressed metal prices," Mr. Faucher said in a release.

Lead prices on the global market have dropped by 13 cents to 25 cents a pound since last year. A recent 10-month strike at the company's mine and smelter further damaged Brunswick's ability to compete.

Local 7085 president Walter Gauthier was unavailable for comment Tuesday, but a union spokesman contacted by The Northern Light said a restructuring of some sort had been expected.

However, he indicated some concern exists about the number of employees to be affected.

While the company is "throwing around" a figure of 100 affected employees, it is not known how many of those represent unionized workers and how many are staff personnel.

"We don't have the final figures," the spokesman said.

Mr. Faucher has been quoted as saying unions were advised of the upcoming layoffs long before the strike ended.

A majority of the employees who will be laid off will be eligible to receive early retirement programs, Mr. Faucher said in the release.

The company is offering a minimum of two weeks salary for each year of employment, and will be offered assistance through a special outplacement support program, he said.

Once the plan is carried out, about 400 positions will remain, down from about 600 a few years ago.

ESN grads told to plan their future carefully

"Parents, it is thanks to your support and encouragement that we have achieved our goal. It is our duty to thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

That was the message from valedictorian Lisa R. Doucet, daughter of Ronald and Delcia Doucet of Beresford, at the June 28 graduation ceremonies held in the Petit Rocher Arena.

"You are an important part of our lives, and it is amongst you that we want to receive the key to the future and share this moment," she told the teachers and parents among the crowd of some 2,000 participants.

Lise R. Doucet

"Parents, it is thanks to your support and encouragement that we have achieved our goal," she said.

"It is our duty to thank you from the bottom of our hearts."

As for the teachers, Lisa referred to them as having been like parents to the students.

"It is for that reason that we will do our best to follow the right path: the path of peace, happiness and success."

Success, she noted, lies in an uncertain future; but as the 1991 graduation theme implies, it is a time to watch Our Dreams Become Reality.

"The past cannot be changed; as for the present, we just have to live it by the moment," she said, adding, "We have a chance to plan our future."

"For the past 13 years, having been your only francophone and Acadian MLA in the Chaleur region, I have dreamed of being invited to address a graduating class," he said.

"Today, as I speak to you, I realize that dream has become reality."

However, he reminded the graduates they cannot live by dreams alone, even though reality cannot always be lived to one's tastes and desires.

"What's important in life is to achieve goals, to set a course, to follow an ideal," he said.

"It's to grow little by little, and to wake up one day to realize that our dreams have become reality."

"What I wish for you today is that your most cherished dreams be realized in the course of your lives; but you have to work hard to obtain results."

Plenty of incentive to further studies

Winners of Richelieu bursaries were Eric Gagnon, $2,000; Marc G. Frenette, Julie Kennah, Kevin Roy, Julie G. Godin, Michel A. Boudreau, Sasha Girard, Michelle Hache, Danie Theriault, Fanie Frenette and Stephanie Butt, all $1,000; and Renée Gagnon, Stephane R. Doucet, Anik Godin, Annie Doiron, Nadine Ferron and Chantal Desjardins, $500.

Receiving the $100 L'Acadie Nouvelle bursary was Lisa Hachey; Milene Lagace received the $1,000 class of 1981 bursary; Denis St-Pierre, $500 Canadian Tire bursary; Marc G. Frenette, $200 APEN bursary; Chantal Sirois, $500 from McDonald's Family Restaurant; Sophie Gauthier, $250 from Association Immobiliere du Nord; and Stephanie Butt, $250 from the Chaleur Regional Development Commission.

A total of $18,300 was awarded from the Centre Universitaire de Moncton. The recipients were:

Anne Doiron, who received the Governors' bursary of $3,000 every year for four years; Michel Boudreau and Eric Landry, $1,200 each under the K.C. Irving and CUM bursary; and Sasha Girard, Milene Lagace and Kevin Roy, each $800 CUM bursary winners.

The $500 Centre Universitaire Saint-Louis Maillet bursary went to Chantal Desjardins; while Centre Universitaire de Shippagan bursaries went to Karine Landry ($600 Friends of C.U.S. bursary) and Carolle Robichaud, ($500 Clement Cormier bursary).

Religieuses Notre Dame du Sacre Coeur awarded $400 bursaries to Nathalie Renée Daigle, Luc Arseneault and Louise Theriault; Mouvemen Cooperatif Acadien gave $500 each to Denis Degrace, Lisa Doucet, Julie Degrace and Manon Robichaud; and MENB second language and native language bursaries went to Renée Gagnon, Julie Godin, Lisa Hachey and Eric Landry, each receiving $1,000.

The $250 NB Power bursary was awarded to Eric Gagnon; the Terry Fox Humanitarian Prize, valued at $4,000 per year for four years, was awarded to Audric Beauchesne.

St. Francis Xavier University awarded $1,750 to Kimberly Dawn Mersereau; the Kinsmen gave $500 to Michel Poirier, Annie Plourde, Michel E. Thibeault and Milene Lagace; the Kinettes gave $250 each to Lise Albert and Janie Guignard.

University of Ottawa bursaries were given to Marc G. Frenette ($1,500), Michele O'Connell ($1,000), Eric Gagnon ($1,000) and Stephanie Butt ($1,500).

Northern Conference High School Hockey Teams awarded $500 to Denis R. Boudreau; and Eric Gagnon received $300 from the Physics Association.

Teacher rewarded for dedication to profession

A teacher from School District 42 in Bathurst received the 1990-91 Award of Distinction from the French Second Language Teacher Education Centre at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton.

Janet Poitras, a teacher of French as a second language, was presented with the award in recognition of her outstanding contribution to the profession. She was recognized and given a pewter tray at the New Brunswick Teachers' Association meetings, held in Moncton May 1 to 4. The award will also provide Mrs. Poitras with the opportunity to attend a national conference on second language study.

A teacher of French for the past 13 years, Mrs. Poitras has an impressive background in language learning. After receiving her BA and B.Ed. from St. Thomas University in Fredericton, she studied Spanish at the Universidad de Menedez in Relayo, Spain, and French at the University of Saskatchewan.

One reason Mrs. Poitras' teaching is so effective is that she provides her students with a variety of opportunities to improve their study of French. She has successfully implemented communicative teaching strategies in and out of the classroom through public speaking events and excursions conducted in French.

Mrs. Poitras has also demonstrated her involvement with her profession through participation in many professional associations. A member of the New Brunswick Curriculum Advisory Committee for Junior High School Core French since 1980, she has served on the New Brunswick Teachers' Association French Second Language Council since 1979 and has been a member of the Immersion Council since 1987. She also served on the District 42 Research Committee, a committee which examined the various immersion programs and made recommendations to the school board.

One of Mrs. Poitras' most important contributions to her profession was her recent participation in the production of a video which focuses on teaching French at the junior high school level. The video, which stresses the communicative approach, shows Mrs. Poitras demonstrating the technique to her class.

The accomplishments of this outstanding educator extend beyond the classroom into her community. Mrs. Poitras has been involved in the production of re-enactments for New Brunswick Crime Stoppers as an actress and a narrator. One of the videos in which she appeared won the International Crime Stoppers of the Week Award. In her own school she has organized nine variety shows and directed 15 plays, eight of which received honorable mentions in the New Brunswick Drama Festival.

Mrs. Poitras has also served as president and vice-president of the South Bathurst Home and School Association and as secretary of the Bathurst Aquatic Centre Commission. The City of Bathurst recently honored her contributions by giving her the Award of Recognition as Volunteer of the Year.

MISS BAY OF CHALEUR CROWNED

The Festival des Rameurs kicked off its week of festivities in Petit Rocher June 26 by hosting the 1991 Miss Bay of Chaleur Pageant, held at the Petit-Rocher Arena. Taking the title this year was 17 year-old Christine Doucet (centre), the daughter of Robert and Alma Doucet of Petit-Rocher. Julie Doucet (right) 16 year-old daughter of Eric and Fernande Doucet of Petit-Rocher, was crowned First Princess, while Anik Plourde (left), 16 year-old daughter of Daniel and Pauline Plourde of Petit-Rocher, was chosen both Second Princess and Miss Friendship.

Chance to beat other cities and help environment at same time

Do you own a mug? Do you bring it to work? If yes, great. If not, now is a good time to do so.

July 10 is the date for the first ever Mug Up for the Environment challenge, a fine time to give up the environmentally-damaging habit of using foam cups in the workplace.

Initiated by the Energy and Environmental Educators of New Brunswick, a volunteer network of New Brunswikers dedicated to educating the public about energy and the environment, the challenge will pit the city of Bathurst against Moncton, Fredericton and Saint John.

"It's really to encourage waste reduction," said Julie Dugas, Bathurst representative with EEENB and coordinator of the local effort. According to her, more than half of all waste produced in the province emanates from the workplace.

Ms. Dugas began passing out tally sheets to local businesses last week in anticipation of the big day, and instructing employees on how to go about tallying up their score. Basically, for each time you use a mug rather than a foam cup, you put one notch on the tally sheet. The winning city will be determined by its per capita participation rate. The winning city will be announced within a few days afterwards.

If your office has not been contacted, and is interested in taking part, simply tally the results on a piece of paper and contact Julie Dugas at 547-2145, extension 2240, to give results.

Majority federal government may be impossible in 1993

Political Scene

By STEWART MacLEOD
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

It is not just the thought of a Quebec referendum next year on independence that has Ottawa in a constitutional frenzy; there is also the frightening thought of a federal election.

If our problems are not solved before the next vote--it must come by 1993--there could be an unholy mess in the new Parliament. The place could be rendered ineffective.

Should the country's constitutional squabbling continue into the next campaign, the Bloc Quebecois would almost certainly be the most powerful factor in that province. The heady talk one hears from BQ leader Lucien Bouchard about the party winning 60 of the province's 75 seats might not be an exaggeration.

And, if this happened, it's not difficult to imagine a paralyzed Parliament. With the Reform party peeling off many Tory seats in the West--and possibly in Ontario--a majority government would be a virtual impossibility. The Bloc could effectively hijack Parliament.

The party, bereft of policies, exists for the sole purpose of getting Quebec out of Confederation. And proving that federalism--including Parliament--doesn't work would be a major step in this direction.

The Bloc would have absolutely nothing to lose and everything to gain by frustrating the Commons.

NO PLATFORM

Without an acceptable constitutional agreement in the meantime, the next federal election could become another referendum on sovereignty in Quebec, with Bloc candidates representing the "yes" side. The party says it will field candidates in all ridings.

Although the Bloc's popularity has dipped slightly in the last month, it still remains ahead of all other parties in the province.

Its strength will go hand in hand with sovereignty. Without any other policy or platform, there is no reason for the party to trip up, or lose its appeal, over any other issue.

"We don't intend to take power, so we don't need a platform," says Jean Lapierre, a former Liberal who now represents the Bloc, along with another former Liberal, five former Tories, and one MP who was elected under the Bloc's banner last year.

What party candidates will be doing in the next election--assuming there is no constitional deal before then--is campaigning to put themselves out of work. The moment independence is achieved, they say, they'll pull out of Ottawa.

But until that moment, they could create havoc in Parliament. Unlike established parties, there is no form of discipline within the Bloc and its members are free to go off on any tangent that comes to mind.

"I don't think we could agree on many things except the need for a new political contract," Lapierre has said.

This is not apt to change.

ACCORD WOULD KILL

What would almost certainly kill the Bloc--at least in its present form--is a new constitutional accord with Quebec.

"We're not going to defend Quebeckers against their own will," Lapierre told a Montreal reporter.

And while such an agreement is far from certain, attempts to reach it won't fail for lack of effort. It's not just the committee and commission reports that are blitzing us almost daily, the phone lines between Ottawa and provincial capitals are sizzling with activity.

Quebec premier Robert Bourassa, who said he would not take part in further federal-provincial constitutional talks following the demise of Meech, recently said he is in frequent contact with his fellow premiers. And he's in even closer touch with his friend, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

The premier says he is encouraged by some of the ideas coming from English Canada. He has embraced the constitutional amending formula recently proposed by the Beaudoin-Edwards parliament committee. And he must like all the proposals we're hearing about a more decentralized federation.

"Things are going to be settled one way or another before the next election," says the official in Mulroney's office.

And there would be quite an irony if, even indirectly, Lucien Bouchard became some kind of catalyst for a new constitutional accord. He quit the Mulroney cabinet over the Meech affair and, since then, he and the prime minister have not spoken to each other.

Wants Chretien's help to save post office

June 13

Dear Editor,

Yesterday I was listening to the television debate regarding the Al-Mashat affair. You stated in the House of Commons that a minister should be responsible for what is going on in his department, and that he should take full blame if any error is committed.

You also stated that if you or your bureaucrats make any such errors, that you would take full blame for such mistakes and that you would not try in any way to place the blame on anyone else. This I believe Mr. Chrétien, as I'm sure you are a very responsible man.

I was also reading an article in "Le Lundi" (I believe) on your family life, the way you work hand-in-hand with your wife, and how she supported you in your political life and in the decisions you have to take. As I was reading this article I thought how lucky you were to have such a wife, but I also thought that it is not only luck. It is the way you treat people. That is why they believe in you and put their trust in you.

Also, I was very proud when you decided to come to New Brunswick to be elected in the Beauséjour riding. I was sure, since you are such a considerate man, you would not forget the county that elected you.

Now, when I was at the convention of the Federation of Labor in Edmundston, I read in our Francophone newspaper L'Acadie Nouvelle, dated June 4, that you said in the House of Commons that if you had been informed by the corporation about the closure of the Scoudouc post office in your New Brunswick riding that it would still be open and the employees would still be working, and also that you hoped that the corporation would change its mind.

Mr. Chrétien, I have full confidence in you and I am sure that you can save the Scoudouc post office. There is absolutely no reason to close that office. I hate to think what would happen to my country if you get elected to govern--and to get Canada out of the crisis we are in today under the present government--if you can't even save a little post office like Scoudouc in your own riding.

I, as well as all the voters in this area that have put their trust in you, are sure that you will stop this office from closing, and by this show us that you really care.

Three years ago, Canada Post wanted to close the Robichaud post office. With the support of Fernand Robichaud, the office is still open.

Two years ago, the Scoudouc Post office and the community were going through the same crisis they are facing today. Canada Post wanted to close the office, but again, with Fernand Robichaud's support, the post office stayed open along with the same staff.

Today, Canada Post again wants to close the Scoudouc office following the resignation of the postmaster. I have all the confidence that you will have this office staffed with another postmaster and that the community will continue to have the same service they have always enjoyed. If Fernand Robichaud could stop those two closures, you can and will do the same.

Mr. Chrétien, may I suggest to you that during your campaign for the position of Prime Minister of Canada, that you put a stop to the closure of rural post offices. This matter touches every canadian across the country. Nobody wants the privatization of rural postal services, and I am sure that if this would be one of your priorities you would gain a lot of confidence from the voters from one end of the country to another.

I would very much appreciate having a positive answer to this letter.

An unprecedented turnout for the Canada Day/Silver Jubilee Festival parade and fireworks leads one to believe last year's festival was by no means a fluke.

The 1990 version of our summer festival was said by many to be one of the finest. But with thousands of people turning out for the initial events Monday, it gives rise to hope of even bigger and better things for both the rest of the week and all future summer festivals in Bathurst.

We may have finally shaken the apathetic attitude which has hung over this city for so many years. This is beneficial in many ways, but none moreso than in attracting tourists to our fair home town. One travelling through the city Monday evening would have had no other choice but to stop, but that's the main point of the trade; give them something to stop for.

Congratulate yourselves for kicking off our Silver Jubilee Festival in a fine way; and try to ensure you end it on as high a note at the end of the week.

Enjoy!

White's Wharf preferred

June 25

Dear Editor,

Although I think that Keith Loupelle, a local elected councillor, a servant of the public, a paid (albeit not much) city councillor, was not aiming specifically at anyone, his statement which goes, "Those who don't know diddly squat about what is going on should not be rallying against plans for the centre", is dangerous.

I was sure that as an elected official one was not given ultimate power over the people, that indeed this little city is still democratic and citizens are not supposed to be put down or be in fear of our city officials or be insulted by them.

We still have a right to our own ideas, to free press and freedom of speech, and I think that a little more work and thought should go into the option of Billy White's Wharf if for no other reason than its beautiful location.

After all, consultants are not gods. I may be one who knows "diddly squat about what is going on", but I have rarely been accused of same.

A list of those persons who know "diddly squat" in councillor Loupelle's idea would be helpful so that those of us who qualify would keep quiet.

Stopping human rights abuses

July 2

Dear Editor,

On Monday, the Bathurst Amnesty International group participated in the Canada Day parade. We discovered that many people in our area do not know what Amnesty International is.

To those who are wondering, Amnesty International is an independent, international organization which works to stop human rights abuses around the world. We focus on trying to prevent torture, executions, and imprisonment of people without charge or trial.

Volunteers write letters to governments committing human rights abuses against their citizens and ask them to stop. It's simple, but it works. Governments don't like to think that the world knows they are torturing or killing their own citizens.

Anyone who would like more information about Amnesty International is invited to telephone Ruth Cluley at 548-5162 or Guy Dagenais at 548-2319.

The provincial charter applied for in connection with the proposal to construct a new hotel in Bathurst has been received by the promoters, and the scheme to provide the town with a modern establishment for the care of the travelling public is about to be launched in earnest.

The charter has been granted in the name of the Chaleur Hotel Limited to the following local gentlemen as incorporators: Angus McLean, W.J. Kent, James P. Whelan, J. Bennet Hachey, George Gilbert, Simon Holdengraber, B.H. Storer and others. A definite announcement with more details about construction will be made within a few days.

Fire which broke out shortly after noon on Sunday for a time threatened all the property in that thickly settled section of the district near the railway crossing on King Street and had prompt assistance not been rendered by the town fire department there is no doubt that a serious conflagration would have resulted. As it was, the home of Geo. Thibodeau, where the blaze originated, was burned to the ground with a large part of its contents and the adjoining house of Pat. Lavigne was also destroyed.

A stiff Westerly breeze was blowing at the time and as the district has no water facilities nothing could be done to stay the progress of the fast spreading flames. An appeal to the town brought the Bathurst fire department to the scene promptly and a line of hose was run from the nearest hydrant, which was 600 feet away, and soon a copious stream of water was playing on the several other buildings which had caught fire as well as on the houses already blazing and the outbreak was quickly controlled.

Nothing short of remarkable was the fact that Sonny Scott, 14 month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Scott of East Bathurst, was uninjured after he had fallen from a second-story window on Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock.

The child dropped from a window at his parents home, a distance of 22 feet. His mother rushed to the scene fearing the accident had been fatal and the little boy was taken to the Dunn Hospital. X-Rays revealed absolutely no injury and although the youngster could not walk for a short time, he is running about again and is as active as ever.

A group of teenagers have organized themselves into a committee which plans to sponsor TNT (Teen Nite Tonight) dances at the Donald Eddy Memorial Hall during the summer holiday season. The inaugural function is scheduled for June 22 at 9:30 p.m.

Full authority has been vested in them by the hall management to use the gym and facilities for all of these dances. In return part of the funds will be turned over to the treasury of the hall. Dances will be held in the gym with tables and lunch being served to give a club effect. These Teen Nights, as the name suggests, are primarily intended for teenagers, but are also open to anyone under 70 who desires to join the younger set.

By comparison an ordinary lobster is dwarfed by the gigantic 11 and a half pound granddaddy of them all caught by Ira Jagoe at Stonehaven Saturday. The lobster measured 32 inches from tip of claw to end of tail and was the largest ever brought into Stonehaven Breakwater. It was caught on the outside of the trap, to large to get through the head.

Family leases Gowan Brae property for box of oysters

Silver Points

By SONIA-SIMARD CORMIER
News from 25 years ago.

July 7,1966

Big, biggest, bigger were the order of the day in 1966 as Consolidated Paper Corporation Limited and Bathurst Paper Limited decided to investigate the possibility of a merger. The move, which we now know took place, was said to be in keeping with a trend in the pulp and paper industry towards fewer and larger companies.

On the sports scene, July 1966 saw the Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club hosting the New Brunswick Provincial Ladies' Open Golf Tournament with over 100 participants. President of the local club at that time was Mrs. H.C. Crutchfield with Mrs. J. Leo Hachey and Mrs. R.J. Keswick, first and second vice-president respectively.

An eight-page supplement which appeared in The Northern Light contained many interesting facts about the local golfing scene. For instance, it was in August of 1958 that the Bathurst Golf Club Association moved its scene of activity from the nine-hole course located on what was known at the time as Red Hill (in the same vicinity where the Bathurst Sports Chalet now stands). The BGCA was incorporated in 1932 and became the parent body of the Gowan Brae Association. Club president at the time of the move, in 1958, was well-known area businessman Wilmot Hatheway.

The land for the new 18-hole golf course had been leased to the club by the Leach family with one stipulation, that the club be known as the Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club. Rental fee for the land was set at a box of oysters to be sent each year to Mr. Searle Leach in Winnipeg, Man.

Not a bad deal, wouldn't you say?

But it wasn't the only deal to be had in Bathurst 25 years ago, as the Coin-Op Car Wash opened it's doors introducing citizens to the latest in car cleaning for just 25 cents. Located at the corner of MacDonald Street and Evangeline Drive, the business is still operating today.

Botanical forest would have a positive impact on region

By JIM COUTURE
Northern Light Staff

The time is ripe for everyone concerned to act upon the idea of a Chaleur Botanical Forest originated by local businessman René Pratt.

The realization of Mr. Pratt's vision is now in the hands of the people of the Chaleur region, and it's up to them to ensure the project gets over its next hurdle.

René Pratt

"No single individual can meet this challenge by acting alone," he said during a recent interview.

The first seed of thought which came to Mr. Pratt regarding the forest, which would regroup all or most of Canada's native trees together on a parcel of land, occurred to him 20 years ago as his land was expropriated to make way for the Trans Canada Highway. When moving his cottage from the expropriated land he had to bulldoze an extensive section of the forest on which he replanted many varieties of trees, all of which grew.

"So the idea that trees not native to this area would not grow is untrue," he explained.

Since then, about three years ago to be exact, he has presented his idea to Bathurst city council, an idea in the preliminary planning stage at that time. With support in principle thereafter from all municipal councils in the region, and letters of support from most, he is now ready to begin the most critical stage in ensuring the birth of the forest: setting up a committee to get the project moving.

The project, in itself, would consist of as many trees as possible from the eight forest regions that exist in Canada--Boreal, Coastal, Subalpine, Mountain, Columbia, Deciduous, Great Lakes, and Acadian--which would all be located on a parcel of land yet to be decided upon. The trees would then be divided into mini-parcels, where many species of birch, pines, elms, maples, etc, would be grouped together.

SELLING POINT

Mr. Pratt sees the project as a definite selling point for the entire region, so as long as the forest is located within it the benefits should flow throughout.

Among the benefits he foresees are in the field of education, where the teaching and learning process would be greatly enhanced by giving both teachers and students the opportunity to visit the natural habitat of the various species of trees.

The project would also be a welcomed tourist attraction, helping to eliminate what Mr. Pratt sees as a "hello and goodbye" mentality presently experienced in the region.

And the quality of life would also be enhanced by it.

"Away from the jet set lane, it would be a haven of peace and tranquility," he stated.

Recognizing the immense monetary value of the forestry industry in our region, the site could also become a scientific laboratory for the study of the ill effect of acid rain on our forests, and, through federal and provincial job creation projects, it could also be a source of employment for many, including summer employment for students.

MANY PROJECTS

According to Mr. Pratt, there are many other smaller projects which could co-exist with this one, including maple sugar stations, sleigh rides, cross country ski trails, and museums, just to name a few.

But what is needed first of all is a non-profit organization which would manage this project, and now is the time for its formation.

"It has to be a community-oriented project," he said, adding he would like to see everyone interested in its birth--environmentalists, educators, businessmen, various levels of government, tourism officials, labor groups, sporting enthusiasts, et al--begin working toward the common goal as soon as possible.

"So far I've received a positive response from everybody I've spoken to."

Mr. Pratt recently presented his idea to the Tourism and Environmental branches of the Nepisiguit Economic Conference, and in October of this year plans on making another presentation at a similar conference, which will also have the ear of municipal representatives.

THEY AGREE

Petit Rocher Mayor Gerald Mallais, co-chairman of the NEC, agrees with Mr. Pratt that the project would be a viable one for the region.

"As far as long-term and original projects go, I think its great personally," he said.

"We think it's a hell of a good idea. As far as the concept is concerned, the Bathurst Chamber of Commerce supports it," he said.

STUDY FURTHER

Mr. Pratt would like to have a committee in place in the very near future to begin work on the structure of the organization, and to prepare a short- and long-term plan, which would include funding possibilities for a feasibility study.

Mr. Pratt said the concept of a botanical forest is in line with Canada's Green Plan, the federal government's recently release study on the Canadian environment and how to go about preserving it.

He said there is $350 million available under the Sustaining Renewable Resources section of the study, and tapping into it could be the first item of business for the committee. The section states that the government, through the forestry sector, wants to encourage the development of a network of living forests such as the one conceived by Mr. Pratt.

A letter from federal Forestry Minister Frank Oberle, in Mr. Pratt's possession, demonstrates he is strongly in favor of the project.

"This project is unique; it does not exist like this anywhere in the world," Mr. Pratt said, adding the proposed committee would definitely need the government's assistance in getting the project off the ground.

"At the beginning it would be a very modest forest, but as it gets long no one will be able to catch us. Even if you have no money 10 years down the road, you won't be able to stop the trees from growing," he said, adding that long after our departure from this planet, our children and grandchildren will carry on what we have started and benefit from it endlessly.

Anyone interested in contributing to this project in any way, shape or form are asked to contact Mr. Pratt.

"The community will have to support it, or it will die."

Ross Aube

HE IS ON COUNCIL!

Contrary to what an ad in last week's progress supplement implied, Ross Aube is on city council.

A full page ad we ran depicting members of council omitted Mr. Aube's photograph. To make matters worse, this was the second year his picture was left out. In other words, we goofed and in a big way.

Yes, Ross Aube is a member of city council. In fact, he is a very active councillor, who is outspoken on a number of issues.

Our apologies to Mr. Aube for our error, and for the ribbing it has likely prompted, from his friends and constituents.

Hometown postcards prove viable

Tourists now have a new way to take home a piece of the Chaleur region.

Local photographer Jean-Paul Boudreau will see to that with his new collection of postcards, photographed throughout the Bathurst region.

The mighty Bay Chaleur, Pabineau Falls, the various sights of Petit Rocher and Beresford, all have been commemorated in postcard format.

"I tried to give it a regional flavor," said the Beresford resident, who has been taking photographs for the past 10 years.

He decided to use his talents to serve the tourist trade after having looked around at what the local postcard market had to offer.

Having found that the newest available postcard was "taken somewhere in the nineteen-sixties," Mr. Boudreau made up his mind to take matters into his own hand.

He set out, camera in hand, photographed the region, and produced 6,000 postcards, a series he calls Painting With Lights.

He then went to see 12 potential customers, who were glad to show support. Packages of 500 postcards were dropped off at various locations so that now "they are everywhere."

Mr. Boudreau noted if one location runs out of any one design, another location will usually replace them if the same design is overstocked there.

"We try to move them back and forth," Mr. Boudreau noted, adding, "Overall, the response (to the postcards) has been really good."

Mr. Boudreau's interest in photography started more or less as a hobby. Now, he said, it's a passion.

His main focus is on nature scenes and wild flowers, and he has earned several awards for his efforts.

Now that he has taken his talents to the streets, so to speak, he is already looking to expand.

"Next year, I want to add to the collection (by featuring) the whole Northeast region," he said.

"This is the scope I'm looking at."

He already has a number of locations in mind along the Acadian Peninsula, and a few spots off the beaten track.

He's also planning an exhibition of his work for sometime next year, as well as a special innovation he hopes to implement that he is sure will be "a big bit."

Of course, he doesn't want to let the cat out of the bag right away, but he promised the project should prove well worth the effort.

100 Huntley Street tele-evangelist preaching faith

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

"I believe God himself pulled the caps off (and) exposed the hypocricy. God was saying, 'I will have a pure and clean and honest church at my return.'"

Innumerable social ills exist in this day and age, affecting all Canadians; but there also exists one timeless solution.

"When we have faith, we have confidence," said David Mainse, host of the national evangelistic television program 100 Huntley Street. The program is broadcast locally on Channel 4, weekdays at 8 a.m.

The Toronto tele-evangelist was in Bathurst last week, the 75th stop on a 100-city tour across Canada.

He embarked on the tour mainly to spread a message of hope, through faith in Jesus Christ.

His visit was highlighted by a June 20 gathering at Keddy's Hotel and Convention Centre, where inspirational videos were shown. They focused primarily on celebrating Canada, and some of Mr. Mainse's preaching centred on what he sees as the nation's more serious social ills.

"Surely, people who share the same geography can work together," he noted. Unfortunately, that often does not seem to be the case.

The problem here is in the "mindset that allows even the consideration of the breakup of the country."

Again, Mr. Mainse sees the solution as a question of faith, not only in God, but in the nation's founders.

Mr. Mainse has been preaching his message of salvation for some 29 years, having begun as pastor of a modest Ontario church in 1961. That same year, a new local television station surfaced that allowed him air time.

WIFE'S BROTHERS

Mr. Mainse credits the opening of that door to his wife's brothers, who had known some success in Australia, as country music performers.

They performed while Mr. Mainse preached, and the combination was impressive enough to merit an invitation to return for regular broadcastings.

In 1962, Mr. Mainse formed Crossroads Christian Communications, which eventually became 100 Huntley Street. The organization and accompanying television program were named after the street address where the show's studio building is located in Toronto.

Among 100 Huntley Street's achievements are significant contribution to relief efforts in needy European and Third World countries.

The organization also maintains a continuing involvement in the Circle Square ranches that blossomed from the children's television show of the same name. Also, a telephone crisis line network has been set up, with operations in Saint John, New Brunswick.

There are currently nine Circle Square ranches across Canada, including one in Sussex, N.B., and crisis lines have been established in 25 major cities across the country.

Mr. Mainse's father was a Methodist missionary in Egypt, where he started colleges and schools for girls.

Born in Quebec and raised mostly around the Ottawa Valley, Mr. Mainse had no real way of knowing in which direction his life would lead him, despite his upbringing.

BAD KID

Actually, he characterizes himself as "just a bad kid," when he was a youngster

He played hooky from school, and at 15, hitchhiked to Montreal. Once, he tried to hitch a ride on a ship to check out the action abroad, but was promptly kicked off before the vessel even made it out of port.

"I saw myself going in the wrong direction," he reflected, adding, "I needed something in my life."

That something came when he was 16.

"Some friends came into my life, and when I was almost seventeen, I got saved."

Soon, he would feel a strong calling from God to spread the joy of his salvation through preaching.

He feels a new calling, as the church joins in the general turmoil of the 1990s, is "to preach with greater strength than ever."

While he counts the recession among the greatest symptoms of that turmoil, he does not deny the scandal that rocked the evangelical world a few years ago. Television evangelists Jimmy Swaggart and Jim Bakker both fell from grace over sexual snafus; and more recently, the Catholic church has had to deal with allegations of sexual abuse against children in a Newfoundland orphanage.

But Mr. Mainse believes God exposed these evil deeds, as part of a shaking down of the church.

"I believe God himself pulled the caps off (and) exposed the hypocricy," he said.

"God was saying, 'I will have a pure and clean and honest church at my return.'"

While he accuses the media of perhaps giving the scandals too much play, he also contends his ministry was not adversely affected by it.

As television evangelism suddenly came under a dark cloud in the public eye, the inevitable question did arise: "What about David Mainse?"

But Mr. Mainse had the National Religious Broadcasters on his side. The highly respected organization issued a press release, stating their confidence in Mr. Mainse's honesty and integrity.

And so his work continues. The 100-city tour, which started in British Columbia in January, is set to wrap up back in Toronto this fall.

At each stop, he plans to "tackle some aspect" of the nation's troubles, and show to Canadians that, through faith, "we can all be part of the answer, instead of always being part of the problem."

Religious broadcaster David Mainse spoke with Northern Light staff writer Michael J. Bourguignon last week, on a downtown terrace. He covered a variety of subjects, including recent religious scandals involving tele-evangelists.

Carter-Rose bids farewell

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

The city's Parks, Recreation and Tourism director is looking forward to a career change with reluctant anticipation.

"It's going to be a change," noted Shelley Carter-Rose, who left her position with the city last Friday after four years of faithful service.

Mrs. Carter-Rose is somewhat reluctant to let go of municipal government, having worked in the field for about 12 years.

She said she still enjoys the action of city affairs, but she and her husband, Guy Rose, have always wanted to return to Prince Edward Island.

That's where the couple is heading.

Mrs. Carter-Rose has accepted a position at Holland College, in Summerside, P.E.I.

She will be teaching a new two-year program called Recreation Administration, which will enable her not only to put in class time. She will also be involved in coordinating activities, and act in an advisory position.

Her mother, and her husband's parents, are still residing in their native Souris, P.E.I., which means Mrs. Carter-Rose is more or less going home.

In an interview with The Northern Light last week, she recalled a number of achievements that have been major highlights of her four years in Bathurst.

One was to have created a working framework for the Parks, Tourism and Recreation Department.

Among the results of that work was the hiring of a tourism coordinator, and outdoor recreation specialist.

In the past four years, Mrs. Carter-Rose focused on developing the department's human, financial and facilities resources.

She has seen the creation of an annual Volunteer Recognition Night and improvements to the Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame.

But at least one facility has so far not been part of that restructuring, but it's one Mrs. Carter-Rose feels will be a major challenge for her eventual successor.

That would be the proposed civic centre, which Mrs. Carter-Rose feels will become an important aspect of the city's tourism and recreation offerings once it's built.

The implementation of the city's Recreation Master Plan is another challenge for the future.

The five-year plan, which consists of an assessment of existing services and facilities and a look at the city's tourism and recreation needs, has just been completed, Mrs. Carter-Rose said.

It should be put into effect early this month.

Whoever is found to take Mrs. Carter-Rose's place will also have to focus on maintaining existing services.

"A lot of people aren't aware of the scope of our department's involvement (in the community)," she said.

"But the staff is confident and capable."

There are about 80 people working in the Parks, Recreation and Tourism Department, including summer project hirings, Mrs. Carter-Rose noted.

That number goes down by one as of Friday, but the city is already scouting for a replacement.

FATAL ACCIDENT

The Bathurst City Police's accident analysis department is still investigating a traffic accident that claimed the life of Albert Landry of Beresford last week. Police and Bathurst Fire Department personnel were called June 26 at about 1:40 p.m. to Teteagouche Hill, where the accident occurred. Mr. Landry, 42, was travelling northbound in a 1981 Ford half-ton pick-up truck, while Fernand St. Pierre of Bathurst, driving a 1986 GMC half-ton, was travelling southbound. A four-wheeled utility trailer became unhooked from the back of Mr. St. Pierre's vehicle, striking Mr. Landry's vehicle. Mr. Landry, who was removed from the truck by firefighters using the "jaws of life," was later pronounced dead at Chaleur Regional Hospital, while Mr. St. Pierre was reportedly uninjured.

FAX (506) 546-1491

OFFICE HOURS: MONDAY TO FRIDAY 8:00 A.M. TO 5:00 P.M.

To insert a CLASSIFIED AD call before noon Tuesday for Wednesday's paper. For larger display advertising call before closing Monday for Wednesday insertion.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES

General classification word ads $7.00 for 4 lines or less. Each additional line $1.75 per line. Special Notices, Cards of Thanks, In Memoriams, Engagements, Weddings, Births, Deaths $10.50 for 6 lines or less. Each additional line $1.75 per line. Box replies extra. Transient classified display ad rate 69¢ per agate line. Minimum size one column inch. (GST extra)

How To Write A Good Ad

1. Start your ad with the merchandise you are selling. This makes it easier for the reader to locate your advertisement.

2. Always include the price of the item you are selling. Many readers in Classified will not respond to an ad which does not include a price.

3. Place yourself in the reader's position. Ask what you would like to know about the merchandise you are selling. Include information such as brand name, colors and other specific descriptions in your ad and you will receive a quicker response from the reader.

VILLE DE BERESFORD
AVIS PUBLIC

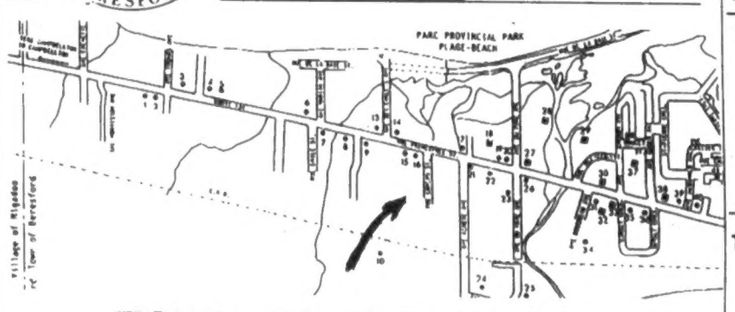
La municipalité de Beresford Inc. a l'intention d'adopter un arrêté modifiant son arrêté no. 18-1982 intitulé "Arrêté adoptant un plan municipal de Beresford" et un arrêté modifiant son arrêté no. 25-1982 intitulé "Arrêté de zonage de Beresford".

Le but de la modification à l'arrêté adoptant le plan municipal de Beresford est pour prolonger le long de la rue Comeau la zone CC-2 (commerce central 2) déjà existante en bordure de la rue Principale (route 134).



Le but de la modification à l'arrêté de zonage est de rezoner de résidentiel à commerce central 2 un terrain appartenant à M. Eugene Frenette pour permettre l'opération d'un étang à truites.

Les objections au projet d'arrêté présentées par écrit seront étudiées lors d'une audience publique qui se tiendra en la salle du Conseil à Beresford, N. B., le 08 juillet, 1991 à 19H30. Toute personne qui désire défendre ces objections écrites ou s'y opposer pourra le faire à ces temps et lieu.

LE CONSEIL MUNICIPAL DE
BERESFORD INC.
Par: NORVAL GODIN
Secrétaire-greffier

TOWN OF BERESFORD
PUBLIC NOTICE

(By virtue of Section 25 of the Community Planning Act)

The Beresford Municipal Council is proposing a change to its Municipal Development Plan being by-law No. 18-1982 entitled "The Beresford Municipal Development Plan" and its zoning by-law being no. 25-1982 entitled "Beresford Zoning By-law".

The purpose of the change to the Municipal Development By-law is to extend onto rue Comeau the CC-2 zone (Central Commercial 2) already in existence along rue Principale (route 134).

The purpose of the change to the zoning by-law is to rezone from residential to central commercial 2, a parcel of land owned by Mr. Eugene Frenette, to allow the operation of a trout pond.

A meeting will be held on July 08, 1991 at 7:30 p.m. at the Beresford Municipal Office for public presentation of the proposed modification.

Any objections to the proposed amendment must be presented to Council in writing. All objections should be forwarded to the Town Clerk within thirty (30) days of the public presentation.

RCMP not releasing any information on dig

What the police went looking for on a piece of property located next to North East Cablevision in Beresford last week was not found.

And exactly what they were looking for was not identified in a release issued by RCMP Superintendent J.R.P. Piché earlier this week, only that the results of the search were negative and the investigation is continuing.

Following a tip, an investigation was initiated by members of the RCMP and the BNPP regional police force, and a search conducted.

To further clarify rumors, the investigation does not have any relation to the recent murder investigations in the city of Bathurst nor to the alleged missing person in the Petit Rocher area, stated the release.

It went on to add that there would be no further comment at this time, and a further release will be issued should any new developments arise.

TAKE THAT!

About 1,000 spectators turned out at the Kent Lodge Road race track Monday afternoon to take in Metal Monday madness. The demolition derby, with 12 cars entered, subsequently finished in a tie between Rick Carmichael of Bathurst and Simon Roussel of Allardville. They shared the $2,000 winner's purse. The event began with three preliminary heats, and one last chance race, with the first and second place finishers in each earning an automatic berth in the final, along with $150 and $50 respectively. Major sponsors of the event were Labatt's Breweries, Cassidy's Soft Drinks, and Tremblay Backhoe.

Lady Smith II shakes the curse and comes in first

The old adage that you try and try until you succeed is one which aptly describes the crew of Lady Smith II.

After finishing second the last four years in the annual Festival des Rameurs dory race, spanning 22 miles from Bonaventure, Que. to Petit Rocher, the crew has finally broken the ice with a victory in the 25th anniversary edition of the event.

The winning team, which includes captain Denis Guitard of Petit-Rocher, lead rower Mario Boudreau of Nigadoo, second rower Michel Roy of Petit-Rocher, third rower Jean-Marc Grant of Petit-Rocher, and fourth rower Paul Morrison of Petit-Rocher, finished in a time of three hours, 19 minutes, and 22 seconds.

This marked the eighth straight year the Epicerie Frenette-sponsored team has participated in the event, which was postponed from Saturday to Sunday due to inclement weather.

EXCITING FINISH

Once the 11 boats left the Quebec side about 8 a.m. Sunday they still had the elements to battle with, albeit much less overpowering than the previous day's 10- to 12-foot high waves. The waves had calmed down to about six feet when the race finally got underway, still forcing the crews to bail out their boats numerous times during the crossing.

Bailing the boat one final time about two miles from the Petit Rocher wharf is what Guignard credits for their win.

"We had about a foot-and-a-half of water in the boat when one of the crew members lifted his oar and began bailing," he said.

Lady Smith II was the winning entry in the Festival des Rameurs dory race this year, the 25th anniversary of the crossing of the Bay of Chaleur from Bonaventure, Que. to Petit Rocher. The Epicerie Frenette-sponsored team arrived New Brunswick side Sunday morning in a time of three hours, 19 minutes and 22 seconds. From left are Denis Guitard of Petit-Rocher, captain; Mario Boudreau of Nigadoo, lead rower; Michel Roy of Petit-Rocher, second rower; Jean-Marc Grant of Petit-Rocher, third rower; and Paul Morrison of Petit-Rocher, fourth rower.

Chaleur fourth at Acadian Games

The 1991 Acadian Games Final held during the past week in Dalhousie was no different than the five before it.

The South East region was the one standing at the victory podium once the overall results were disclosed, making it their eighth victory in the 12-year existence of the Francophone games.

South East earned an even 300 points to secure the overall title, followed by Kent, 249; Acadian Peninsula, 236: Chaleur, 230; Madawaska, 216; Restigouche, 152; Nova Scotia, 116; and Prince Edward Island, 90.

The local Chaleur region, twice winner of the overall title, earned first place finishes in both badminton, where they edged Kent 5-4 in games to take the championship, and in girls volleyball, where they again edged Kent for the title.

In track and field, the Chaleur region's 12 and 13 year olds placed a respectable third among the eight regions, but slipped to fifth among 14 and 15 year olds.

Chaleur edged Kent 1-0 in a boys' soccer game to determine third place, one eventually decided through penalty kicks.

Two other third place finishes in individual sports were recorded, one in gymnastics and the other in boys' volleyball.

Chaleur finished fourth in cycling, fifth in both boys handball and tennis, and seventh in girls' softball.

If Ruddock can't, no one will

Out Of Bounds
By JIM COUTURE
Northern Light Sports

That's it. No one is going to beat Mike Tyson again for awhile.

If Donovan (Razor) Ruddock couldn't do it, who can? George Foreman? Don't be a fool. Evander Holyfield? Don't make me laugh.

Tyson will deal with them all on his way to the world Heavyweight championship he wants to regain so badly, but all in due time. I think Foreman is next, followed by some fluff willing to get beaten up really bad in 15 seconds or so for really big moola, then--if he stops shaking long enough to put his trunks on--Evander Holyfield will get a chance to prove what kind of champion he really is. Again, don't make me laugh.

The only reason Tyson lost his belt in the first place was because he ran out of worthy opponents, and no other reason. The purses were dwindling rapidly because no one wanted to come out to a fight which lasted only a few minutes or so before Tyson's opponent was put out faster than a wet, smelly dog.

Tyson will not stop until he wins the title back, then he'll fight a few more bouts until everyone has gotten over the delusion that he can be beaten. Then old Porcupine Head (a.k.a. Don King) will tell him to take a stiff one on the chin and go down like an ax on a chicken's neck.

Then it's back to the same old scenario. First you get a new champion--any one will do--mix in a few bums to show the new fellow can win the odd fight, then add a little fire to Tyson's gaze and let him beat a few others to a pulp until he gets another shot.

I don't how long he can continue doing this, but it is a great way to make some big bucks. He's probably making more now trying to get his title back than in some of his last fights as champion. Sounds like a good deal to me.

Softball all-star game on Saturday

The rosters have been selected and the bragging rights will soon be handed out.

All-star teams from the South Bathurst Alpine Softball League and the Parkwood Schooner-Pizza Delight Softball League will square off in the Centennial Park field in Parkwood Heights Saturday, with only one team to emerge as champion.

The game begins at 2 p.m.

Both city leagues have chosen a first and second all-star team, with the first all-star teams playing the first five innings and the second team playing the final four.

The pitchers who will try to lead the Parkwood loop to victory are Paul Aucoin of Brasserie O'St. Pierre, Glen Morrison of the Wild Goose Guzzlers, and Daniel DeGrace of Techno 90. Coaches with the team are Michel Doucet of the Big D Blues, and Greg MacDonald and Peter Assaff, both of the Right Spot Classics.

Coaching the South Bathurst entry are Emilien Duguay of Allardville Cultural Centre, Bob Sullivan of Pitcher's Pub and Eatery, and Ronald DeGrace of Robertville Roi du Poulet.

Members of the second all-star team include Etienne Pitre of Robertville Roi du Poulet, pitcher; Stewart Stanger of A.T.S. Convenience Centre, catcher; Roland Frenette of Robertville Roi du Poulet, first base; Ricky Garrett of Union Centre, second base; Alvin Sonier of Pitcher's Pub and Eatery, third base; Jean Louis Arseneau of Robertville Roi du Poulet, shortstop; and outfielders Laurent Roy of Nigadoo R.H. Frenette, Bernie Allain of P.J.'s Pub, and Charles Comeau of Nigadoo R.H. Frenette.

The South Bathurst Alpine Softball League and the Parkwood Schooner-Pizza Delight Softball League will pit its all-star teams against one another this coming Saturday at Centennial Park field in Parkwood Heights beginning at 2 p.m. A collection will be taken up by the Bathurst Fire Department during the course of the match, to raise funds to combat Muscular Dystrophy. Leading the South Bathurst contingent in the game are, front from left, Emilien Duguay, Stewart Stanger, Etienne Pitre, Roland Frenette, and Bob Sullivan. Middle row from left are Alvin Sonier, Lance Whalen, Brian Lavigne, Jocelyn Paulin, Dale Hadley, and Laurent Roy. Back from left are Denis R. Duguay, Bernie Allain, and Marc Degrace. Missing from photo are Michel Legacy, Micheal Frenette, Herve Legacy, Ricky Garrett, Jean-Louis Arseneau, Charles Comeau, and Ronald DeGrace.

Willett, Rossignol "Scramble" to win

Tee Talk

By CHERYL BREWSTER
546-5386
Gowan Brae Ladies Club

The fine weather the past few weeks has contributed to the success of many golfing events at Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club.

This past weekend saw 106 two-man teams take part in the Gowan Brae Labatt's Best Ball-Scramble.

After 36 holes of play, three teams were tied for first place with scores of 139. A playoff, was held with the teams of John Woods and Lance Enright of Restigouche, Ernie Hachey and Doug Stewart of Moncton, and George Willett of Gowan Brae teamed up with Pierre Rossignol of Quebec City.

On the second hole, the Willett-Rossignol team chipped in for an eagle-3 to capture the winning trophy.

Winning the Second Division honors, with a 146 score, was a team of two Gowan Brae junior golfers, Robbie Clinch and Mark Brewster.

Congratulations to all the winners, and to the organizers and workers who made this sixth annual tournament such a success.

The junior program for this summer is underway. The weekly instructional clinics are being well attended and the first tournament has been held. The School-Ending Scramble, played on June 24, saw the team of Mark Brewster, Ian Willett, Tyson Woods and David Cavalero put together a nine-hole score of 36.

An awards ceremony will be held at the end of the summer to honor all the winners of the season's local junior events.

The first of the four North Shore Junior Field Days will be held at the Restigouche Golf Club on Thursday, July 11. Interested juniors are asked to sign the poster in the junior room and be at the club before 8 a.m. to board the bus.

Gowan Brae will be hosting this year's Provincial Junior Championship, July 15 and 16. Last year's junior men's champ, Yannick Lang, who is now a Gowan Brae member, will be defending his title.

The junior ladies will be crowning their new champion since last year's winner, Carrie Vaughan of Riverside, is now out of the junior category. However, Gowan Brae's Kerry Maher, who won the title in 1989, will be in the running for the 1991 trophy. Good luck to all local participants.

A non-qualifying tournament to prepare for the Junior Girls Team Trials will be held today and Thursday, with 2 p.m. and 9:30 a.m. tee off times respectively.

As mentioned in previous columns, the 1992 National Junior Ladies' Championship will take place at Gowan Brae Aug. 8 to 12.

The organizing committee consists of Pat Edwards, tournament chairman; Ilona Schnarr, secretary; and Pella Leonfellner, treasurer.

The committee heads are, Isabel MacLaggan, publicity and public relations; Joe and Pat Flynn, accomodation and transportation; Jo Jabora, program; George Willett, grounds; Mary Gavin, house; Pat Maher, prizes; Bernice Jardine and Cheryl Brewster, registration and information; and Don MacLaggan, draw and scoring.

Of course, all of these committees will be requiring many more volunteers to work at the hundreds of jobs that are necessary for a national event of this magnitude. All Gowan Brae members who can contribute some time to this effort are asked to sign the sheets posted at the club or to contact one of the various committee chairmen. The organizing committee will be meeting once a month, and more frequently as the tournament approaches.

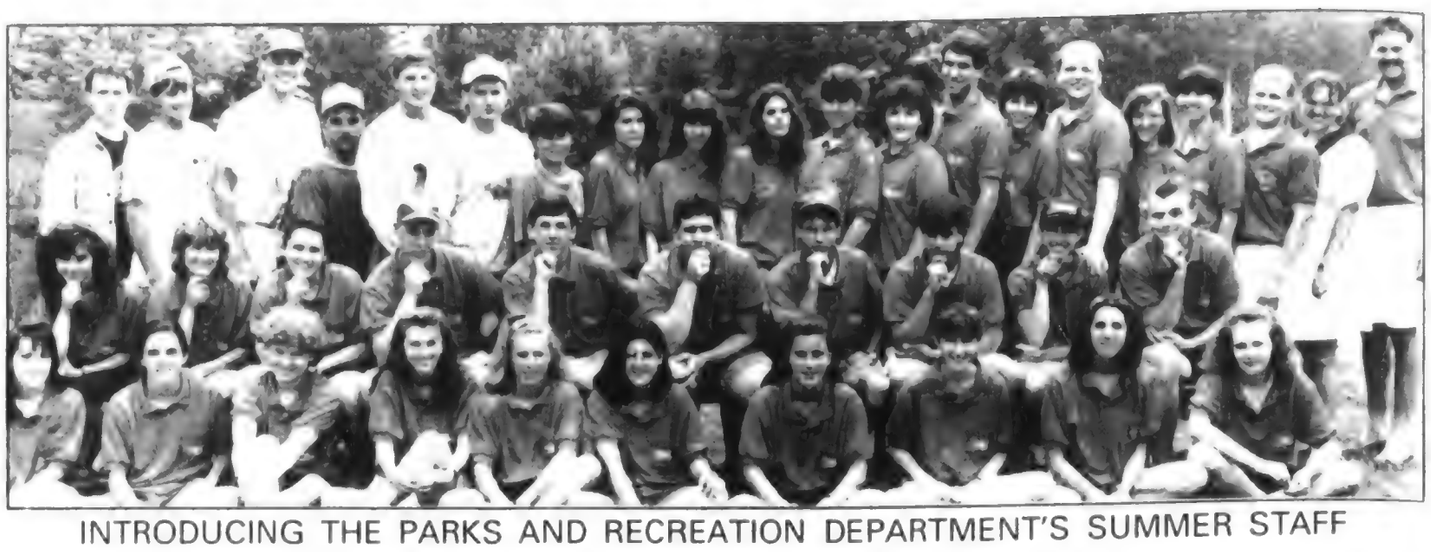
The Tuesday Ladies' Day matches are being well attended.

On June 18, winners of the morning games were Mary Gavin, Valerie Frenette, Norma Doucet, Marie Oliver and Estelle Boisvert. Prize winners in the evening matches were Billy Hanley, Margie MacDonald, Paulette Jessop, Pat Edwards, Susan Wylie and Lynn Sonier.

On June 25, 29 ladies participated in the matches, which saw prizes go to Joan Callaghan, Yvonne Fisher, Bernice Jardine, Dot Berry, Anne Arseneau, Betty Cavalero, Ilona Schnarr and Pat Stephenson.

Several local lady golfers travelled to Moncton on June 20, to participate in the Magnetic Hill Field Day which was won by Moncton's Monique Taylor. Winners from Gowan Brae were Valerie Frenette, first low net in the first division; Gisele Shaw, third low net in the first division; and Bernice Jardine, second low gross in the third division.

A development clinic was held June 22 at the Miramichi Golf and Country Club for lady golfers with handicaps of 29 or less.



Attending the clinic from Gowan Brae were Pat Maher, Mary Gavin, Sharon Connolly, Joan Callaghan, Margie MacDonald, Gisele Shaw and Valerie Frenette. Miramichi professional Ken McBride and his assistant, Gary, were the instructors.

The regular Wednesday luncheons begin today Wednesday, and continue through the summer months. However, convenors for two of the August luncheons are still being sought. Those who would be willing to convene a luncheon should contact Anne Arseneau as soon as possible.

A nine-hole Get-Acquainted Ladies' Texas Scramble is being held this evening Wednesday. A second Scramble will be held July 26.

Qualifying rounds for those wishing to take part in the Provincial High Handicap Tournament must be played by this coming Friday.

This tournament, open to golfers with handicaps of 26 or over, will take place at the Woodstock Golf Club on July 13. Check the downstairs bulletin board for more information about this tournament as well as the National Club's Team Championship, whose qualifying rounds will be played Wednesday, July 17.

INTRODUCING THE PARKS AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT'S SUMMER STAFF

The summer staff employed with the city's Parks, Recreation and Tourism Department has just recently completed its one-week training program at the Bathurst Sports Chalet, and is now ready to entertain the youth of the city again this summer. The students will begin their work program July 8. Front from left are Rachel Cameron, playground monitor; Terry Poirier, gymnastics coach; Stephanie Sealy, gymnastics coach; Lisa Cavicchiolo, pre-schooler monitor; Kerry Maher, volleyball coach; Tawnya Walsh, mobile leader; Lori St. George, pre-schooler monitor; Jenny LeBlanc, mobile leader; Sandy Aube, volleyball coach; and Sherri Savoie, badminton coach. Middle row from left are Isabelle Theriault, badminton coach, Nicole Paulin, mobile leader; Sylvie Thibodeau, T-ball coach and outdoor recreation coordinator; Jeff Ouellette, soccer coach; Keith Flynn, track and field coach; Francois Deschenes, tennis coach; Darryl Lavigne, basketball coach; Jeff Arsenault, T-ball coach; Paul Robbins, drama instructor; and Andrew Dobson, outdoor recreation coordinator. Back from left are maintenance staff Richard Fitters, Brian Dwyer, Ted Branch, Keith Chamberlain, Chris Burns, Wayne Ellis, and Kim Smith; and Lynn Doucet, drama instructor; Chantal Vinet, mobile leader; Anne Glover, mobile leader; Chantal Desjardins, pre-schooler monitor; Kari Stever, softball coach; Philip Colton, basketball and tennis coach; Lucie Wilson, tourist counsellor for the Tourism Department; Bruce Boucher, special events coordinator; Chantale Roy, project manager; Helen Thibodeau, playground coordinator; Derek McCallum, staff bus driver and sports coordinator; Donna Landry, outdoor recreation specialist and summer program supervisor; and Michel Doucet, tourism/visitors services coordinator.

It's "play ball" time for area youth

The Bathurst Minor Baseball Association kicked off its house league schedule on most fronts last week, with numerous games contested around the city.

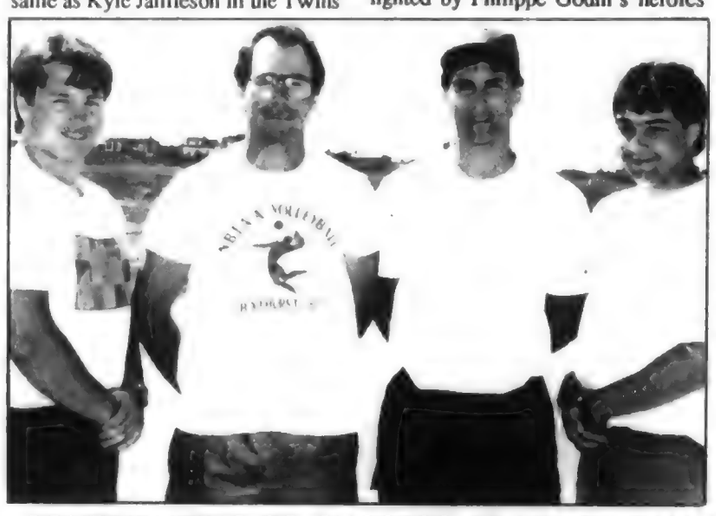
Also that day, Joel Albert stroked a pair of base hits for the Pirates and Jimmy Dean Melanson made a few oustanding defensive plays and hit a solid double for the A's in a Squirt division exhibition match.

Another exhibition game was played June 25, this one in the Mosquito ranks. The Expos squarred off against the Giants, a game highlighted by Philippe Godin's heroics at the plate. The Giants' slugger stroked a grand slam home run and a pair of base hits, while Larry Rollins had three hits to lead the Expos.

The Blue Jays trimmed the Angels 10-2 in a Beaver division game June 25, one which saw seven runs pushed across the plate by the Jays in the second inning.



Kirk Doucet was the winning pitcher, allowing only a single run in each of the first two innings, while Michael Goyette was tagged with the loss. Leading the winning offence were Marc Boudreau, two singles; Jamie Doucet, a triple; and David Blais and Denis Theriault, each with a single.

The White Sox edged the Twins 11-10 in the first of two games played June 26, this one in the Beaver division.

Leading the White Sox in the hitting department were Patrick Daigle, Jason Fortin, Greg Allain, and Lloyd Lavigne, each with a single.

Top hitters in the Twins' lineup were Craig Branch, a home run and a single; Kyle Jamieson and David Couture, each with two singles; and Tyle McGrath, a double.

Closing out the week was a Squirt division exhibition match between the Yankees and the Phillies. Leading the Yankees at the plate was David Landry, with a double and two singles, while the top player for the Phillies was Chad Nelson, with two solid base hits and strong defensive efforts.

CONTRIBUTING TO SUCCESS OF MINOR BALL

The Bathurst Minor Baseball Association is going with an instructional program this season for the second straight year, a system credited with raising the number of children involved in minor ball over the 300 mark. Widely credited with the success of the program are the four Université de Moncton students hired as instructors. They include, from left, Marco Chiasson, assistant coordinator and instructor; Stephane Hachey, assistant coordinator and instructor; Jolyn Theriault, coordinator and instructor; and Francois Boudreau, instructor.

Beresford Schooners close in

The Beresford Schooners won twice in as many tries this past week to move to within two games of Eel River Crossing in the Restigouche Intermediate Baseball League standings.

The Schooners edged the Campbellton Merchant Hawks 6-4 and trounced the Belledune Mooseheads 9-3 to up its record to 6-4 won-lost, trailing only Eel River at 8-2, and Campbellton at 7-4. Rounding out the seven-team standings are Belledune, 5-5, the Beresford Alpine Bees, 2-2; the Dalhousie Moosehead Dodgers, 5-6; and the Atholville Blue Pitch Royals, 0-10.

Other league games saw Belledune edge Dalhousie, 6-4, and hammer Atholville, 18-7; Campbellton defeat Atholville, 13-5; Eel River beat Dalhousie, 7-1; and Dalhousie clip Campbellton, 11-4. A game between both Beresford squads had to be postponed.

League games scheduled this week has Belledune travelling to Atholville for a 7:30 p.m. game Thursday night, the same night as Eel River heads for Dalhousie for a 6:15 p.m. game against the Dodgers. Campbellton takes on the Beresford Alpine Bees Friday night in Beresford beginning at 7:30 p.m.

An all-star game pitting the best of the Restigouche league against the Newcastle Senior Cardinals of the New Brunswick Senior Baseball League gets underway at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at Campbellton's Rotary Field.

Robertville wins both

Only two games were reported in the South Bathurst Alpine Softball League this past week, both of them Robertville Roi du Poulet wins.

The first was played June 25, a 17-8 win for Robertville over Nigadoo R.H. Frenette. Marcel Frenette was the winning pitcher, with the loss going to Marc-André Chiasson.

Top hitters in the winning lineup were Flavien Guitard, a home run and two doubles; Jean-Louis Arseneau, a home run and two singles; Brian Hadley, a home run and one single; and Gilles Boudreau, with four singles. Leading the losing side in the hitting department were Donald DeGrace, with a homer and two singles, and Laurent Roy, with a home run and one single.

Etienne Pitre was on the mound for Robertville's 6-4 victory over Allardville Cultural Centre June 27, with Ronald Regnier tagged with the loss.

Leading the winning side at the plate were Michel Lagacé, with a home run, triple and double; and Martin Hachey, with a pair of singles. Mario Fournier stroked a triple and a double to lead Allardville, with Robert Savoie chipping in with a home run.

Bowling challenge to local mall

Bowling Update

By EDWARD CHAMBERLAIN

The Monthly Mixed Money Tournament at Chaleur Family Lanes will take place this coming Sunday beginning at 10 a.m.

Registration is $10 per bowler plus strings, and teams will be made up by way of averages.

A friendly bowling tournament took place at Chaleur Family Lanes involving the staff from Chaleur Centre and the Douglastown Mall, with Chaleur Centre coming out in first place thanks to a team captained by Daniel Couture.

The next tournament will take place this month between both malls.

Following are the winners at Chaleur Lanes' Moonlight Bowling held Friday night: Gilles Caron, Lynus Buggie, Caroline Couture, Gilles Doucet and Michael Thibodeau each won $5 in cash.

On Saturday night, Rachelle Couture won $15, Claude Hachey won $10, and Andrew Poirier, Caroline Couture, Guy Mallet, Paul Poirier, Pierrette Bergeron, Brigitte Guitard, Terry Coombs and Rona Radden were all $5 winners.

B.J. Furs, Penguin Club set pace in softball loop

Penguin Club and B.J. Furs won a pair of games each this weekend in Fabrication of Plaques City Softball League action, keeping pace with one another atop the league standings.

After 10 games played, B.J. Furs leads the league with a 9-1 won-lost record, with Penguin Club only one game behind at 8-2. Rounding out the standings are Brasserie O'St. Pierre, 5-5; Bistro Terrasse, 4-6; C&G Smith Trucking, 3-7; and the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters, 1-9.

Eddie Couture's pitching led B.J. Furs to a 7-1 victory over Bistro Terrasse to start the week off on June 24, with Roger Arseneau claiming the loss.

Top hitter for the winning side of the field was René Robichaud, with a double and a single, while for the losing side it was Allan Leet, with three singles, and Mike Lovegrove, with a double.

Penguin Club defeated C&G Smith Trucking 14-2 in the late game, with Danny Daigle on the mound for the win and Kevin Peters tagged with the loss.

Brasserie O'St. Pierre opened play June 25 with a 9-7 victory over the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters. Results of the encounter were unavailable.

B.J. Furs gained its second win in a row in the late game, a 20-17 marathon victory over Bistro Terrasse. Robert Frenette was the winning hurler here, with the loss attributed to Robbie Arseneau.

Leading the winner's hitting department were Andy Chan, three singles and a triple, and Jean Paul Cormier, a triple and a single, while for Bistro it was Charles Walsh, with a pair of singles.

Marc-André Comeau was the winning pitcher in Brasserie O'St. Pierre's 4-3 victory over the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters June 26, with Jean-Claude Rioux tagged with the loss.

Penguin Club kept pace with B.J. Furs via a 14-8 win over C&G Smith Trucking in the final match of the week. Danny Daigle was on the mound for Penguin Club, with Carl Smith credited with the loss.

Terry Paré led the winning side with a triple, a double and a single, while for the other side it was Todd Morrison leading the way, with a triple and a single.

Race tightens in New Bandon men's league

The top two teams in the New Bandon Sports Association Men's Softball League went head-to-head June 24, resulting in an even closer race for the top position.

Hornibrook Construction still leads the loop with a 9-3 won-lost record despite losing the aforementioned game against G.N. Trucking by a score of 16-14.

G.N. Trucking thus raises its record to 8-3 on the year, half a game behind the front-runners. Rounding out the six-team league standings are Sealy Enterprises, 7-5; Knowles Brothers, 5-6; C.J. Sharks, 3-8; and Jay's Place, 2-9.

Peter Knowles was the winning hurler for G.N. Trucking in their upset victory, with the loss going to Matthew Dempsey. Top hitters for the winning side were Todd Scott, with a triple and a single, and Nathan Ellis, with a double and two singles. Kirk Knowles stroked a double and a single to top all Hornibrook Construction batters.

Jay's Place edged Sealy Enterprises 18-14 June 26, with Matthew Daley the winning hurler and Leon Duguay tagged with the loss. Leading Jay's Place to the win were Charles Scott, with a triple, double and two singles, and Josh Good, with three triples. Leading Sealy's attack were Winston Coombs, with a triple and a single, and Keith Sealy, with a triple.

Hornibrook Construction doubled the C.J. Sharks 10-5 behind John Morrison's pitching arm. Darren Sullivan was credited with the loss. Ryan Jagoe led the winning offence with a triple and two singles, while Preston Knowles handled the bulk of the C.J. Sharks output with three singles.

The late game had Sealy Enterprises sail to a 20-14 victory over Knowles Brothers, with Blair Scott getting the win and Kirby Daley tagged with the loss. Scott, with a triple and a double, and Shane Good, with a pair of doubles, led the winners from the batter's box, while for the losing side it was Mark Smith, with a double and a single, and Hanson Miller, with three singles.

Atlantic Bantam Hockey gets a new sponsor

At Irving Oil, we're committed to Atlantic Canadians of all ages. That's why we're proud to announce our exclusive sponsorship of the Atlantic Canada Bantam Hockey Championship. This prestigious event, a showcase for the best young players across the region, will now be known as the Irving Oil Challenge Cup.

We're also excited to announce that Hockey Hall of Famer Darryl Sittler has joined us as Honorary Captain. So come out and cheer for your local team this winter. Next April they could join Darryl, Irving Oil and some of Atlantic Canada's best bantam hockey players in Newcastle-Chatham, New Brunswick, for the 1992 Irving Oil Challenge Cup.

YOUR CANADA EMPLOYMENT CENTRE

To increase the skill levels of these workers, the Canada Employment Centre offers programmes required to better answer the needs of the level job market.

UI Job Creation (Section 25)

The objective is to link up unemployed workers with businesses and organizations. Helps workers maintain their skills and helps businesses complete projects. Projects must create at least three new jobs, last between six and 52 weeks and not displace any existing employees or volunteers. Projects should have objectives which can be completed in a specific time frame.

Mrs. Irène Lagacé from Caraquet was part of a group of 14 women who successfully completed a secretarial course (clerk-typist) made possible by the C.E.I.C. Job Entry program. Since then, she has been employed by the Fédération des Caisses Populaires Acadiennes in Caraquet.

Job Entry (Re-entry)

The objective is to provide on and off-the-job training and work experience for women who have difficulty making the transition from home to work. This is done through the provision of financial assistance to co-ordinators for operating and training costs and allowances for participants.

THE PEOPLE BEHIND THE ACADIAN GAMES

Young athletes representing the Chaleur region at the Acadian Games Final this past weekend in Dalhousie got most of the glory, but their success is reliant on more than just their athletic capabilities. It takes many people to get them there in the first place--coaches, trainers, sponsors and others--and here are just a few of them. Front from left are Reno Duguay, handball trainer; Carolle Guitard, representing Clinic Dr. Rossignol; Serge Blanchard, handball trainer; Claire Duguay-Brideau, representing Allardville Credit Union; and Serge Godin, girls volleyball coach. Back from left are Bruno Poirier, chief of the delegation from the Chaleur region; Dr. Maurice Robichaud, representing Boudreau and Robichaud Dental Clinic; Maryse Boudreau, representing Boudreau Sports of Beresford; Jacques Haché, representing Chaleur Racket Centre; Alain Theriault, representing Holy Family Credit Union; and Jacques LeBlanc, committee president for the Chaleur Regional Acadian Games.

Tyson-Ruddock III a possibility

On The Ropes
By "Wild" BILL HUDON

Canadian boxer Donovan (Razor) Ruddock lost a 12-round decision to Mike Tyson in Las Vegas last weekend, but did very well in match number two.

Yes, you are right, there could be a match number three.

Like I said, Ruddock did a lot better in this fight than the first one, but this time around he had to spend the night in a hospital with a broken jaw. Tyson had predicted that he would knock out Ruddock early, but he could not stop him.

Take it from the horse's mouth, this guy Ruddock is no small chicken; he is a very big man. Tyson looked so small compared to Ruddock, maybe that's why he could not stop him.

What's next for Ruddock? Well, from what I heard Ruddock will be back. He could be fighting one of the young lions, guys like Riddick Bowe, Ray Mercer or Lennox Lewis. I could be wrong, but I see it that way.

Now, getting back to Tyson. Who will be his next opponent? Big George Foreman could be the man, as current Heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield does not want to fight Tyson just yet. Yes, you are right, the champion is afraid of Tyson. So like I said above, it could be Tyson versus Foreman.

One man asked me who I thought would win between Holyfield and Ruddock. I would pick Ruddock, because I think the champ is too small. He is only a blown up Light-heavyweight.

Getting back to Ruddock, he has a lot of patching up to do on his face. But don't get me wrong, this guy is a tough dude.

PASSING PARADE: SEPT. 18, 1953

Young Howard McLean wins a four-round decision over Paul Prisk. On the same card, Don Spragg fought a non-title bout with Quebec's Welterweight champion Gaston Meunier.

"Wild" Bill Hudon is a member of the Canadian Boxing Hall of Fame and the Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame.

Softball field almost full

There are only four more teams needed to complete the field for the Second Annual Labatt's Blue Pitch Orthodox Softball Tournament, set for Bathurst July 11 to 14.

According to one of the organizers, 14 of 16 teams in each of two divisions have committed themselves to play in the event, with $2,000 in prize money up for grabs.

Organizers are hoping for a full slate of 16 teams to do battle in the Big League Division, where the spoils of victory will include $600 in cash, the Labatt's Trophy, and individual prizes donated by Labatt's Breweries. The runner-up team will receive $300, and the third and fourth place teams $150 each. The registration fee for this division is $150.

Another 16 teams will vie for the $400 grand prize, the Labatt's Trophy and prizes in the House League Division, where the runner-up team receives $200. Third and fourth place teams will console themselves with $100 apiece. Registration fee for this division is $100.

This tournament is sanctioned by Softball New Brunswick and will abide by its rules and regulations. Pitchers must throw the traditional orthodox pitch, with no whip pitch allowed.

Registrations are on a first come, first serve basis. Contact Bert Levesque at 546-5234 as soon as possible to reserve your spot.

Former Holy Family pastor promoted

Father Camille Doucet, M.S., former pastor of Holy Family Parish in Bathurst, has been elected Vice-Provincial of his religious community in the United States.

A native of Bathurst, Father Doucet was chosen for this position by members of the LaSalette Fathers and Brothers of Immaculate Heart of Mary Province in Attleboro, Mass. The election took place during the recent Chapter of his order. As first assistant to the new Provincial Superior, Father Gil Genest, Father Doucet will participate in the government of this religious community founded in France during the last century. The LaSalettes are responsible for a number of shrines and parishes in the United States and Canada.

Father Doucet studied in Bathurst, Ottawa, and Houston, Texas. At the present time Father Doucet, son of Mrs. Stella Doucet and the late Arthur Doucet of Bathurst, is Associate Pastor at Our Lady of the Cape Parish in Brewster on Cape Cod. He will continue to serve in this capacity while assuming his new functions.

OTHER HAPPENINGS

--Do you own a mug? Do you bring it to work? If yes, great! If not, it's time that you do. If you drink coffee, tea or even water in disposable cups (styrofoam or paper) what do you do after use? You simply throw it away again and again, right? The environment needs you to stop doing so to help decrease the amount of waste generated by such daily habits. That's why the waste reduction campaign "Mug Up for the Environment" took the initiative to encourage everyone to use permanent mugs instead of disposables. There will be a "Mug Up" day July 10, where local businesses will be helped to tally the number of times their office uses mugs in place of disposable cups. If your office has not been contacted and is interested in participating, simply tally the results on a piece of paper and contact Julie Dugas at 547-2145, extension 2240, to give results. It will be an inter-city competition with Moncton, Fredericton and Saint John. Let's show them what Bathurst is capable of.

--Visiting Hours for Under the Big Top - Run away to the circus! Girl Guides of New Brunswick's all age camp event, Under the Big Top, invites you to join them.

The camp is located at Franklin Farms, Bains Corner, near Saint John. Visiting hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday during the week of July 7 through 13.

Family, friends and other guests will be escorted to a different area of camp each day.

Come and join the circus!

CITY HISTORY

As Bathurst celebrates its 25th anniversary as a city this year, here are a few historical facts on the city, now known as the Home of the Phantom Ship:

-- The Bathurst area and Bay of Chaleur was first discovered around 1534 by famous explorer Jacques Cartier.

-- Father Bernadine Sébastien was the first missionary to arrive in Bathurst, in 1619

-- Bathurst, which was once known as the Village of Népisiguit or Village of St. Peter, had a population of 960 in 1912 when it became a town.

-- The name "Bathurst" was used during the incumbency of the Honourable Howard Douglas, Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick from 1821-31. The name was used in honor of the Earl of Bathurst, then secretary of the Colonies in the British Government.

-- Council in 1912 consisted of his worship, Mayor P.J. Burns, and aldermen W.J. Kent, John J.S. Hachey, Joseph Henderson, H.G. Poirier, F.O. Landry, James J. Power, Lawrence L. DesRoches and Gilbert J. Doucet

-- The population of the city was about 6,000 in 1966, and it presently about 15,000.

WE DID IT!

Graduates of the Youghal Drive and College Street campuses of the New Brunswick Community College celebrated at the Petit Rocher Arena last week, immediately after receiving their diplomas. There were 230 graduates this year.

The New Brunswick Community College plans to offer a course of a different kind this summer.

New Hampshire-based artist Elise Grant Khol has been invited to teach a week-long course in water colors at the Youghal Drive campus from August 12 to 16.

"I wanted to bring it in as something special for the area that hasn't been seen before," said Ron Gallagher, community services department head at NBCC Bathurst.

The course will be a first for the college, with a minimum of 14, and a maximum of 18, participants required.

Ms. Khol's work, which has been seen and appreciated across Canada, in the United States, France, Germany and South Africa, is noted for its reflection of a love of nature and humanity, said a release.

She will be teaching the course both in Bathurst and in Dieppe, in conjunction with NBCC campuses from both communities.

Nature, portrait painting and landscapes will be explored, the release said.

The course is the first of its kind to be offered locally, Mr. Gallagher noted, and is opened to anyone interested in learning more about the art of water-color painting.

Participants are encouraged to bring their own materials, but some items may be procured for the course from Ms. Kohl.

Further information on the course and materials can be obtained by contacting Mr. Gallagher or Gisèle Noel at 547-8721.

Deadline for registration is July 26.

Pet of the Week

I'm about as easy going as a cat can get. I'm so relaxed it scares even I.

My name is Daisy, presently residing at the Bathurst Animal Shelter, and in the market for a permanent home. I'm a four month-old female, and totally white except for brown markings on my tail and face.

I am also extremely well behaved. I was a student at the Miss Mew School for Cats, graduating at the top of my class. While there I received commendations for Ignoring Injured Birds, Staying Off The Furniture, and Paying Attention To My Master. In my spare time I like to lie around in the sun, chase children, eat, and sit in someone's lap.

If I could change one thing in this world...Wait a second! That was my acceptance speech for the Miss Cat Canada beauty contest. What was I thinking of? Must be that night I got locked in the catnip drawer by mistake. I haven't been the same since.

Twin city honors Canadians

Over The Back Fence
By ELEANOR A. SCOTT
Call 546-5680 after 6 p.m.

"...between the crosses, row on row."

Imagine a field of crosses as far as the eye can see, with a large cross of sacrifice in the centre. Picture Benys-sur-Mer, where school children place flowers around the graves of the 2,800 Canadians who sacrificed their lives to free the people of France.

Every year, on June 6, the anniversary of the Allied invasion (D-Day), the people of the St. Aubin-sur-Mer, Bathurst's twin city, gather on the beach. There, they commemorate their liberation, laying flowers and crosses on the sand and dropping a poppy wreath into the sea.

Patrick McLaughlin and Eugene McGinley, both of Bathurst, together with Wylie and Bud McGinley of Fredericton, watched as the doves of peace flew into the air, and later visited other historic burial grounds in the area.

Meanwhile, in Fredericton, Joshua Hanbrook, nine year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Hanbrook, was presented a certificate of Meritorious Conduct from the Boy Scouts of Canada National Council.

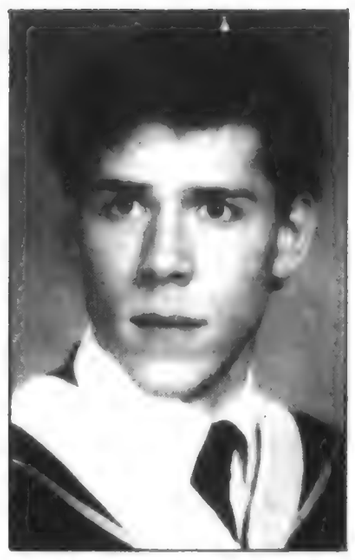
Attending the ceremony from Bathurst were his grandmother Betty White, Geraldine Aube, and aunts Jeanne (White) Jamieson of Midland, Ont., and Ethel (White) Hoffmeister of Oakville, Ont.

They were in Bathurst visiting their parents Mr. and Mrs. Clement White and the former's mother-in-law Marg Jamieson.

Visiting Allan and Betty Hall over the past week were Gail and Alfie Luckian, their four year-old daughter Emma and one-year-old son Ben, of Rawdon, Quebec.

They were joined by Terri Hall and her friend Allan Boretin, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Gary and Janet Hall and their three children, Luke, Mark and Calvin, of Saint John. They all attended the 90th birthday celebration of their grandmother, Mrs. Mabel Hall.

Also here for the celebration were Mrs. Hall's daughter Mary and her husband Ronald North of Edmonton, Alt., her daughter Alice Coles of Winnipeg, Man., and her son Ray and his wife Rita, of Charesholm, Alt.



Visiting Grace Robinson last week were Rev. and Mrs. Howard Smith (Isabel) of Morrisburg, Ont., and Rev. and Mrs. Robert Cross (Ella) of Lower Sackville, N.S.

Isabel and Ella are Grace's sisters. They all went to New Richmond, Quebec, to attend a family reunion held in honor of their aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Ed Milligan, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

CELEBRATING 50 YEARS TOGETHER

The family of William and Muriel Gallagher invite family and friends to celebrate their parents' 50th wedding anniversary at the East Bathurst Knights of Columbus Hall on Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Best wishes only.

LAW SCHOOL GRAD

Ward Kenneth Branch, son of Burton and Lima of Newcastle, and grandson of the late Allison and Velma of Bathurst and Bertha and the late Kenneth Stymiest of Tabusintac, has graduated with honors from the law school at the University of Toronto. He was awarded the Dean's Key for his involvement in extra-curricular activities, and the Borden and Elliot Prize for oral advocacy. He will practice with the firm of Russell & DuMoulin in Vancouver, B.C.

Beware of burns

For The Health Of It
By DR. PAT BERGIN
Emergency Dept.
Chaleur Regional

Here once again is the summer, and the incidence of burns seem to increase somewhat during this season. Hopefully, the guide below will help you in treating and recognizing burns.

The seriousness of a burn depends on what it looks like and how much area it covers:

--FIRST-DEGREE BURN:

Home Treatment:

--Apply ice pack as soon as the burn occurs. Then bathe in cold water. This will reduce the swelling.
--Use acetaminophen (such as Tylenol, Aspirin) for a pain-reliever.
--See a doctor if the burned area is large or if the burned victim is a child or an infant.

--SECOND-DEGREE BURN:

Home Treatment (If blisters are present but unopened):

--Run cool water over the burn, use an antiseptic spray (such as Solarcaine), and cover with clean sterile bandage. --Do not apply any "oily" home remedy, and do not open (pick at) the blisters.
--See a doctor for further treatment.

Home Treatment (If blisters are opened):

--Don't rinse the burn.
--Wrap with a clean towel soaked in cold water. Do not let the towel stick to the wound.
--See a doctor for further treatment.

--THIRD-DEGREE BURN:

The skin looks white, blackened or gray.

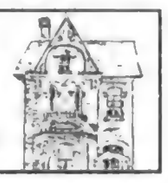
Home Treatment:

--Call an ambulance immediately.
--Do not try to remove any clothing that's sticking to the burn.
--Don't apply any medicine. If burns are exposed, cover with dry, sterile bandages.
--Keep the injured person warm, and give sips of water if requested by victim.

--WARNING ON HOME REMEDIES:

--Never use butter, petroleum jelly, or hand lotion on a second degree burn. It may lessen the pain momentarily, but it does increase the risk of infection by preventing the oxygen to reach the burn.

Have a safe and fun-filled summer



NEW CANADIAN ARMED FORCES RECRUITS

Recent high school graduates officially gave their oath of allegiance to the Canadian Armed Forces during a swear-in ceremony June 17, held at Keddy's Hotel and Convention Centre. The youths are now either enrolled in the Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP) or the Marine Engineering Technician Training Plan (METTP). Those enrolled into the ROTP will have received scholarships to attend university both at civilian and military colleges worth approximately $75,000, and will receive their commissions and join their respective professions on graduation four or five years hence. Those enrolled into the METTP will become marine engineers for the Canadian Navy when they graduate in three years. The students will begin basic training during the summer and will pursue their studies in the fall. Make your own paper

Art Talk
With Bathurst artist JEAN-FRANCES

Materials required: linen or cotton bags, small pieces of screening (about three inches square), liquid laundry starch, gelatin (unflavored), water, spoon, scissors, cup, pot, rolling pin, stove top, paper towels, and mixing bowl.

Paper can be made from a variety of materials, but usually, the paper that we purchase nowadays is made from wood pulp.

Less common but more durable is a paper made from rag, which is often used by artists for watercolor paper.

We can make our own rag paper at home by breaking down the fibres of coton rags and creating a pulp that is spread onto a screen and then dried.

One way to break down the cloth fibres is to take some old linen or cotton rags and cut them into one-inch squares or smaller. Next, pull the threads apart until there is no cloth left. Cut these pieces of thread even smaller with scissors. Place these in a pot with water and cook for about 20 minutes, until it looks like porridge.

Mix one cup of liquid laundry starch with three cups water and add to the boiled threads. Stir.

Now take your piece of screen and slip it into the mixture. Pull it out slowly. You should have a layer of the cooked rag threads on your screen. Get it as even as possible.

Place your screen on some paper towels and put more paper towels on top. Use a rolling pin to squeeze out the excess water, by rolling over these layers.

Dissolve one envelope of gelatin in four tablespoons of water, and pour over your layer of paper to finish it. Let it dry on the screen overnight, and voila, you have made a sheet of paper!

Crafty little killdeer

From my Window
A bird watcher's observations
By MARY GAUTHIER

I've had several calls during the past month, and I'd like to share them with you.

Frank Mersereau reported a killdeer nesting at Shryer's cottage. He found it unusual that a bird was nesting on the ground, on gravel. This is the killdeer's habit. She lays her stone-sized eggs on the ground, and they are perfectly camouflaged. The mother performs a "broken wing" act if anyone comes near the nest. She'll lead you away from her nest with a "key...key...key" call and by dragging her wing.

A northern goshawk was seen in Jim Hocquard's yard at 6 a.m. eating as freshly-killed pigeon. The goshawk is much larger than the more common northern harrier seen hunting over marshes, and the sharp shinned hawk who visits feeders hunting for small birds.

Susan Kierstead called to report a pair of mockingbirds nesting in her yard. The mockingbird is wonderful to hear. He will mimic many birds' songs and repeat them over and over. He will fool you into thinking you have a yard full of birds, and it's only him.

I'll repeat my hummingbird sugar water recipe, as I've had many requests for it. It's one part sugar to four parts water, boil for two minutes, cool, then refill feeders. Keep extra sugar water in the fridge. Red food coloring may be added, but it is not necessary. Be sure to change your feeders at least once a week in this hot and humid weather to prevent mold.

TO WED IN AUGUST

James and Mary Gavin are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Ann, to Allan Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael MacIntosh of Glace Bay, N.S.

The wedding will take place Aug. 10, 1991 at St. Mary's Basilica in Halifax, N.S. beginning at 3:30 p.m.

TO WED JULY 27

Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Marc Nadeau of Jacquet River are pleased to announce the upcoming marriage of their daughter, Nicole Marie, to Timothy Clifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carrier of Belledune.

The wedding will take place at St. Gabriel's Parish Church in Jacquet River on July 27, 1991.

Victorian wedding for Bathurst native

On a cool autumn evening, Sept. 21, 1990, at St. Catherine's Catholic Church in Metcalfe, Ont., Father Joe Vayalil united in marriage Elizabeth Alice, daughter of Leo T. Quinn of Bathurst, to Robert John, son of John and Josephine Brady of Greely, Ont.

The country church was filled to capacity as 260 friends and relatives witnessed the exchange of vows, amidst a colorful array of flowers and a heart-shaped archway trimmed with flowers to compliment the bride's bouquet. Quite appropriate for the elegant Victorian-style wedding.

The bride was dressed in an early century period, and looked quite elegant as she stepped down from the 1927 Model T Ford and entered the church on her father's arm. The dress was ivory lace, embroidered with pearls over a satin gown. A wide-brimmed satin hat and veil, and a bouquet of wild lillies, yellow roses and purple African violets, completed the ensemble.

The groom was attended by his best man, Private Mark A. Salesse, son of the bride, who was in full regimental uniform.

The bride was attended by her maid of honor, Cecilia Babineau, and her bridesmaid, Francine Salesse. Both were stunning in similar shimmering purple dresses, with bouquets to match the bride's.

A buffet was served by caterers following the ceremony. The hall was tastefully decorated with purple and ivory flowers and balloons to match the bridal party, as well as candlelight and sparkle to set the mood to a 1920s musical evening. The bride's longtime favorite song, Moonriver, was chosen as the theme song, and played throughout the evening.

Out-of-town guests were from British Columbia, Quebec, Ontario and Bathurst, as well as throughout New Brunswick.

The bride and groom delayed their honeymoon until February. They spent three weeks visiting Cajun country during Mardi Gras festivities in New Orleans. They also stayed at the Menger Hotel in San Antonio, Texas, next door to the world-reknowned The Alamo. Other interesting sites were the popular Ewing's Southfork Ranch in Dallas, Texas, as well as Elvis' Graceland in Memphis, Tennessee, and, of course, the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville.

MORE SCHOLARSHIPS

Ace R. Smith, son of Roy Smith of Bathurst and Alice Eddy of Fredericton, has been awarded the Honor Matriculation Scholarship from Queen's University in Kingston, Ont. The scholarship is valued at $2,000 per year for four years. In addition, Ace will receive the $3,000 Queen's National Bursary for his first year of study. At the 1991 Bathurst High School graduation ceremonies, held June 19, Ace was awarded the Teddy Ratchford Memorial Scholarship and the Gloucester Chapter IODE Bursary, both valued at $500. Ace plans to enroll in the commerce program at Queen's University in the fall.

MATH WHIZ

Michel Boudreau, son of John and Brenda Boudreau of Bathurst, is the first ever recipient of the Raymonde Ryan Trophy, emblamatic of mathematics excellence at Ecole Place des Jeunes.

Michel earned the trophy primarily through finishing first in a province wide math competition in Moncton this past May.

It must be noted that the trophy's namesake, Raymonde Ryan shown presenting the trophy, has been a math teacher in District 4 school for a number of years, and retired from teaching in 1986 after 35 years of dedicated service.

A committee at the school, comprised of students and teachers this year initiated a program entitled "Recognition", which will, every year, recognize a student who excelled in math, as well as a teacher who has had a long and distinguished career in district schools.

Beeper helps the distressed

For the past four years, Chaleur Regional Hospital's Lifeline program has given peace of mind to numerous handicapped and senior citizens.

Initiated with the assistance of the Bathurst Rotary Club, Lifeline is a service currently being used by 42 people in the Chaleur region.

Those people, ranging in age from 34 to 90, have been equipped with a beeper device that instantaneously links them to the hospital's emergency department.

Should they need quick medical attention, all they need do is press the button on the device, which they wear on a chain around their neck, or on their wrist. The beeper acts as an alarm that lets the hospital know help is needed.

When it does, a message appears on a computer screen, complete with an identification number that allows the staff to determine exactly who is in trouble.

"It's been proven that within six minutes in an average situation, help has arrived," said Edith Tribe, director of volunteers at CRH.

The service was originally offered on a first come, first served basis. However, although the hospital can store thousands of patients' names in its computer system, it can't provide that many beepers.

Because each waterproof, battery-operated device costs about $1,000, patients now must be recommended for the program by a doctor.

The Bathurst Rotary Club continues to fund a significant portion of the cost of the program. The Herman J. Good V.C. Branch No. 18 of the Royal Canadian Legion has also given $15,000 to date, Mrs. Tribe said.

She said the program is going well, and has proven a definite boon to the patients' sense of well-being.

"It's very reasurring tor them to have (the device)," she said.

"We hope they never have to use it, but it (gives them) peace of mind."

The Bathurst Rotary Club has been the main supporter of Chaleur Regional Hospital's Lifeline program since the service's inception four years ago. The club's financial contributions were integral in starting the service, which equips handicapped and senior citizens with beepers that let the hospital know when they need help. The Rotary Club recently made a further $5,000 contribution, accepted by Edith Tribe, director of volunteers at Chaleur Regional Hospital. Presenting the cheque was the Rotary Club's Lifeline chairman, Arnold Robinson.

New Horizons help local group

A grant in the amount of $3,173 has been approved for Club Villa Chaleur, from the federal government's New Horizons program.

Club Villa Chaleur, a Bathurst organization which counts 224 members, had applied for the contribution in order to start up social, recreational and service activities.

In addition to continuing their program of mutual assistance for the sick and destitute in their parish, certain senior members will be offering their sewing and knitting work to the poor. These fine skills will also be used in making costumes the group will need for its theatrical productions.

The seniors will, in addition, be balancing their own lives through physical fitness classes that will enable them to retain their vitality, independence and ability to contribute to society.

NBTel introduces lower rates

NBTel is reducing its prices for calls made from New Brunswick to any other parts of Canada or to the United States (including Alaska and Hawaii), which will result in annual savings of approximately $6 million for customers.

Customers in Bathurst will pay only $2.30 for a five-minute, direct-dialed call to Toronto during the day. The cost of that same call drops by 35 per cent to $1.50 between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m., and reduced by 60 per cent to .92¢ between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m. On Sunday, the 35 per cent discount applies from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

STOTHART HONORED FOR OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE

A Bathurst automobile dealer was recently recognized for his efforts with the presentation of a major award. J. Daryll Stothart, owner of Stothart Toyota Inc., has been named 1991 Time Magazine Quality Dealer, for outstanding performance as an automobile dealer and for being a valued citizen of his community. The honor was bestowed on him at the Atlantic Provinces Automobile Dealers' Convention in Halifax, and allows him to have his name entered in the national competition. At that level, five judges from the University of Ontario will review the entries and decide on the winner of the prestigious award. The results of the national competition will be known in 1992. Mr. Stothart has been in the automobile dealership business since 1967. In that time, he has served as president of the Canadian Association of Japanese Automobile Dealers and as president of the New Brunswick Automobile Dealers' Association. In addition, he sits on the Automotive Advisory Council through the Ministry of Technology, and is a member of the Toyota Dealer Advertising Association.

Man sought in violent robbery

Crime Stoppers

On April 30, 1991, at about 9 a.m., Jean-Guy Roy was on his way to Pointe Verte.

As he got onto the entrance ramp, he was flagged down by a male who appeared to have car problems.

Roy got out of his vehicle to see what the problem was. The male asked if he had a jack.

Roy proceeded to the rear of his vehicle. As he was opening the trunk, the male approached and hit him over the head. Roy fell to the ground in a semi-conscious state.

When he came to, his wallet and all his money was missing. He found his wallet near his vehicle. All the money was gone. Roy had six $100 bills and one $50 bill in his wallet, and between $64 and $66 in his pants pocket. This money was also gone.

Roy sustained a cut about two inches long on his forehead as a result of the blow.

The suspect is described as being between five feet, seven inches tall, and five feet, ten inches tall. His approximate weight was 170 lbs., brown hair, and a full beard of a lighter shade of brown than that of his hair.

He was wearing blue jeans a light-colored shirt. He was driving a small grey vehicle. No make or plate number is available.

Any individual with information regarding this crime, or any other crimes, is asked to call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477. If a tip leads to an arrest, the caller may qualify for a cash award.

An Apple a Day

If you're about to quarrel with a loved one, try escaping to the bathroom for at least 15 minutes with an apple and a good book. Chewing often relieves tension, and so does reading.

Eastern Europe not yet ready to accomodate tourist influx

Travel Today

By VINCENT EGAN
Travel Columnist
Thomson News Service

With the Cold War just another memory on history's dusty shelves, Eastern European countries are attracting--or at least receiving - unprecedented numbers of Western visitors this year.

Some things change slowly, and the former Communist-run countries are not yet campaigning very actively for the tourist trade. Neither, of course, are certain Western European countries.

One of the first positive developments was launched in April, with the introduction of luxury four-day and six-day cruises on the Elbe River, in what used to be East Germany.

The cruises are being operated by the long-established KD German Rhine Line of Cologne, using two new ships constructed in the Netherlands.

Prices average approximately $250 per day per person, double occupancy.

GROUP TRAVEL

For decades, it was recognized that group travel was the most satisfactory way to visit countries of Eastern Europe, with their heavy overlay of regulations and red tape.

One of the specialists in this field has been a Toronto-based company, Canadian Travel Abroad. It continues to organize tours to Eastern Europe, modified to reflect recent changes.

One example: A number of 10-day tours starting June 5, under the general heading of Discover United Germany. One such tour extends into Bulgaria.

Another, later this year, will concentrate on art and theatre in Leningrad and Moscow. All CTA tours use Finnair as carrier.

Himo Mansour, CTA president, says that in his 20 years in the tour business, he has never seen the Soviet Union so open with information and news, nor so willing to allow visitors to travel freely within the country.

GOING IT ALONE

As always, however, a certain number of individuals insist on independent travel, as opposed to group.

The advice to them, from all sides, is clear: Use a travel agent, and don't leave home without confirmed hotel reservations.

One legacy of Communism is a hotel shortage in Eastern Europe. The industry is making big strides in modernization and expansion, but it still has a long way to go.

The best hotels are nearly always heavily booked, and medium-range hotels are scarce.

Nevertheless, the independent traveller who has foresight and a good budget may find some first-rate accommodations in the major Eastern cities.

In Moscow, for instance, Pullman International opened a new hotel in December as the first project in an expansion program in the East.

The Intercontinental Hotels in Warsaw, Budapest and Prague are generally well recommended by those who have stayed in them. Off the beaten track in Sofia, Bulgaria, the Sheraton has won high praise.

GETTING AROUND

Rental cars, as well as luxury hotels, are expensive compared with North American prices, and roads are not usually up to international standards with certain exceptions such as Czechoslovakia's main highways.

Trains are relatively cheap and more commonly used for inter-urban trips, but frequently they are required to run slowly because of poor track conditions. Always book a seat in advance, and splurge for first class if you can get it.

Rail passengers must be on guard against pickpockets, both while en route and when in major terminals such as Warsaw's.

As for taxis, the drivers of Eastern Europe seem to have picked up the ways of their counterparts in many other places: a reluctance to turn on the meter, an unwillingness to take short trips, a readiness to exploit the stranger's unfamiliarity with currency values.

HEALTH TIPS

In the newsletter, Travelling Health, the editor, Karl Neumann, MD, recently gave this advice for travellers to Eastern Europe:

Update your immunization against childhood diseases such as polio, measles, rubella and mumps.

Gloucester Gourmet

Mrs. George Crowther is a native of Portland, Maine.

The husband of Rev. George Crowther of the downshore area, she now lives in Fredericton, but spends summers at the family cottage in Janeville.

OVERNIGHT LAYERED SALAD

1 head iceberg lettuce, coarsely shredded
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
1-10 oz package frozen peas

1 cup mayonnaise
1 cup sour cream
2 tbs. sugar

Mix dressing well, spoon carefully over top layer of salad. Cover, and refrigerate overnight. Just before serving, sprinkle top with 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese and eight slices of cooked and crumbled bacon. Serve.

Every month, a draw will be held, with one of our Gloucester Gourmets for that month winning a cake from Jamieson's Save-Easy in the Place Bathurst Mall. To enter, simply submit a recipe along with your name and telephone number and The Northern Light will make arrangements to get you into the Gloucester Gourmet column for your chance to win! The winner for the month of June is Jean Street.

$2,000 SCHOLARSHIP

Danny Arseneau, a 1991 graduate of Bathurst High School, is the recipient of the Tom Park Hickey Memorial Scholarship in the amount of $2,000. Danny is entering the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton this fall, where he will study electrical engineering. He is the son of Jerry and Janet Arseneau of Pointe Verte.

$1,000 DONATION

The Beresford Sports Association received a cheque for $1,000 June 23 from Le Cercle Feminin, which will be used to pay for renovations to the Sportek in Beresford. Yvonne Brown, president of Le Cercle Feminin, is shown presenting the cheque to Rudolph Boudreau, representing the Beresford Sports Association.

1500 Cash rebate on Tempo Topaz
2000 cash rebate on F-Series

With Cash Rebate applied. All taxes, licences and transportation extra.

*Offers on Tempo and Topaz ... (1) 8.9% financing plus $750 cash back or (2) $1,500 cash back, and on F-Series of (1) 8.9% financing plus $1,000 cash back or (2) $2,000 cash back are mutually exclusive. 8.9% financing to a maximum 48 months on approved credit. For example: $15,000 financed at 8.9% annual percentage rate for a 48 month term, monthly payment is $372.56, cost of borrowing is $2,882.88, total amount to be repaid is $17,882.88. If the F-Series $2,000 cash back is chosen instead of the cash back/financing combination, the effective interest rate is 11.78% over 48 months and the total cost of borrowing including the rebate not taken would be $3,882.88. If the Tempo/Topaz $1,500 cash back is chosen the effective interest rate is 12.13% and the total cost of borrowing would be $2,672.24 (based on a $10,000 loan). No down payment required. Offer good on in-stock vehicles only. Some conditions apply. Vehicles may not be exactly as depicted. See dealer for details.

Cash back and reduced financing offers are mutually exclusive. Cash back varies with vehicle purchased. Cash back on 1991 Festiva, Escort, Tracer, Mustang, Probe, Taurus, Sable, Thunderbird, Cougar, Ranger and Aerostar. Offer good on in-stock vehicles only. If reduced financing is chosen instead of the cash back, based on an example of $15,000 financed and $750 cash back as the option, the effective interest rate would be 11.07% and the total cost of borrowing would be $3,632.88. Some conditions apply. See dealer for all the details.

†This offer cancels and replaces all other programs previously advertised and may not be combined with any other offer.

Donnie and the Monarchs to rock hoedown

This Saturday will be just the right time to rummage through the attic for those old dancing shoes and poodle skirts.

Donnie and the Monarchs, a popular showband specializing in Golden Oldies, will be rocking and rolling the Bathurst arena at this year's Silver Jubilee Festival hoedown.

The concert is presented by the Gloucester County Kings AAA midget hockey team, in conjunction with the Bathurst Silver Jubilee Festival. Showtime is 10 p.m., with doors opening at 8:30 p.m.

Hailing from Saint John, New Brusnwick, Donnie and the Monarchs have been pleasing audiences since the early 1980s with their rich repertoire of classic rock and roll dance tunes.

The band has played innumerable conventions, trade shows, community centres and fundraisers, said an article in the April, 1990 issue of Atlantic Advocate.

There has also been the odd concert, and odd may well be the best way to describe this throwback to the bygone days of ducktails and Brylcreem.

They have been known to appear in Mickey Mouse headgear, and, on at least one occasion, drop their guitars in favor of kazoos.

Formed in 1981 as the Basic Four, Donnie and the Monarchs eventually switched to '50s tunes as a lark.

The craze caught on, and the band has since shared the stage with such renowned artists as the Beach Boys, Bobby Day, the Coasters and Tiny Tim. They opened for the Beach Boys during last year's summer concert at Shediac Beach.

Today, Donnie and the Monarchs are more than just musicians--they are performers.

Although they don't stick strictly to 1950s tunes, their shows include choreography à la Temptations, and appropriate costume changes between sets.

As for the music, it spans everything from Chubby Checker to Roy Orbison, and is sure to get just about everyone dancing.

Saint John showband Donnie and the Monarchs will take their special brand of golden oldies rock and roll to the Bathurst Arena this Saturday at the ever-popular hoedown. The concert is being held in conjunction with the 1991 Silver Jubilee Festival.

QUIZ BIZ

1. Daniel Ash, who has just released his first solo effort, intitled Coming Down, is best known as the frontman for Love and Rockets. That band grew out of which pioneering U.K alternative outfit?
2. Bon Jovi guitarist Richie Sambora has also struck out on his own with a solo release. In order to achieve the bluesy atmosphere he wanted on the record, Sambora hooked up with which veteran guitar legend?
3. Rap artist Vanilla Ice will soon star in a motorcycle film called Cool as Ice. What other, similarly named rapper recently made the transition from music to movies, with a film intitled New Jack City? (Those who feel lucky may also take a stab at naming the film's brat pack co-star.)
4. Annie Lennox and Dave Stewart have just released a greatest hits package that spans the scope of their success as the Eurythmics. What was their first No. 1 hit, released in 1983?

1. Bauhaus
2. Eric Clapton
3. Ice-T; his co-star was Judd Nelson.
4. "Sweet Dreams"

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE

Silver street acts...

The busking phenomenon finally comes to Bathurst.

Three exciting acts, members of Halifax's Buskers Int'l, will perform behind the Royal Bank on Main Street next Sunday at 2 p.m., in conjunction with the 1991 Silver Jubilee Festival.

Originating from Portugal, Helium High is a juggler, unicyclist and charmer who juggles devil sticks, pins, flaming torches, a toy doll and a rubber shark.

Finally, Quebec's own Etienne Vendette is a magician, who, at just 20 years of age, has already worked alongside the renowned David Copperfield, and has worked his magic on both stage and television.

Koenic's smooth on debut album

Mark Koenic--The Lonesome Kind

Mark Koenic is a name that is familiar to country fans in western Canada, and soon to be elsewhere.

A singer/songwriter, he's been on the music scene for some time. Koenic has appeared on many occasions with Ian Tyson, and those stints seem to have rubbed off nicely. "The Lonesome Kind" is Koenic's debut album on the Justin label, an independent label which is distributed by MCA records in Canada.

The first single off the album, "Trail Of Tears" is doing quite well and was in the 40th position on the RPM-100 country chart the week of June 15. It's a tune reminiscent of a Marty Robbins story song, and one of nine originals from Koenic's bag of songs. Mark Koenic has a smooth delivery with just enough of a rough edge to give his voice that extra attractiveness. There are other tunes here which stand out as well as "Trail Of Tears", they are, "Your Turn To Fall," a fun song, and "Evening Star", something more serious and effective with the potential of being the next single release. "It's A Big World" and "Don't She Get Lucky" are both uptempo tunes where Koenic gets a chance to demonstrate his vocal stylings. The title song is a poignant story song which might be a little too deep for single status, but shows the artist's enormous talent and versatility.

The only non-roiginal cut on the album is a cover of Nat King Cole's "Pretend". Although this type of song may go over well on stage, it is out of character with the rest of the album, and might have been better left off.

"The Lonesome Kind" is still a great debut for Mark Koenic, and with backing musicians such as dobroist Jerry Douglas, Jeff Bradshaw's steel guitar and Mark O'Connor's fiddle playing,it should have an impact on the market for Koenic.

Birthdays

Born July 3rd. 1958, in Greenville, South Carolina, Arron Tippin broke onto the country music scene early this year with His debut album on the BMG label titled "You've Got To Stand For Something". It was also the first single and was played extensively during the Persian Gulf conflict.

This is a song with a strong message. As a writer, Arron's songs recorded by other artist include, "Something With A Ring To It" (mark Collie), and "Whole Lot Of Love On The Line (Charley Pride) to name a few.

Arron Toppin celebrates his 33rd birthday today.

Until next week, keep whistling.

'Field of Dreams' airs on CTV

BY BOB REMINGTON

Here's a clever piece of programming: On the eve of baseball's All-Star Game, CTV airs "Field of Dreams" (Monday, July 8), the 1989 fantasy starring Kevin Costner as an Iowa farmer who hears a voice urging him to build a baseball diamond in the middle of his cornfield.

It may sound corny, but "Field of Dreams" is a charmer that makes you want to go outside and toss the old apple around the backyard. Amy Madigan, James Earl Jones and Burt Lancaster also star in this adaptation of a W.P. Kinsella book in which the farmer tries to bring the legendary Shoeless Joe Jackson back for a game.

• Less appealing on CTV is "The Golden Child" (airing Sunday, July 7), a not-so-golden 1986 attempt to blend Eddie Murphy's sassy comedy into an adventure film.

Murphy stars as a Los Angeles social worker who is startled to discover that a group of foreigners believe he is "the chosen one" sent to save the world for a thousand future generations. Murphy's task, according to the Neching Oracle, is to save a "golden child," who has been kidnapped. The search takes Murphy on an odyssey to remote parts of China and to the gates of hell. It tries to be Spielberg, but it isn't.

• On Thursday, July 11, CTV airs part two of "The Paper Man," a six-part miniseries continuing weekly through Aug. 8. The Australian miniseries stars John Bach as a media mogul based on newspaper baron Rupert Murdoch.

• On Wednesday, July 10, CBC airs the two-hour pilot episode of "Capital News," a U.S. series about a Washington Post-like newspaper that stars Lloyd Bridges as the editor. The series runs Wednesday nights throughout the summer.

• In sports, baseball's All-Star Game airs Tuesday night, July 9, on CTV from Toronto's SkyDome. CBC kicks off another year of CFL football with Toronto at Ottawa on Tuesday, July 9. With Bruce McNall, Wayne Gretzky and John Candy buying the Argos and paying a record salary to Raghib "Rocket" Ismail, it should be quite a season. On Sunday, July 7, CBS has the 132nd running of North America's oldest continuous stakes race, the Queen's Plate. "Canada's Kentucky Derby" will be run at Woodbine Race Track at Etobicoke, Ont.

THURSDAY

Correspondent Bob Simon, who was captured and imprisoned in Iraq during the Gulf War, returns to Baghdad in a CBS News special airing Thursday, July 4. Simon will report on the aftermath of the war in Iraq and Kuwait, as well as on how it changed the shape of Middle East politics.

Your Week Ahead Horoscope

Forecast Period: July 14 - July 20, 1991

ARIES Mar. 21-Apr. 19	Watch your pocketbook. Someone may try to pick it. Too much organization will hide your creativity. Be spontaneous.
TAURUS Apr. 20-May 20	Romance is apt to take a rocky course. The important thing is honesty— this is no time for playing games.
GEMINI May 21-June 20	Financial problems loom ominously. Don't be afraid to ask for financial help. Your time will come, be patient.
CANCER June 21-July 22	Give more attention to details. Don't put off that home improvement project any longer. Significant other needs your support.
LEO July 23-Aug. 22	Someone you care about is in need of your help. All that will be asked of you is a little time. Be generous. It will come back to you.
VIRGO Aug. 23-Sept. 22	Young person will benefit from your experience. Don't allow increase in income to go to your head. Practicality in all things will be more beneficial.
LIBRA Sept. 23-Oct. 23	Unusual stress load may get you down. Take time for yourself. Go shopping, take a walk, see a movie. Whatever you do, make sure it's for you.
SCORPIO Oct. 23-Nov. 21	Be optimistic. Negative outlook will only cause more problems. Home life will improve and co-workers will notice a difference.
SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 21	Good time to introduce that new idea at work. Those in high places will recognize your creativity. Romantic rendevous should be postponed.
CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 19	Someone unexpected re-enters your life. Take the time to enjoy his visit. Valuable support from family comes when you need it.
AQUARIUS Jan. 20-Feb. 18	You may be used as a sounding board. Co-workers want your input. Close friends need your advice. Be careful how you deal with them.
PISCES Feb. 19-Mar. 20	Financial dilemma could be solved. Take advice from experts. Loved one cares enough to make a nuisance out of himself.

Fox's Just One Night is just too much; The KLF offers accessible dance tracks

Samantha Fox--Just One Night

In fact, even uttering her name in the same sentence as the word "talent" is tantamount to dangerously stretching the boundaries of reality. What more can be said about a performer (yes, that's a better word) who has to hire someone to write her songs for her?

But perhaps I am being too harsh. Surely, there must be some artistic merit underneath that skimpy exterior?

After all, Ms. Fox did play a part in penning three of the dozen songs on this latest dance-dance offering; and she has certainly displayed a startling talent for removing her clothing for magazines, posters, and the occasional children's telethon.

Just kidding about that last one, but one has to wonder exactly where this woman's head is. Although most of the songs are written by someone or something known only as "Full Force", each track displays a more or less equal measure of standard beat, inane sentimentality and, above all, sexual provocation.

I'm not saying the lady should necessarily sing about homeless children or the rainforest, but isn't Samantha Fox exactly what the feminist movement fought so hard against 20 years ago?

Enough said. With such titles as "(Hurt Me! Hurt Me!) But the Pants Stay On", "Pleasure Zone" and "More More More", most serious audiophiles will find Just One Night just too much to stomach.

(BMG/Jive)

The KLF--The White Room

Off the beaten track but accessible, The White Room is a grab bag of high tech dance tunes that has already begun to make waves in the United Kingdom.

Currently riding the Top 10 charts abroad, the North Americna debut album should appeal to both the borderline alternative market here, as well as to the generally innocuous tastes of the dance scene.

Without question, the best of the bunch is the first single, "3 A.M. Eternal"--which packs power and precision, despite the fact it is recorded live. But then, "live" music is a relative term in the Milli Vanilli millennium, and the clarity of this particular track may well be a little too good to be true.

The second single, the also-live "Last Train to Trancentral" is equally strong, while the remainder of the tracks range from rap to straightforward Eurodance.

An unusual band to say the least, the KLF has also been known at various times by such monikers as the Timelords and the Jams.

Identity crisis notwithstanding, the KLF is a solid contemporary outfit, but only as purveyors of "product". Those who prefer lean guitar and other archaic instruments will not be impressed.

Trooper, Minglewood to rock the Causeway

Causeway park will be rocking this Friday when two popular Canadian artists take the stage in an open-air musical extravaganza.

Vancouver-based rock band Trooper will headline a double bill that also features Maritime music legend Matt Minglewood, starting at 7 p.m.

The band is best known for such 1970s hits as "Raise a Little Hell", "We're Here For a Good Time (Not a Long Time)", and "The Boys in the Bright White Sports Car".

Although they broke up in the early 1980s, Trooper got back together a few years ago. Since then, they have been enjoying some success on the comeback trail, particularly with their latest album "Last of the Gypsies", which spawned the single "Boy With the Beat."

They have played two Bathurst club dates since 1989, managing to pack the house on both occasions.

Matt Minglewood has also proved a consistently popular draw card and was most recently in town for a well-attended performance last year.

After eight albums and 14 years of touring from his native Cape Breton to Vancouver, Minglewood has rejuvenated his long and illustrious country-rock career with The Promise.

The country-rock legend will open the show for Trooper, which should get the procession underway on a high note.

Gates open at 5 p.m., with the concert starting at 7 p.m.

Tickets are $13 at the gate, or $10 in advance, available at Lotto Seven, the Book Village, Lounsburys, and J.L. Convenience.

J. L. CONVENIENCE VIDEO REVIEW

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON

Kindergarten Cop

Since embarking on his film career, Arnold Schwarzenegger has gracefully evolved from being a hulkish movie curiosity to being the consistent king of the one-liner.

He flexes his comedic muscle again in Kindergarten Cop, an ulikely but entertaining vehicle for Arnold, who plays a police detective gone undercover as a kindergarten teacher.

Once there, he must figure out which of the brats is the son of a druglord, whose wife has decided the family unit would get along a whole lot better far away from daddy.

Again, the kindergarten setting is unlikely premise, and Arnold sometimes looks out of place; but overall, it's a refreshing change from his early semi-literate action flicks.

There's still plenty of action to be had, but those who could never have brought themselves to see Total Recall will probably be surprised at how much they enjoy this film.

Green Card

Score one for the actors considered too ugly to be leading men. There is hope.

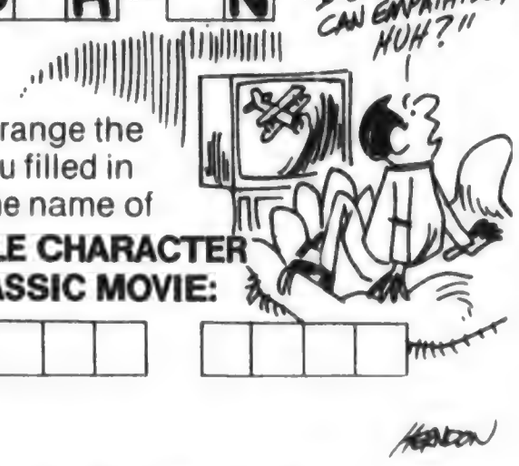
French movie marvel Gerard Depardieu may not look like North American audiences' idea of a proper leading man; but Richard Gere could never have pulled this film off.

Nor could he have won the heart of Andie McDowell as endearingly as Depardieu does in this wonderful outing from Peter Weir, the director of Dead Poets Society.

Depardieu plays a rather uncouth Frenchman in need of an immigration green card. In order to do it, he enters into a marriage of convenience with a rather over-couth Andie McDowell (Sex, Lies and Videotape).

Depardieu may not necessarily be physically attractive in the way Gere or any other typical leading man may be, but it's easy to see why the French consider him a national treasurer.

The range of emotions he projects and the charm he puts into his role prove he is simply an excellent actor.



As for Andie McDowell, she is radiant as always, and, from Sex, Lives and Videotape on, has shown her adaptability in terms of projecting on-screen chemistry and projecting the ultimate uptight American.

Lots of fun and well worth seeing.

Jim Kaat fondly recalls his own All-Star days

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM

Vote early and often.

That time-honored piece of advice may be a bit outmoded when it comes to municipal elections, but there's one election to which it still applies – the election by

Jim Kaat

We recently discovered however, that one knowledgeable fan of the game, Jim Kaat who pitched in the major leagues for 25 years (1959-83) and still spends nearly every evening at the ballpark – has yet to fill out a fan ballot.

"I never have," says Kaat, who broadcasts for the Minnesota Twins and is paired with Dick Stockton on one of CBS's major-league broadcast teams. "Maybe I should."

Baseball's "62nd All-Star Game" airs Tuesday, July 9 from Toronto's SkyDome. Tim McCarver and Jack Buck will be calling the game. Kaat will be participating in the pregame show and expects to be providing brief interviews with players during the game.

Kaat declines to name the players he would vote for, except to cite Tony Gwynn of the San Diego Padres as an example of a deserving All-Star. Kaat also mentions that, if he were picking the American League team, Nolan Ryan, who recently pitched a no-hitter at age 44, would be on it. "I'd put him in for an inning," he says. "That's what the game is all about."

Kaat participated in three All-Star Games himself. His most memorable?

"My first (in 1962)," he says. "I was 23, and I was on the team with guys like Yogi Berra – people I grew up watching. And my last (in 1975), because I was 36 and hadn't expected to be chosen."

Kaat sees no significance in who wins the game. "It's an exhibition game," he says. "If you were playing to win, you'd leave the pitchers in longer."

The fact that it isn't a play-to-win game is one of its charms. "Baseball gives you the opportunity to continue being a kid," says Kaat. "And you see that in the All-Star Game. This is the game where you see the players smiling."

One of the less welcome changes in the game in recent years is a growing hostility between the fans and players, possibly caused by fan resentment of player salaries and intense media scrutiny of the players. Kaat has no objection to heckling, mind you, as long as it's done with some wit.

"I used to have fun with the guys in the bleachers in Chicago," he recalls. "I was about 42, and they'd ask me if I was playing and collecting Social Security too.

Au revoir aux finissant(e)s de l'ESN

White's Wharf argument heard

City council will consider arguments against the proposed civic centre's Douglas Avenue site, but at least one councillor was skeptical.

George Astle

George (Buster) Astle addressed Monday's regular public meeting in hopes of pursuading council to rethink its decision to build the multi-million dollar civic centre on Douglas Avenue.

It's an argument council has heard before, but Mr. Astle cited Canada Day traffic congestion as a prime example of the problems building on Douglas Avenue would incur.

He also said he believes the project would have a negative environmental impact on the Bathurst basin.

He feels the 13-acre area known as White's Wharf, located near the corner of Main and St. Andrew Streets, is a more appropriate site, and should have been given greater consideration from council.

White's Wharf was the favored site in a 1988 study conducted by the Bathurst Arena Committee, which included city councillor Keith Loupelle.

Mr. Loupelle has since explained the condition of the soil and the subsequent development costs have since led the committee to change its mind about Billy White's Wharf. The site is mostly filled with a combination of gravel and wood.

According to a 1990 site evaluation report, about $5.1 million of the property's $6.1 million price tag would go toward development; the cost of the Douglas Avenue site, including development, is about $2.4 million.

Mr. Astle disputed these figures, but councillor Ross Aube, who headed the site selection committee, stood by them.

"If (the consultants) say it will cost $5 million to fill it, I believe them," he said in response to Mr. Astle's presentation.

To Mr. Astle's suggestion that the White's Wharf property could be filled piece by piece on a gradual basis, Mr. Aube retorted, "The sight might be underwater if we don't fill it right away."

When Mr. Astle compared anticipated costs for both properties in square footage, Mr. Aube told him if the cost per square foot were the most important consideration, "then we should have put it in Coronation Park."

The city already owns the park, which was recommended as the best location in a Halifax consultants' report. However, the site was rejected, mainly due to a petition circulated by residents concerned about the loss of green space.

Councillor Keith Loupelle, an ardent supporter of the need for a civic centre, was absent from Monday's meeting. Councillor Gordon Kenny also missed Mr. Astle's presentation, having declared a possible conflict of interest and left the room.

Mr. Kenny owns a property on the Douglas Avenue site on which the centre is to be built.

Health follow-up and shutdown on tap

Smelter workers who tested poorly in a series of medical examinations last year will undergo follow-up testing this fall.

"I would think this would provide the final answers in terms of (their) health," said Richard Faucher, vice-president of the Smelting Division of Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp. Ltd.

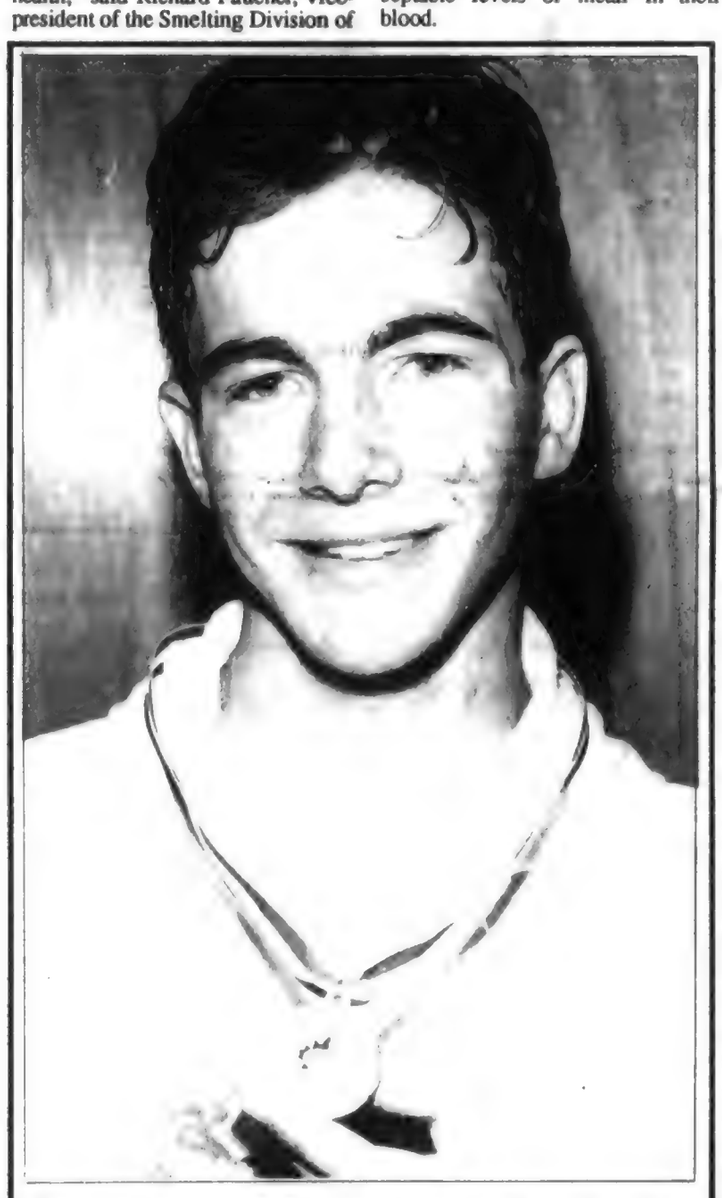
In a 1990 independent health investigation by the Occupational Health and Safety Commission, 110 workers were found to have unacceptable levels of metal in their blood.

The investigation, led by Dr. Rosemary Marchant, an occupational health physician from Dalhousie University, had been recommended in a McGill University study of health conditions at the Belledune plant.

A follow-up to that investigation is planned, but not for the entire workforce. Only the aforementioned 110 will be involved in further testing this September.

Mr. Faucher said the testing could last until December, with the results to be announced in early 1992.

"Beyond that, it becomes a question of what we can do (for these workers)," he said, adding it will have to be decided at that time what measures can be taken to protect the health of the employees.



A number of recommendations stemming from the original investigation have been implemented, but Mr. Faucher feels workers' concerns about health and safety still need to be addressed.

The company hopes to once again have the best specialists in the field working on the follow-up study, Mr. Faucher added.

Meanwhile, the smelter operations will shut down for a month for a period of routine maintenance.

The shut-downm effective Saturday, will affect the the entire plant, but it was not known Tuesday how many workers would be off work while maintenance is being carried out.

Only those whose job description involves maintenance work will remain on the job for the four weeks.

Christian Roy of Beresford, displaying the gold medal won at the International Junior Wrestling Festival in Alma, Quebec last week. (Northern Light Photo)

The 17 year-old Beresford youth, ranked 29th in the world before the event, claimed the 54 kilogram Greco-style title by defeating Ken Spitnagle of New York, the world's second-ranked wrestler, in the International Junior Wrestling Festival.

About 200 people waited anxiously near his home Sunday for his arrival, which was followed by an appearance at the town hall for the signing of the guest book, then off to a reception in Christian's honor at the Sportek.

Christian, the son of Ligouri Roy, also finished seventh in the Freestyle portion of the event, while fellow Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit Olympic Wrestling Club teammates André Couture and Emery Roy also performed admirably. Couture earned a very respectable fourth place finish in Greco and sixth in Freestyle, while Roy fought his way to an eighth place finish in Greco.

Christian fought three matches before facing the American in the final, one which, according to some people at the tournament, he should not even have been in. But like a true champion, those comments weren't about to hamper his most spectacular performance to date.

"I don't really follow (the rankings) at all, and I don't believe in odds," he told The Northern Light Monday, adding his confidence wasn't disrupted in the least by the negative comments of others.

But then, winning is somewhat of a way of life for the Grade 12 ESN student, who lost only one match this year and finished first among all wrestlers in the New Brunswick Interscolastic Athletic Association's points race. He also finished second overall among high school- and university-level athletes combined.

Christian, who won the event in only his first year of junior eligibility, credits his success to his coach, Michel Côté, who has also guided the school team to four straight NBIAA AAA wrestling titles.

"He's really good; I don't think I'd want another coach. He's one of the best in Canada," Christian said.

For his work, Côté was honored at the international event with a Medal of Appreciation, for his dedication and contributions over the years in a coaching capacity.

Christian would like to thank the Richelieu Club for its financial aid, helping to make the trip possible.

New director chosen

A native of Moncton, Mr. Boudreau has worked for the city of Bathurst since 1985, when he accepted a position as program coordinator for Parks and Rec.

He has since moved up within the department, to supervisor of programs; and fulfilled the duties of department head on several occasions in Mrs. Carter-Rose's absence.

Among the priorities Mr. Boudreau plans to address, the implementation of the Tourism Masterplan is at the forefront.

The five-year plan is close to being finalized, and will be presented to council for consideration in the near future.

"Once the Masterplan has been brought to council and accepted, I think there are a lot of recommendations that will be a challenge to implement," Mr. Boudreau told The Northern Light Monday, adding, "There are a lot of neat concepts (in the plan) that will be new to the city."

He will also keep a close watch on the developments surrounding the proposed civic centre, the operation of which will require input from his department.

The maintenance and improvement of services and facilities, particularly those affecting the city's handicapped population, will also get his attention; while he also plans to take a serious look at a park-linkage system currently showing signs of success throughout Canada.

The system uses trails to form a link between parks, and is an idea that has been suggested as a means of connecting Coronation and Causeway Parks; doing so would allow the public to move from one area to another without having to deal with traffic, Mr. Boudreau explained.

Mr. Boudreau, 30, is married to Annette Boudreau. The couple lives in Bathurst and has a two-year old daughter, Danie.

Mines strive for efficiency

Brunswick Mines may follow in the footsteps of Brunswick Smelter by implementing a restructuring plan, but not necessarily an identical one.

"A restructuring doesn't necessarily mean you're going to have a bunch of lost jobs," mine manager Jim Schnarr told The Northern Light Monday.

"The exercise is just to see how we can operate more efficiently."

Brunswick Mining and Smelting's Smelter Division in Belledune announced last week it will implement a restructuring plan that will result in 100 layoffs.

The purpose of the plan is to cut costs and allow the company to become competitive again. Brunswick Mining and Smelting has not been in such a position lately, because of decreasing lead prices and a recent 10-month strike.

At the mine, employees were informed that a restructuring scheme may also affect them. Mr. Schnarr indicated Monday a final decision may be announced in August.

"We're going to look at how we're organized, and see if a restructuring is necessary," he said, adding a plan to increase productivity is ahead of schedule, but world metal prices remain depressed.

"If anything, I think prices have dropped (more) in the last month."

Four-lane bridge work begun

Preliminary work on a possible expansion of the Village Bridge has indeed begun.

"This is the first phase," said Department of Transportation Minister Sheldon Lee, referring to soil testing being conducted along the Village Bridge.

District highway engineer Michel Lacroix reported last month that work crews were carrying out routine maintenance on the bridge.

However, motorists may have noticed heavy equipment stationed by the bridge in the past month. Mr. Lee confirmed in a telephone interview Tuesday that the work is indeed related to the proposed expansion.

The project, proposed to the provincial legislature by Bathurst MLA Paul Kenny in 1989, involves expanding the bridge from two lanes to four. This would be done to facilitate the flow of traffic by eliminating the bottleneck leading to the bridge.

Mr. Lee said the testing will continue over the next few weeks, after which a design will be drawn up for a new bridge.

Once that is completed, the province will look for a way to fund the project.

Mr. Lee noted that whatever the work costs will have to be covered entirely by the province, as no federal funds exist for such projects.

Off for four-month stay in Cameroon

"I'll be working with handicapped children at a mission hospital," said the 27 year-old employee of the Bathurst branch of the Extra-Mural Hospital.

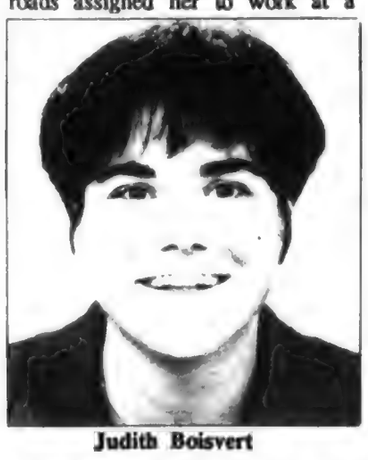
She will leave Bathurst in September for a four-month stay in the country of Cameroon.

The purpose of the trip is to give the participants a better understanding of a different culture, and to assist in their appointed country's development.

"My knowledge (as an occupational therapist) will be helpful," she said, explaining the reason Crossroads assigned her to work at a hospital in Cameroon.

In order to qualify for the trip, Ms. Boisvert had to submit a formal application to local coordinator Alphée Boudreau, who later interviewed her.



The interview was to determine whether she had the skills, the interest and the knowledge necessary to take part.

Next comes a national orientation weekend in Toronto. There, she will learn more about Cameroon.

"I'm looking forward to it," she said.

Part of her responsibilities involves raising $2,000, representing 20 per cent of the cost of her trip. Part of this has already been acquired through a committee set up by Mr. Boudreau. But some funds remain to be found.

Anyone wishing to make a donation, in order to help Ms. Boisvert get the most of this educational experience, is asked to contact Alphée Boudreau at 783-3256.

LOCAL VOLUNTEERS HONORED

Three members of the Gloucester Bathurst Branch of The Arthritis Society were recently presented awards during the annual general meeting of the New Brunswick Division held in Tracadie. Certificates of Appreciation were presented to Margaret Demmings, chairman of the patient aids committee, and to president Tony Harwood, while an Award of Merit was presented to Silvana Bosca for having contributed at least 10 years of distinguished service at either the Branch or Division level. From left are Marc Richard of the New Brunswick Division, making the presentations to Ms. Demmings, Mr. Harwood, and Ms. Bosca.

Accreditation for NBCC program

The two-year program of industrial engineering technology offered by the Bathurst campus of the New Brunswick Community College recently received accreditation for a five-year period from the New Brunswick Society of Certified Engineering Technicians and Technologists.

According to a press release, the accreditation of technological programs is a periodic revision process carried out by professionals employed in related industries or institutions. The process is designed to ensure that a program attains or surpasses certain criteria to assure that both the public and the related industry are adequately served. This exercise also stimulates updating and improvements of course content, laboratories, teaching and evaluation methods and equipment. Accreditation also encourages continued development of the teaching body.

Unique to New Brunswick, the French-only industrial engineering technology program is designed to form specialists in work organization in industrial circles, that is in planning, quality control, furnishing, investment choices, study methods, work supervision as well as mechanical conception and manufacture.

Teaching the program at the Bathurst campus are AbdelHafid Sabir, Ing.M.B.A., Pierre Maillet, C.E.T., and Charles Eudor Boudreau, Doc. Ing.Ing.P. The team is headed by Jocelyn Doucet, chief of the industrial sector.

$15,000 RICHER

Dea DeGrace of Bathurst was the lucky grand prize winner in the Bathurst Marina Lottery Draw held June 19, worth $15,000. Mrs. DeGrace chose cash over a choice of one of three vehicles. The second prize winner of a Sea Doo was Gladys Buraglia of Bathurst, while the third place winner of $4,000 was Clarence O'Hearn, also of Bathurst. Don Comeau sold the grand prize-winning ticket, earning him $1,000. (Northern Light Photo)

Beresford fatality case goes to trial

A trial date for a man accused of causing the death of a Beresford youngster will likely be scheduled for late 1991.

A July 3 preliminary hearing, held before provincial court judge Camille Dumas, determined enough evidence exists to proceed with trial against Claude McLaughlin, 31, of Nigadoo, said Chief Ed Huzulak of the BNPP regional police force.

McLaughlin is charged with operating a motor vehicle while impaired by drugs or alcohol, and causing the Feb. 21 death of 11 year-old Kelly Young of Beresford.

Following the preliminary hearing, the matter was referred to the Court of Queen's Bench, which will set a trial date.

Chief Huzulak said the trial will likely be held in October or November of this year.

C. Gordon Sheppard, P. Eng.

Hector J. Jacques, M. Eng., P. Eng., Chairman and CEO of the Jacques Whitford Group of Companies, is pleased to announce that C. Gordon Sheppard, P. Eng., has been appointed Manager of UNIC Consultants (1986) Ltd. in Bathurst, New Brunswick. Gordon obtained his Bachelor of Engineering in Mining Engineering from the Technical University of Nova Scotia after completing his pre-engineering at Mount Allison in Sackville, New Brunswick. Gordon joined the Mining Division of Jacques Whitford and Associates Limited in 1984 and has worked in the Dartmouth head office since that time. In his new position, he will manage UNIC's new office and laboratory building in the Bathurst Industrial Park, in addition to providing professional engineering services.

Jacques Whitford is an employee owned, multi-disciplinary engineering and environmental consulting firm which operates from fourteen offices in Atlantic Canada, Quebec, and Ontario. Professional services are offered through four major divisions: Environmental, Geotechnical, Mining, and Materials Testing and Research. Professionals in each of these divisions work closely together to provide timely and top quality services in all their endeavours.

Church group headed to Russia

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

Members of the Bathurst Christian Fellowship Church are looking forward to a trip to Russia, despite problems that will likely arise.

"There's a language barrier, obviously," said Brian Creary, one of seven local people involved in Estonia '91, a project sponsored mainly by the Apostolic Church of Pentecost.

Mr. Creary has a degree in Russian Studies, and speaks Russian; but where they are headed, the native language is Estonian.

Still, it isn't expected to be much of a problem.

"It will be difficult, but there will be (interpreters) there at all times."

Mr. Creary will leave Bathurst Aug. 5, along with Mark and Christine LeBlanc, Shannon Murray, Colleen Theriault, Angie Mazerolle and Fred Jennings.

The main purpose of their voyage is to give the people of Estonia an increased exposure to the gospel.

They will do that in a variety of ways, including street drama, illustrated banners, and the distribution of bibles.

The four young ladies of the group are also working on an interpretive dance, Mr. Creary said in an interview.

While there, they also plan to give out Canadian flag lapel pins supplied to them by Acadie-Bathurst MP Doug Young.

"Just the fact that there are a lot of people over there who will give their lives to the Lord; there's a hunger there."

Their activities will be centred mainly in the capital city of Tallinn, with the participation of any local church "that is considered to be a Christian church."

They will be working in hospitals, prisons and churches of various denominations throughout Estonia.

The project comes at a time when Communist policies are just loosening their oppressive grip on Christian practices.

But what was once illegal is now being actively sought out by many faith-hungry Estonians; that's one of the reasons Mr. Creary and Mark LeBlanc are looking forward to the trip.

"Just the fact that there are a lot of people over there who will give their lives to the Lord; there's a hunger there," Mr. LeBlanc said.

He expects the experience to be equally beneficial to himself and his friends.

"It will change everyone personally; it will give us all a deeper understanding of what it's like to give your life to Jesus," he said.

"But we still don't know what to expect."

Rain needed to save farmers' crops

Mr. Archibald, president of the New Brunswick Federation of Agriculture, told farmers at a press conference that the province is facing a very difficult situation this summer, and if rains do not develop soon many crops will be lighter than normal.

"The situation for livestock producers is critical now," he said. "In some cases, forage crops such as alfalfa, grasses and hay are reduced by as much as 50 percent because of winter kill and the almost drought conditions in May and June. Some areas of the province have been hit harder than others and forage is at a premium now. Unless we get an adequate amount of rain soon, the second and third cuts of forage just won't be there."

Archibald said there is hay and grasses that normally are not harvested and he would like the owners of these lands to make them available to livestock producers. He said anyone with a quantity of hay that will not be used should contact the federation office at 452-8101, and attempts will be made to put them in contact with producers who need the livestock feed.

"I am very concerned about our strawberry and vegetable producers who do not have irrigation," he said. "The situation is critical at this time for the development of crops such as berries, apples and vegetables. Some berry producers have had an almost total loss of their fields because the crops needed rain that never arrived. Potato growers I talked to during the week are also wondering if their crop will shape up. The next two weeks are critical as the potatoes set the crop for fall harvest."

Archibald said producers will have a loss of income for the year and can ill afford that at this time.

"It is critical to us now that a new Livestock Feed Development Agreement between New Brunswick and Ottawa be finalized as soon as possible. The agreement in place for this year expires on March 31, 1992, and farmers need to know if a new one is to be on line so they can plan land work to take advantage of it," he said.

"I believe all federal/provincial agreements will have to be used to assist producers over the problems this summer is causing in crop losses."

He said the New Brunswick Federation of Agriculture will be meeting both federal and provincial officials in a policy conference in August and he wants to see discussions on safety net programs for producers as well as ways to cut red tape and paperwork on applications for on-farm projects. Other issues to be raised will include land use policies, agricultural chemicals and other programs for farmers.

Dust problem to be addressed

A recent protest by Miramichi Avenue homeowners proved just how unhappy they are with gravel trucks travelling through the area, leaving piles of dust in their wake.

A follow-up came at Monday's public council meeting, when city councillor Harvey Boucher wanted to know what could be done for the disgruntled homeowners.

He also wanted to know why permission had been given to use a gravel pit in a residential area, but was told the pit in question is in a rural zone and has been in use for years.

But Mr. Freimanis assured councillor Boucher he would discuss the matter with district highway engineer Michel Lacroix, and report back to council with the results of the meeting.

Meanwhile, city council will look for a way to keep public beaches free of broken bottles, empty cans, and dead seabirds.

Councillor Boucher was concerned about such debris along the beach in the Caron Point area; city councillors agreed it's a problem that merits attention.

Although funds for beach clean-up have not been provided for in the current budget, councillors agreed such funds should be considered in next year's budget exercise.

Encroachment acknowledged

The city will not be responsible for any injuries or damage to property on a portion of a downtown restaurant that sits on city property.

City council passed a resolution Monday to the effect that it acknowledges a staircase and canopy in front of the House of Lee restaurant encroaches on city property.

But while council agreed to accept the fact, it will not accept any damage or personal injuries that may occur on the staircase.

The conditions were implemented based on a report from Planning and Development Director Marc Bouffard, and on a suggestion from councillor Claire Wilt that the city should protect itself from personal liability cases as well.

Meanwhile, it took a small formality at Monday's council meeting to improve the city's Planning and Development department.

Although his job description does not change, Donald McLaughlin was given the title of Building Inspector by a vote of council.

The title gives him authority to sign building permits, both in the presence and the absence of Building Inspector Lucien Cormier.

City manager Bob Bouchard told council the move was made in an effort to enhance the department's services.

As it is, Mr. McLaughlin already performs building inspection duties; Monday's appointment was "just formalizing the title," he said.

Switching financial roles may spell end of Medicare

Vic Parsons

By VIC PARSONS
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

It's an unaccountable irony, when committees are bustling about the country searching for ways to unify Canadians, that the federal government is hotly pursuing a move that will weaken the links.

Since 1986, Ottawa has moved unilaterally to slash cash payments to the provinces for Medicare and post-secondary education, pushing a greater burden for these services onto the junior governments.

These cash transfers total $7.95 billion this fiscal year, Finance Department figures show. Ottawa is also transferring taxing powers worth $12.4 billion to the provinces and territories, for a total of more than $20 billion.

By 1995-96, the cash payments will have fallen to $5.4 billion, and the tax transfers will be worth $16.7 billion. After that, federal support will grow at the same rate as the economy, minus three per cent.

When Medicare was established in 1966, Ottawa paid half the bills. Now, the federal share--both cash and tax transfers--is less than 40 per cent.

Note that when taxing powers are transferred, Ottawa lowers its tax rates and lets the province step in to take up the vacated space. The provinces get the money and also take the heat from grumbling taxpayers.

There's room for cynicism here when federal ministers go about criticizing provincial counterparts for increasing their spending faster than Ottawa, but what does this mean for the programs?

Concern is mounting among health-care groups and others that Ottawa's haste to dump its financial role will spell the end of a national Medicare system.

DIFFERENT SYSTEMS

The National Council of Welfare, a federal advisory group, has argued the result could be 12 "vastly different provincial and territorial Medicare systems."

Regional disparities would be magnified. Residents of poor provinces would receive health care inferior to those fortunate enough to dwell in the richer parts of Canada, the council said.

Federal payments to the provinces and territories will be eliminated in 17 years, the agency predicted. While Finance's figures do not show such a steep rate of decline, the trend is basically the same.

(The council says Ontario will be out of luck 10 years from now, Quebec will get nothing after 1995-96, and New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia will see their cash payments disappear in 15 years.)

True, former finance minister Michael Wilson pledged in his last budget that Ottawa would withhold cash payments in other sectors to provinces that fail to uphold national Medicare standards. Federal governments in the past had kept cowardly provinces in line by threatening to hold back money.

But the council pointed out this cudgel would be gone once Ottawa ducked out of making cash payments. Health care delivery is a provincial power, it noted. "It is only the federal spending power that allowed federal involement in this area, and it is difficult to imagine how Ottawa could continue to maintain its presence once the money for Medicare dries up."

CHALLENGE LIKELY

As for Wilson's threat to hold back cash for programs other than health care, the council says the provinces would hardly let this go unchallenged. The prospect of the Mother of All Supreme Court Battles looms.

The council reminds us that federal funding was the carrot that coaxed the provinces into a national Medicare plan. It was also the "lever" that deterred doctors and hospitals from charging their patients fees on the spot.

In retrospect, the warnings 15 years ago of two legends of Canadian politics bear repeating. Both former provincial premiers who were very much involved in the early days of Medicare, they questioned a move by the Liberal government of the day to cap its spending on the programs.

Robert Stanfield, then opposition leader and a former Nova Scotia premier, cried "treachery." He told the Commons the provinces feared that the federal government would launch the programs, "run around the country pounding their chests, proclaiming the great thing they had done, and then saddle the provinces with the cost."

New Democrat Tommy Douglas, once Saskatchewan's premier, added: "We are now witnessing a betrayal of these commitments and a determination to shift the burden to the provinces."

The death by a thousand cuts they foresaw seems nearer than ever. Unfortunately, the end could be the erosion of national programs many have fought for and boldly defended over the years.

Tourist destination: Home

At last, summer vacation! Let's pack up the car, lock up the house and head for our vacation destination--Moncton, P.E.I. or maybe out West.

Hey, but wait a minute. If we're so busy trying to get people to spend their tourist dollars in the Chaleur Region, why are we leaving?

Imagine the impact on our economy if we spent 'our' dollars in this area.

Nothing to do you say? Try some of these. Atlas Park offers a variety of activities for outdoor enthusiasts. From scuba diving to pedal boats to fishing and it works on a user pay basis so there's no charge to go and enjoy the beautiful nature path. And while we're on the subject, how about a leisurely walk down Daly Point.

When is the last time you took in Papineau Falls, Teteagouche Falls or the beautiful Nigadoo Falls? Are these not similar attractions to those we rush to see in other areas?

If you have a little money to spend why not get the family all dressed up and go to one of our many fine restaurants. Be it for breakfast, lunch or dinner, you'll be treated just as well as a tourist and you won't have to travel as far.

If none of this is challenging enough, why not charter a boat and go deep sea fishing, take flying lessons, learn how to golf or windsurf.

When you come down to it, vacations are meant for relaxing, refreshing and distracting us from the daily routine. Just slowing down the pace can make all the difference in the world.

And even if all you do is lay back and watch a few movies, the popcorn, the snacks and the movie rentals will all mean money spent here. Money which business people can then invest in attracting tourist to our tourist destination.

Moncton not only Hub, but whole wheel

July 8

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my opinion concerning our dependency on the southern part of the province, especially Moncton.

If it wasn't for Moncton we would be in a bad situation. Take for instance when you need parts for your vehicle and the dealer here hasn't got it. He will tell you he can order it from Moncton and it will probably be here by tomorrow. Or, if you are looking for a certain model in a car and they don't have it, they will tell you they can check in Moncton.

Most of our groceries and soft drinks come from Moncton. Unemployment Insurance forms and checks come from Moncton. Our big university is in Moncton. Our big hospital with all the specialists is in Moncton. I could go on and on.

If you have any major problem with your health--for example, a badly broken leg or arm, bad burns, a heart problem or anything requiring the use of a Cat Scan--you have to go to the local emergency ward, then go to Moncton.

Incidently, I had to take my wife down last week for a Cat Scan and going down that way, just before you get to Newcastle, they were digging the roads again. And they have a big sign which reads: Building Better Roads. For who? I guess for us so we can travel south to get what we need for our daily lives.

It would probably be a good idea to get after our government to do something about the "trails" we have every spring. We hear a lot about roads being in bad shape, but after they are all patched up you don't hear anything anymore. I don't think patches are the answer if we want business people to invest in this region. If we could at least get roads half as good as in McKenna's end of the province we'd be alright.

Finally, they call Moncton the Hub City. I think it's not only the hub, but the whole wheel.

Thanks from fire dept.

July 2

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the New Bandon-Salmon Beach Fire Department, I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped in the fire of Doug Knowles and family.

To the St. Anne Fire Department, which responded to mutual aid with two trucks and eight men, many thanks.

We'd also like to thank the Department of Natural Resources and Energy, for their loan of several men, three trucks, and three airplanes; to the friends and neighbors who helped in various ways under our command; and to my firefighters, who worked until midnight putting all the equipment back in service.

Special thanks to the Sparkies and others who brought sandwiches and refreshments to the fire hall.

Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

All kinds of tourists visited back in 1966

Silver Points

By SONIA-SIMARD CORMIER
News from 25 years ago.

July 14, 1966

According to reports, 622 tourists had registered at the Bathurst Jaycees' Tourist Information Bureau in the first two weeks of July, 1966, thus indicating a "terrific increase in tourist traffic in this area".

Located at the corner of Main Street and the Boulevard (now known as the corner of St. Peter Ave. and Harbourview Blvd.), the bureau reported that there were tourists from nine of Canada's 10 provinces, 30 states of the U.S. and also from foreign countries including Pakistan, England, Belgium, the Bahamas, Algeria and the Cameroons. One-third of the overall total were from the United States, with another third from the province of Quebec.

It would be interesting to compare these statistics with those of July 1991. Somehow I don't think 622 would seem quite so impressive.

I wonder if tourists to this area 25 years ago would have taken the time to pass a vehicle safety inspection provided free by the province's Motor Vehicle Branch.

Use of the 'Vehicle Safety Inspection Lane' was voluntary and served to make the driver aware of any defects his vehicle might have. The driver remained in his car, except for brake inspection, while a total of 38 points were checked. If the vehicle passed, the driver was given a sticker to place in his window.

Such inspections were no doubt the forerunner of the now mandatory yearly vehicle inspection, which I'm sure many will agree, is rarely cheap let alone free.

In addition to tourists and vehicle inspections, summer also brought the King Reid Show to Bathurst. I don't know if it's because I was much younger and therefore smaller, but I seem to remember the King Reid Show as much bigger and better than the shows we now get. There were more then just rides and games. There were side shows which added a unique element to the atmosphere which prevailed at the exhibition grounds.

And back then there was just one place you could buy cotton candy--at the fair. Now that was a treat!

The waterfront property, known as the Miller lot, situated at the town end of the station bridge, on the north side, and adjoining the Post Office, has been selected as the site for the new hotel building to be constructed in town to be known as the Chaleur Hotel.

No more conspicuous location for a hotel could have been secured. Standing right at the entrance to the town, the new hotel will represent a landmark visible practically from all points of the compass for miles around. As a matter of fact, if one can visualize the finished building, it is a simple matter to understand that the location selected represents the pivot of the whole countryside.

The cool breezes of the Bay Chaleur and the unexcelled beach at Salmon Beach are now being enjoyed by increasingly large numbers of town residents as well as by tourists since several attractive overnight camps, a dining and dance hall, and service station were erected recently by enterprising local men. A competent chef is in charge of the dining pavilion where meals and refreshments of all kinds may be obtained and dances are being provided on Tuesday and Friday evenings of each week. These are attracting large numbers of our younger set and have been keenly enjoyed.

The Department of Public Works Bridge Division key men and crew who have been working since about June 1 building a temporary bridge to carry heavy traffic over the Nepisiguit River at its mouth near the plant of the Bathurst Power and Paper Company, successfully moved the three steel trusses through spans a distance of 32 feet down river without mishap and with little or no holdup in the vehicular traffic early Friday morning.

The three spans have carried a heavy stream of traffic since the bridge was built in 1897 by the Kitchen Construction Company of Fredericton.

The new Ross Motors garage at East Bathurst, replacing that destroyed by fire last March 24, opened for business Monday of this week. Built of concrete blocks, the modern building is completely fireproof and is partitioned to accommodate business offices and parts department as well as general mechanical section. Contractor for the attractive 50 by 40 structure was Lucien DeGrace, proprietor of the business is Lazare Ross.

Burglars struck while an East Bathurst man read of thieves and murder and his family watched The Killers on television Saturday evening.

Thomas Buraglia was avidly enjoying the latest crime magazine featuring a short story of a woman alone in a house and a madman breaking in about 11 p.m. when he heard a noise in the basement of the house and decided to investigate.

As he descended the cellar steps, which contained a large supply of imported wines, he glimpsed an intruder crawling through a window. However, the burglar had been caught in the act and left his loot in the escape.

The next day, Mr. Buraglia nailed down the windows and locked every door.

Then, Tuesday morning, he discovered thieves had gained entrance again Monday night and taken approximately $90 worth of goods.

Bathurst Alpine Papermakers have complied with a request to send the W.G. Hardy Trophy, emblematic of Canadian Intermediate "A" hockey supremacy, to the Hockey Hall of Fame at Toronto.

The trophy, along with two large colored pictures of the papermaker team, was forwarded to Toronto last week. It will mark the first time the cup will be on display at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds - home of Hockey's Hall of Fame.

Topsoil should be preserved, not destroyed

The president of the New Brunswick Federation of Agriculture told a Bathurst press conference July 4 that the removal of valuable topsoil from fields for landscaping is destroying valuable agricultural land that will be needed by farmers in the future.

"Every year, thousands of truckloads of top soil is stripped from good farmland and used to landscape buildings. In some instances, the top soil is sold off and the field used as a gravel pit. This land is lost forever and future generations of farmers will be deprived of a valuable resource," said Rod Archibald, a resident of Canobie.

"The problem is evident around all major municipalities in New Brunswick and the situation is getting worse every year."

Mr. Archibald said the province of New Brunswick has no land control regulations in place to stop the practice but will need to implement some soon or the damage will be severe. He said people building homes often destroy topsoil that could be used to build the lawn when construction is underway. He said backfilling could as easily be done with materials not suitable for growing crops and builders could use more caution to stockpile the topsoil so it can be replaced at the site instead of the homeowner having to haul it in later.

"The New Brunswick Federation of Agriculture intends to discuss this with provincial Department of Agriculture officials at a policy conference later this summer. There must be some leadership from the Department of Agriculture and from the Department of Environment so adequate rules can be put in place to protect this land. There is lots of land unsuited to farming that should be used for subdivisions instead of prime fields. I know the owners of land want to get as much for it as possible, but at the same time we all must think about the future generations who will need food."

Archibald said there is a committee studying land use regulations for the province now but the process is a long term one and he believes something should be done about the topsoil removal very quickly. He said landscapers could use more underpadding of coarse materials to limit the amount of topsoil needed to do the job, and land deemed best for agriculture should never be stripped of its topsoil for any reason.

"This issue is one the federation believes can be resolved quickly if the political will is there to do it. It must be done by legislation and have very strong penalties in place to make it effective. This is an environmental issue no one seems to care about yet, but by the time it becomes recognized the damage will not be reversible," he said.

Grading for city, not street

Schryer Avenue residents who are dissatisfied with the city's grading services may be out of luck.

As an item to add to the agenda of Monday's public council meeting, councillor Claire Wilt relayed concerns that annual grading the city provides to that street has not been done this year.

However, the work has never been done for any other reason than to accomodate the city's garbage trucks, said city engineer Maris Freimanis.

Schryer Avenue is not a designated right-of-way, which is to say it is not part of the city's public roads system, Mr. Freimanis explains. Garbage removal is the only city service it receives.

Although there were conflicting reports as to whether the work had been done this year, Mr. Freimanis said if it hasn't, it will be; but if it has, and the work is adequate to allow the city's garbage trucks to access the streets, the city has no reason to do it again.

Blood donor clinic today

It's time once again to share the gift of life.

DON'T FORGET!

Today Wednesday is the day to bring your coffee mug to work, as the city takes up the Mug Up for the Environment challenge. Intended to encourage waste reduction by eliminating the use of environment-damaging styrofoam cups, the challenge pits Bathurst against Moncton, Fredericton and Saint John. Tally sheets have been passed out to local businesses, who are encouraged to use their own coffee mugs at work, and put a notch on the tally sheet every time they do so. Numerous local businesses have signed up for the challenge; those who have yet to do so and would like to, should contact Julie Dugas at 547-2145, extension 2240. The same number can be dialed to phone in the results of the mug-up challenge in your workplace. Ms. Dugas is the local representative of the Energy and Environment Educators of New Brunswick, which initiated the event. Above, Ms. Dugas demonstrates just how easy it is to mug up for the environment.

New Brunswick Day celebrations Aug. 5

The city of Bathurst does not plan to let New Brunswick Day, Aug. 5, pass it by without a proper celebration.

The city's Parks, Recreation and Tourism Department will mark the day with games and activities at Coronation Park, following an official ceremony.

The ceremony will consist of the raising of the New Brunswick flag and the cutting of a cake, slated for 12 noon at the park's gazebo.

BULLETIN BOARD

(Editor's Note: If your group or organization has an upcoming activity, this is the place to let people know about it. Please note however, that items for this column should be brought in no later than Friday at 5 p.m., to help ensure publication the following week.)

TODAY

--Today, July 10, is Mug-Up Day. Do you own a mug? Do you bring it to work? If yes, great! If not, it's time that you do. If you drink coffee, tea or even water in disposable cups (styrofoam or paper) what do you do after use? You simply throw it away again and again, right? The environment needs you to stop doing so to help decrease the amount of waste generated by such daily habits. That's why the waste reduction campaign "Mug Up for the Environment" took the initiative to encourage everyone to use permanent mugs instead of disposables. Today local businesses will be helped to tally the number of times their office uses mugs in place of disposable cups. If your office has not been contacted and is interested in participating, simply tally the results on a piece of paper and contact Julie Dugas at 547-2145, extension 2240, to give results. It will be an inter-city competition with Moncton, Fredericton and Saint John. Let's show them what Bathurst is capable of.

Sign issue again before council

City council will wait for a report from its planning and development officer before looking into a signing application.

"Unless the bylaw is changed, the request cannot be considered," city manager Bob Bouchard told Monday's public session.

Councillor Claire Wilt had expressed concern that Keddy's Hotel and Convention Centre has so far not been given permission to erect a large sign on King Avenue.

But the two-year old application has been rejected because of zoning conflicts, city manager Bob Bouchard told council.

A free-standing sign placed in front of the building would also not be permitted because of the restaurant's downtown location, planning and development officer Marc Bouffard explained.

Mr. Bouffard told council he intends to recommend that large signs be allowed on provincial highways, but not within the city.

Doing otherwise would result in an eyesore for residents and tourists, as "hundreds of signs" begin to appear along such thoroughfares as St. Peter Avenue.

He said he has been working on a report with regards to signing, and plans to present it to council in the near future.

One of the recommendations he may submit for council's consideration is the erection of a common sign on which several establishments could advertise.

To allow individual establishments to erect their own signs anywhere they choose, however, is out of the question.

Meanwhile, city council gave its assent to two subdivision plans Monday.

Councillors approved the plan for Hussey Subdivision, having approved its development last year; while approval was also given to a public street extension in the Bathurst Industrial Park.

The extension was built by the Chaleur Regional Development Commission, to complete the looping of the street.

Monday's meeting also saw the awarding of tenders.

Saunders Equipment Ltd. was awarded the contract for the supply and delivery of two 1991 garbage trucks, for the tendered amount of $272,738.10; Les Entreprises R.E.H. Fournier Ltee was awarded the $18,149.56 tender for the removal and replacement of petroleum storage tanks at city hall; and the contract for the paving of Packard Street and St. Mary Avenue was awarded to Landry Asphalt Ltee, for $111,601.

Watercolor course number incorrect

A story appeared in the July 3 edition of The Northern Light, regarding a guest artist scheduled to teach a week-long course in watercolors at New Brunswick Community College in Bathurst from Aug. 12 to 16. Pet of the Week

Looks can be deceiving.

I look like a normal kitten, right? Wrong! I've recently set the meowing world record for kittens weighing under two pounds, and I'm in demand world-wide on the lecture circuit.

Fame is good, but I still need a place to stay; a place where I can relax after a particularly stressful series of personal appearances. I'm a 10 week-old male, and completely beige except for white paws.

I do have a hectic social life--as you can well imagine--but I promise to behave and not let my celebrity status affect our relationship. You won't have to lift a finger. Pretty responsible of me, wouldn't you say? Fame has not affected me in the least.

Now, If I could only straighten out this mess I'm in with the person holding me up here. She wants a raise in salary and I just don't think she deserves one. I mean, all she does is hold doors open for me, scratch my head and feed me. There are people just begging me for the job. Good help is so hard to find.

Bushpigs take Squeeler Cup

Pig Press
By JOHN BUTLER
Bathurst Bushpigs Rugby Club

At long, well-deserved last, the Bathurst Bushpigs have finally won a tournament. Not only that, but they succeeded in doing it in the city they represent so ably and during the Bathurst Silver Jubilee Festival.

The Fourth Annual Squeeler Cup was held at Coronation Park last Saturday. Visiting were the Kings County Lions of Nova Scotia, the Woodstock Wildmen and the Fredericton Loyalists.

In the opening game, the Bathurst Bushpigs faced the Kings County Lions. Although the Bushpigs were deep in the Lions end for almost all the match, a penalty in the Lions corner allowed prop Dave Whelton to power his way over the line (and several opponents) to open the scoring for the Bushpigs. Full-back John Bujold confidently converted the kick to increase the points spread from four to six.

Nick Kossey raised the score to ten for the home side with a second try, which was also swiftly converted by the sure boot of John Bujold.

Late in the second half Chris Vacardo of Kings County put the Lions on the board with a try, but the conversion missed. Bathurst continued to threaten, and were also adept at clearing their own end when the Lions threatened.

TEMPERS FLARE

The game was slow, the rugby not of the best and the frustrations led to some very unnecessary roughness and fisticuffs. This is not a feature of this sport and is surely neither appreciated nor desirable.

In any case, the game ended in a comfortable 12-4 win for Bathurst. Since the format was for two games, which the losers played for the consolation prize, the winners for the cup, Bathurst had ensured a spot in the final and nothing less than second place.

The Fredericton Loyalists then blanked the Woodstock Wildmen 18-0 in the other semi-final to gain a berth in the final against the Bushpigs.

READY TO WIN

By this time the Bushpigs' tails were up and they were ready to go for the 'brass ring'--even if it was their own cup.

The first sign of how the game was to go came early, in a fine try by long-time Bushpig Matt Boucher. The conversion went astray, but not too much later Tim Forsythe crashed over to increase the lead to eight beautiful points.

The practice and stamina instilled into the Bathurst team became evident as the game wore on. Fredericton were by no means out of it and the Bushpigs had their work cut out to maintain their lead. On several occasions only desperate tackles and clearing kicks kept Fredericton from getting on the board. What became evident, however, was that the home side were getting all of their share of the ball, and more. Moreover, almost all the play began to take place in the Fredericton half. Fredericton was still dangerous, but the Bathurst side was building up an inexorable pressure.

Finally, Gordon Clark ran in a try which John Bujold converted to raise the points total to 14. Constant advice and instruction came from player-coach Derrick Snow, who was giving sterling service in mid-field. The Bathurst players responded, and in the second half Tim Forsythe scored a try which John Boscoe put between the uprights to put the Bushpigs a full 20 points ahead.

CINDERELLA STORY

Just when it seemed that nothing could make the day any better for the Bushpigs, John Bujold took off from his full-back position, turned on his considerable speed and scampered three quarters the length of the field to ice the victory with a further four points. Something of a cinderella ending then, 24-0 for the home team, in their home city, in their own tournament and during the summer festival.

Lang, Maher after junior golf titles

The top junior golfers in the province will converge on the Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club course early next week.

Sunday will see the first round of the Provincial Junior Girls Team Trials, where the top four players plus an alternate will earn a trip to the nationals, slated for Ottawa next month.

Monday's round will see pressure rise among the girls, as it serves as both the second of four rounds involved in the team trials, and also the first round of the two-round Provincial Junior Girls Championship.

The Provincial Junior Boys Championship will be determined Monday and Tuesday, with the two rounds also serving as the third and fourth legs of the six-round Provincial Junior Boys Team Trials.

Reigning provincial champion Yannick Lang, who lives in Beresford and has dual membership in both Gowan Brae and the Moncton Golf and Country Club, will try to defend his title this year.

Lang stood tied for second after the first two rounds of the team trials last week in Moncton, three shots off the pace set by Denis LeBlanc of Bouctouche. Lang shot an identical pair of 76s.

Gowan Brae's Kerry Maher, one of the top junior girls in the province for the past two years, will be out gunning for a provincial title as well.

Maher has, during the past two years, fought down to the wire against Carrie Vaughan of Riverside. But this year the reigning provincial champion has moved up an age group, to Amateur.

Senior title to McLean

Local golfer Harold McLean has won the Northeast New Brunswick Regional Senior Mens Golf Tournament, played at the Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club July 3.

McLean shot a 76 to win Low Gross for the Field honors, edging out Ed Lagacé of the Restigouche Golf Club, who shot a 79.

Winner of the Low Net for the Field title in the 79-player event was Blair Chamberlain of Gowan Brae, with a 63. Doran White, also of the host club, won the prize for the Closest to the Hole on No. 15.

Gowan Brae's Division A winners were Gerry Arseneau, first low net (68); John LeBlanc, second low net (70); and Raoul Haché, third low net (71).

Division B top finishers included Jeannot David, third low gross (92); Jack O'Neil, first low net (69); Emery LeBlanc, second low net (71); and Dave Butler, third low net (71).

Division C winners were Doran White, first low gross (82); Vince Noel, third low gross (92); Kevin Mann, first low net (73); and Al MacMillan, second low net (74).

Division D winners were Bill Keehn, second low gross (88); Claude Willett, first low net (72); and Ken Shirley, third low net (74).

No double winners in minor ball

Parity would seem to be the right word to describe Bathurst Minor Baseball Association action during the past week.

With 10 games played, no team managed to win more than once.

The Angels claimed their only win of the week July 2, a 12-6 victory over the Twins in a Beaver Division matchup.

David Bourque was the winning pitcher in the contest, with the loss shared by Brian Jagoe and Craig Branch. Leading the Angels from the batter's box were Keith Landry, with a double, and Amy Wesenberg, with a single. Kyle Jamieson and Shawn Schiavoni led the Twins with a single each.

The Giants defeated the Cardinals 7-5 in a Mosquito Division game that same day, with Brian Boucher leading the way with a double, a single and two runs scored. Eric Boucher stroked a home run to lead the Cards.

The first of three games played July 3 saw the Dodgers outscore the Cubs 17-12 in a Squirt game. Samuel Mallet paced the winning attack with a double, single, and two runs scored, while René Cormier was the big gun for the Cubs, with a pair of singles and three runs scored.

The Yankees hammered the Dodgers 25-7 in another Squirt Division matchup, with Chad Daley stroking a home run, two singles and scoring three to lead the winners. Chris Brown led the Dodgers with a pair of singles.

Serge Duguay and Kevin Glazier teamed up on the mound to produce a 16-4 win over the White Sox in Beaver action.

The Twins beat the Angels 9-5 July 4 in yet another Beaver game, with Kyle Jamieson and Scott Petrie registering the mound win and René Mazerolle, Neil Daigle and Scott Donnelly going down to defeat together.

Leading the Twins offence were Paul Clement and Tyle McGrath, each with a pair of singles, and David Couture, Raymond Boucher, Celina Boyd and Kyle Jamieson, with a single each. David Bergeron stroked a double and Keith Landry a single to lead the Angels.

The As blanked the Phillies 12-0 in a Squirt Division game, with Robyn Chamberlain stroking three singles to pace the winner's offence. Adam Chamberlain replied with a triple and a single for the Phillies.

The final game played July 4 had the Expos edge the Indians 15-14 in a Mosquito game. Jacques Roy poked a double and a single to lead the Expos, while Warren Melanson was the top hitter for the Indians with a triple and a double.

The Bathurst Midget A team split a doubleheader with Chatham Sunday.

Bathurst claimed one of the tilts 4-3, with René Dugas tossing a four-hitter in earning the mound victory. Leading all local hitters was Jonathan Godin, with three singles.

Chatham hammered Bathurst 12-1 in game two, with Jamie Knowles tagged with the loss. Knowles also doubled as the team's hottest hitter, with a triple and one run scored.

PARKWOOD ALL-STARS TRIUMPH OVER SOUTH

The Parkwood Schooner-Pizza Delight Softball League all-stars pulled off a 17-7 victory Saturday in an all-star game against the South Bathurst Alpine Softball League. Paul Aucoin was the winning pitcher in the contest, Renald Regnier was tagged with the loss, and Chris Burns of the Wild Goose Guzzlers picked up the Labatt's Trophy as the game's Most Valuable Player. The Bathurst Fire Department passed the "boot" during the course of the game, raising $125 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Members of the winning Parkwood team include, front from left, Michel Doucet, coach; Don MacLaggan, third base; Glenn Morrison, pitcher; Don Bertin, catcher; Marc Theriault, shortstop; Mark Hachey, third base; and Greg MacDonald, assistant coach. Middle row from left are Derryl Smith, outfielder; Brian Chamberlain, first base; Yves Daigle, outfielder; Bobby McDonald, shortstop; Pierre Daigle, pitcher; Danny Pitre, second base; and Paul Aucoin, pitcher. Back from left are Mike Godin, outfielder; Jeff Gregson, outfielder; Jacques Boudreau, outfielder; Hermel Arseneau, catcher; Kevin Caissie, first base; and Chris Burns, outfielder.

Belledune inches closer to first place

A pair of wins in Restigouche Intermediate Baseball League action last week has propelled the Belledune Mooseheads into third place in the standings.

The Mooseheads blanked the Beresford Alpine Bees 10-0 and then dumped the Atholville Blue Pitch Royals 12-5 to move to within three games of the front-running Eel River Crossing Alpine Expos. The Expos sport an impressive 10-2 won-lost slate in the seven-team league, followed by the Campbellton Merchant Hawks, 9-4; Belledune, 7-5; the Beresford Schooners, 6-5; Dalhousie Moosehead Dodgers, 5-7; the Beresford Alpine Bees, 2-4; and Atholville, 0-12.

Other games played last week involving local teams saw both Beresford teams go down to defeat. The Schooners were edged 4-2 by Eel River Crossing, while the Alpine Bees were hammered 10-2 by Campbellton.

The Belledune squad will travel to Dalhousie Friday for a 6:15 p.m. encounter with the Moosehead Dodgers, while on Sunday Atholville visits Belledune for a 2 p.m. matchup with the Mooseheads.

Joe Hachey

I am seeking the support of Bathurst area residents as the Liberal candidate for the forthcoming provincial general election.

I would like to invite all citizens of Bathurst interested in good, open, democratic government to join the Bathurst Liberal Party and participate as a voting member in the nomination convention next Aug. 18 to elect the Liberal candidate for this riding. Each member of the party has the right to vote in this very important nomination convention. Membership deadline is July 18.

I have been a working Liberal for the last 30 years and have developed solid roots in this community where I was educated, participated in community affairs and was always available to assist individuals and groups enhance their daily lives. I am confident I will serve the riding in the highest standards of public service.

The Bathurst area is on the threshold of a major economic resurgence. The district needs a strong, reliable and honest representative in the Provincial Legislative Assembly to assure that the future brings us prosperity and good fortune in all aspects of our lives.

For more information, please call: Brian 546-3559

Out Of Bounds

By JIM COUTURE

I'm a curious fellow, which is good in my line of work. So when a question goes unanswered it really bugs me, and I have a perfect example of that irritation.

Exactly how much cash did Steffi Graf get when she beat Gabriela Sabatini Saturday to win the Wimbledon singles title?

I waited and waited for the announcers to mention the amount, but they didn't. I didn't even see a cheque change hands. All I saw was the Duchesse of York hand Graf an aluminum plate, one which Her Highness didn't let go of until Graf listened to every "important" little word she said. Graf just wanted to hoist it above her head--as is the tradition--but nooooo; the Duchesse just had to go and ruin it for her.

I think the amount of cash she won is very important--maybe not to her but to me and every other ordinary joe who actually works for a living. The amount had to be over $200,000, so it wasn't small change. Anyway, that really ticked me off.

And now, getting to the meat of this column: the Duke of Kent.

This guy is a clone of Queen Elizabeth's better half, Prince Philip, and just the type of guy you'd want to go shoot a couple of games of pool with on a Saturday afternoon...not. His job description is simple: stand aside and let the real pants in the family through.

You look up pompous in the dictionary and there's a mug shot of the Duke of Kent. I mean, he probably inflates his stuffed shirt and tries to deflate his head every morning before eating his corn flakes. I'd say this guy has to be the most pompous-looking person I've ever seen.

Now I may be wrong about all this; he could very well be an all-around swell guy, but I doubt it. I'm usually a pretty good judge of character.

Did you know he's fourth in line to the throne? You know what that means, don't you? That and a quarter will entitle him to the phone call of his choice. All he has to say to people is, "Hey, I'm fourth in line to the thrown of England, don't you know", and he's impressed their knickers off. Now that's power.

Anyway, getting back to the subject of money. I just feel that the gross amount paid to these athletes should be discussed if only for the sheer lunacy of it. That much money should not be presented to anyone without a winning lottery ticket. Most of us would have to work at least a year--some of us eight--to earn that much.

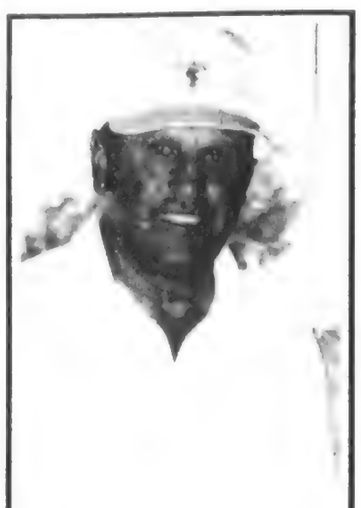
I think I figured out why the cheques are not officially presented anymore. Wimbledon officials probably thought the practise detracted from what they feel is more important than money, if there ever was such a thing. They feel their title is more precious than cash, and so the two should not be put on the same playing field and judged.



Nice sentiment, but I wonder which goes in the trunk of the car for the ride back home: the cheque or the trophy. Something to think about.

NOT THE REASON

My brother told me over the weekend that there was wild speculation regarding why I did not enter the tube race this year.

I just want to set the record straight: the rumor that there would be drug tests conducted following the race was not the reason for my absence. You just have to take one look at me to see that steroids and my body have never met. And anyway, half the lies you hear about me aren't true. The other half, well....

I couldn't locate a tube due to my hectic schedule these past few weeks. That's my story and I'm sticking to it.

POINTE VERTE CLAIMS SILVER JUBILEE BALL TITLE

Antlerless deer draw deadline near

The deadline for applying for antlerless deer permits is rapidly approaching for local hunters, Natural Resources and Energy Minister Morris Green said recently.

"Applications for the 1991 Antlerless Deer Permit Draw must be received by 5 p.m., Friday, July 19," he noted. "Licences, application booklets and quotas for the draw are available at all DNRE offices and license vendors."

About 20,000 antlerless deer permits are available in 20 of the 27 New Brunswick Wildlife Management Zones. Hunters will be allowed to harvest antlered deer only in Zones 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8 and 9. The boundaries of all zones are outlined in special Wildlife Management Zone booklets, available at locations where licences are sold. The bag limit continues to be one deer per licensed hunter.

"Individuals who have their name drawn for an antlerless permit may harvest an antlerless deer in the zone for which their name was drawn, or an antlered deer anywhere in New Brunswick that is open for hunting," Green said. "I encourage hunters to make their plans now, enter the draw and prepare for the 1991 deer hunting season."

The computerized antlerless deer permit draw will be held in Fredericton later this summer. Successful applicants will be notified by the Department of Natural Resources and Energy.

Gowan Brae Ladies Club

The main event at Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club in the next week will be the Provincial Junior Championship, which consists of two rounds of golf for both boys and girls.

The event takes place on Monday and Tuesday, July 15 and 16. On Sunday, the girls vying for the provincial team will be playing qualifying rounds, while the boys will be playing their practice rounds.

Tomorrow Thursday a large number of Gowan Brae juniors will be travelling to Campbellton to compete in the Restigouche Junior Field Day.

Several local lady golfers have been active travelling around the province participating in various field days and invitational tournaments.

Coming home winners from the Plaster Rock Field Day were Valerie Frenette, 1st Low Gross in the First Division; Gisele Shaw, 2nd Low Net in the First Division; and Gabe Frenette, Closest to the Pin.

At the St. Ignace Invitational, Gisele Shaw won 1st Low Net in the First Division; Gabe Frenette, 3rd Low Net in the First Division; Johanne Bepperling, 2nd Low Gross in the Second Division; and Margie MacDonald, 3rd Low Gross in the Second Division.

This week the Provincial Ladies Golf Championship was held Monday and Tuesday at the Westfield Golf and Country Club outside Saint John. Gowan Brae members participating were Kathy Grebenc and Kelly MacDonald, in the Amateur ranks; and Valerie Frenette, Giselle Shaw, Mary Gavin and Pat Maher, in the Senior category. All six of these gals competed in Sunday's Team Trials as well.

Tuesday's Ladies' Day play continues to see large numbers participating. The July 2 prize winners were Mary Gavin, Marie Guidry, Pat Maher, Dot Berry, Mary Jane Sommers, Marie Landry, Joan Arseneault, Florence Erskine and Geraldine Boudreau.

Ladies are reminded of several upcoming events: the Miramichi Ladies Invitational on July 27, with registration deadline on the July 19; qualifying round for the N.C.T.C. tournament, Wednesday, July 17; and the Gowan Brae Ladies Texas Scramble, July 26. This scramble is a nine-hole event with a shot-gun start at 5:30. Please register with entry fee at the bar by July 24.

For more information on these and other events, members are asked to check the downstairs bulletin board.

The Men's Moosehead Pot of Gold Two-Man Scramble will be played on July 20 with a 1 p.m. shot-gun start. Deadline for entries is July 18 at 1 p.m.

The Bryan Keehn Memorial Fun Family Scramble will be held on Sunday afternoon, July 21. This nine-hole event will have a division for complete family four-person teams and one for adopted family teams. Entry fee is $10 per team and starting time is 1 p.m.

Fans welcomed

Everyone is invited to head down to Youghal Beach July 13 and 14 to take in the Labatt's/Brasserie O'St. Pierre Invitational, a beach volleyball tournament not to be missed.

A total of 32 men's and 32 ladies' two-person teams from throughout New Brunswick, as well as a few from Quebec and Nova Scotia, have been invited to take part.

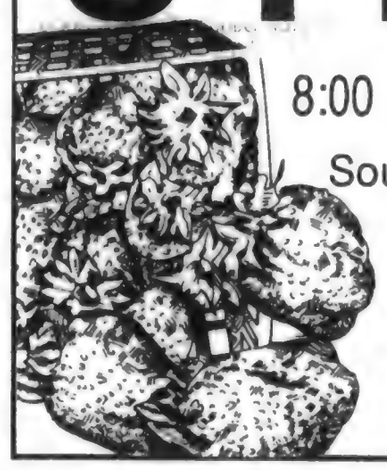
Play begins at 9 a.m. each morning, with six courts ready to accomodate the event.

MELANSON ACES ONE

A hole-in-one to a golfer is something like a no-hitter to a pitcher--often thought of but seldom accomplished.

Paul Melanson, a top senior golfer at Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club, scored his hole-in-one on the par three 15th hole last week playing in a foursome with Paul Lepage, Derek Knowles and Ken Shirley.

Paul hit a wedge to the green, where the ball landed about a foot from the pin and was in the cup on one hop. Paul Lepage remarked that, with the way he's been hitting his irons, it was bound to happen.



Ken Shirley said it was the first time he'd seen someone make a hole-in-one, and that it was quite a thrill to witness one.

Techno 90 earns pair of Parkwood wins

Techno 90 was the only Parkwood Schooner-Pizza Delight Softball League team to string two wins together during the past week.

Their first came July 2 at the expense of Brasserie O'St. Pierre, which they dumped 7-4.

Christian Doiron was on the mound to register the win, with Pat Murphy going down to defeat. Robert Chiasson led the winners with a triple, double and single, while Jamie Melanson stroked a double and a single to lead the losing side.

Roger Theriault led Techno 90 from the mound in its second victory, a 16-15 decision over the Big D Blues July 4. Myles Coombs was the losing hurler in this one.

Theriault helped his own cause with a triple, double and a single during his turns at the plate. Jacques Boudreau poked a pair of doubles and a single to headline the Blues' offence.

Other games played during the past week include a 16-14 decision by Jim walters over the Uptown Club July 2.

Alan Furlotte tossed the winning pitches, with the losing ones credited to Michel Vienneau. Doug Hicks was the top hitter for the winners, with a pair of singles and a double to his credit, while Vienneau stroked five singles in pacing the Uptown offence.

The Wild Goose Guzzlers opened play July 3 with a 12-9 win over the Uptown Club, with Herbie Scott the winning pitcher a' ' Michel Vienneau again on the losing end.

Ken Ellis stroked a pair of singles and a double to lead the Goose offensively, while Ron Lejeune hit a couple of singles and a triple in a losing effort.

Brasserie O'St. Pierre won by forfeit over the Wild Goose Guzzlers on July 4 to close out the week.

B.J. Furs up record to 11-1

B.J. Furs added further cushion between it and its opponents this week, winning both its Fabrication of Plaques City Softball League games.

The league leaders, with an 11-1 won-lost record, opened the week with a 14-11 win over the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters.

Eddy Couture was the winning hurler in the contest, with Roger Hachey accepting defeat. Leading the winners from the plate was Emilien Roy, with a home run and a single, while for the losing side it was Danny Boucher, with a triple and a single.

Marc André Comeau led Brasserie O'St. Pierre from the mound in a 12-9 decision over C&G Smith Trucking in the late game. Going down to defeat was Kevin Peters.

Penguin Club blanked Bistro Terrasse 6-0 in the only game played July 3, with Raymond Doucet striking out 15 batters in the seven-inning encounter en route to the win. Robbie Arseneau was on the mound for the loss.

B.J. Furs closed off the week July 4 with a 34-3 humbling of the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters, with Robert Frenette claiming the win and the loss handed to Jean Claude Rioux.

Leading the winners from the plate were Andy Chan, with a triple, double and single, and Ron Comeau, with two doubles and a single. Steve Lebreton stroked a double and a single to lead the firefighters.

Tyson-Foreman bout could net fighters $15million each

On The Ropes
By "WILD" BILL HUDON

Mike Tyson and George Foreman will fight later this year, and the boxing people are already doing their paperwork for this one.

The guy with the porcupine head said Tyson and Foreman could get a large sum of money for this little showcase. Yes, you are right, their pay day could be as high as $15 million each.

Getting back to Foreman, I recently met a big fan of his. Alvin Roy says Foreman will give Tyson a tough fight, but he does not pick Foreman to win.

This guy was also a big fan of the great Joe Louis, who held the Heavyweight title longer than any other. Louis held the title for 12 years, and defended it 25 times. Alvin tuned in on June 22, 1937 when Louis won the title in Chicago with an eighth-round knockout over James Braddock.

Have a good day, Alvin.

MOST SELFISH

Mark Gastineau, the former football player turned boxer and described by former teammates as perhaps the most selfish man on earth, announced at a recent press conference he's ready to become the next Heavyweight champion.

He fought his first pro fight three weeks ago, scoring a first-round knockout.

Gastineau says he loved crushing quarterbacks but, deep down, has always wanted to become a fighter.

Now, getting to amateur boxing. Moncton sports fans will be treated to a big boxing event July 26.

It could be an Irish boxing team or an American boxing team, but that doesn't matter. If it's the Irish team everything will be all green and Irish eyes will be smiling. The man at the top will be working this big event as a judge.

My wife and I would like to wish a happy birthday to a special young lady, Sadie Morrison, who was 95 years young last Sunday.

"Wild" Bill Hudon is a member of the Canadian Boxing Hall of Fame and the Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame.

Couture claims mixed bowling title

Bowling Update
By EDWARD CHAMBERLAIN

The bowling team captained by Lawrence Couture captured the Monthly Mixed Money Tournament at Chaleur Family Lanes Sunday, with a pinfall of 2,011 after four strings.

Other team members included Shirley Aubie, Denis Basque, David Doucet and Joyce Gallant. The team received $100 for the win, with high single honors going to Couture, with a 164; and Aubie, with a 115.

The runner-up team, with a pinfall of 1,978, was the one captained by Daniel Basque. That team, which collected $60, also included Eric Chamberlain, Mark Stever, Bernie Aubie and Suzanne Harris. Third place honors and $40 went to Melvin Harris' team with a pinfall of 1,975. His team included John Gray, Laurence Gallant, Marie Chamberlain and Nathalie Benoit.

The next Monthly Mixed Money Tournament will be held Aug. 11. To register, phone Edward at 548-4455 or Chaleur Family Lanes at 546-6030. Make sure to leave your name and average, because the teams will be formed through averages.

Chaleur Family Lanes is organizing a tournament for seniors during the month of August. For more information, call Louis at 546-6030.

Cross-country run July 27

Here's something new for the region, a cross-country competition aimed at both the competitive runners and those just out for some healthy exercise in the great outdoors.

The day will begin with a four-kilometre walk at 1 p.m. Children under 12 will have to be accompanied by an adult.

The 10-km cross-country race begins at 2 p.m. Runners will begin the race by circling the one-km lake, run four kilometres out on trails into the woods, and reverse the sequence on the return to complete the 10-km requirement.

Registration fees are $4 for the walk and $10 for the run.

Refreshments will be served to the competitors after the competition.

For more information, contact Pointe Verte recreation director Eric A. Haché at 783-7973, or Clarence Cormier at 783-2018.

BATHURST MINOR BASEBALL'S

Player of the Week

Adam Chamberlain

Adam Chamberlain has the honor of being chosen the first Bathurst Minor Baseball Association Player of the Week for the 1991 season.

Adam, 8, is the son of Brian and Christine Chamberlain of Bathurst, and plays for the Squirt division Phillies.

The Grade 4 student at Parkwood Heights Elementary School lists baseball, hockey and basketball among his favorite sports, while his favorite hobbies include watching television, and collecting hockey and baseball cards.

Sports card day set for July 28

There is no hobby which has grown more popular during the past year than collecting sports cards.

For that reason, the Village of Pointe Verte's recreation department is inviting all such collectors to its Collectible Sports Cards Flea Market, slated for July 28 at the municipal building from 12 noon to 5 p.m.

Persons interested in selling their cards can do so by reserving a booth for $15.

For more information, or to reserve a booth, contact either Danny Guitard at 783-3489 or Eric A. Haché at 783-7973.

CARD OF THANKS

DEMPSEY - We would like to thank family, relatives, friends & neighbours for gifts, money, flowers, food, for attending our 50th Anniversary & making it such a memorable occassion. To Velma Silver & The Calnan Band.
Isalee & Thomas.

MILLER- I take this opportunity to thank Dr. White, the nurses and staff on the 3rd floor of Chaleur Regional Hospital for their care and kindness while I was a patient there. To all the clergymen, friends and relatives who visited, phoned, sent cards, flowers and treats. It has left an imprint upon my memory, which will remain for a long, long time. Many thanks to you all.
J. Elda Miller.

Thank You to St. Jude for favors received. J.D.G.

The family of the late Jean-Luc Blanchard would like to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to relatives, neighbours, and friends, for their support during their recent bereavement. Food, flowers, and cards were sincerely appreciated. Please consider this as a personal card of thanks.

IN MEMORIAM

SPENCE - In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Marjorie, who passed away July 13, 1968.
May the winds of love blow softly,
On a quiet and peaceful spot;
Where the one we love is sleeping,
And will never be forgot.
Your resting place we visit,
And put flowers there with care,
And no one knows the heartache,
When we turn and leave you there.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But little do they know the heartache,
Our smiles hide all the while.
Sadly missed and remembered by mother, father, sisters and brothers.

IN THE MATTER of the Quieting of Titles Act, being Chapter Q-4 of the Revised Statutes of New Brunswick, 1973, as 270 amended and Rules 70 of the Rules of Court of New Brunswick,

IN THE MATTER of the Application of ALVERA NINI MELANSON, of the City of Bathurst, in the County of Gloucester and Province of New Brunswick, for a Certificate of Title in respect of certain lands situate, lying, and being at the City of Bathurst, in the County of Gloucester and Province of New Brunswick.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, PUBLIC NOTICE UNDER THE QUIETING OF TITLES ACT (FORM 70B)

ALVERA NINI MELANSON will make an application before the Court at Bathurst, N. B., on the 12th day of August, 1991, at 9:15 o'clock for a certificate that she is the owner of land located at the City of Bathurst, in the County of Gloucester, Province of New Brunswick, the legal description of which land is set out in Schedule "A".

If any person claims an interest in such land, or any part thereof, he must appear at the hearing of the application at the place and time stated, either in person or by a New Brunswick lawyer acting on his behalf.

Any person who intends to appear at the hearing of the application and wishes to present evidence to support his position must, no later than the 5th day of August, 1991,

b) serve a copy thereof on the applicant's lawyer, Brent D. Theriault, at the above address.

The claim of any person who does not file and serve an adverse claim will be barred and the title of the applicant will become absolute, free of the exceptions or qualifications set forth in S.18(1)(c)(d) of the Quieting of Titles Act, R.S.N.B. 1973 c.Q-4 but subject to the exceptions or qualifications set forth in S.18(1)(a)(b)(e) of the Quieting of Titles Act.

Adverse claimants are advised that:

a) they are entitled to issue documents and present evidence in the proceeding in English or French or both;

b) the applicant intends to proceed in the English language; and

c) if adverse claimants require the services of an interpreter at the hearing they must so advise the clerk upon filing his adverse claim.

THIS NOTICE is signed and sealed for the Court of Queen's Bench by GREGOIRE BOUDREAU, Clerk of the Court at Bathurst, N. B., on the 8th day of July, 1991.

Bathurst youths are in an environmental state of mind, particularly three youngsters who are concerned about the uncertain future of bank swallows found recently in the Bathurst area. Curtis Legacy (left), David Lanteigne and George Legacy (not shown) have come across holes in a bank, which they believe to be home to several bank swallows. None of the nine holes show any signs of nesting, although the boys testify to seeing a "whole bunch" of birds visit the site early every morning. Curtis, 12, is the son of John Legacy and Carole Gagné of Bathurst; and David, 10, the son of Ann-Marie Lanteigne.

Summer weather spells travel

Over The Back Fence
By ELEANOR A. SCOTT
Call 546-5680 after 6 p.m.

"Dear to us,...are the evening hours when we linger along the brook paths, stop by a bench, or relax on the screened terrace."

It appears summer, after some persuasion, has arrived, and with it an opportunity to visit friends and relatives in the Bathurst area.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andrews and Mrs. Madge Andrews came all the way from Belfast, Ireland for another visit to South Tetcagouche. They spent almost a month as guests of Verna Walsh, visiting friends and distant relatives while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Benner came north from Liberty, Maine accompanied by their grand-daughter Shellee Clement, Winthrop, Maine. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leston Breckenridge and family.

Shanleigh Anne Veniot was back in Bathurst from Dartmouth, N.S. to celebrate her first birthday, held at the home of her aunt Sheila and her uncle Reed Doucet, Dunlop. There were a lot of relatives and friends attending the party. Shanleigh Anne is the daughter of Pamela and Danny Veniot and while here was visiting her grandparents Lena and Ray Veniot and Anne and Gerry Arseneau.

Jackie Wedge, Ralston, Alberta and Clair Wedge, Fredericton were recent guests of their mother, Lauretta Wedge.

Prior to their visit, Lauretta was in Thunder Bay Ont., visiting her daughter Catherine Gallant, her son-in-law Paul and grandsons Marc and Andre. The Gallant family is leaving Thunder Bay soon to take up residence in Athens, Georgia, U.S.A.

Roger and Florence Melanson and their three children, Peter, Patsy and Jill, are in Bathurst visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Melanson. They are presently residing in Pangeruton, Baffin Island, N.W.T.

Marc Poitras and his girlfriend Susan Laurin, Ottawa, Ont. are spending two weeks in Bathurst visiting the former's parents, Lorne and Marie Poitras, and his brother Burton and wife Susan. Also visiting the Poitras family is their daughter Lorna, Moncton, N.B.

No harm done to birds

From my Window
A bird watcher's observations
By MARY GAUTHIER

Three youngsters are concerned about the future of bank swallows found nesting in a large pile of gravel in the Bathurst area.

Bank swallows will nest in piles of sand, clay, sand stone, and in similar softer earth found in gravel pits, river banks and shores. A long tunnel is excavated by the birds and their nest of grand feathers is built at the end of the tunnel. They are very adaptable to any habitat.

I can assure the boys that these birds will find new visiting sites next year if their "home" pile is gone. Their young from this year's nest should be flying the coop any day now; once they leave the nest they will not return. They are independent from their parents except for the odd feedings.

Eight steps to better mental health

VON In The 90's
By VERONICA RATCHFORD
Executive Director
of the Bathurst VON

Accidents, death in the family, violence, financial trouble, divorce, job problems, and family problems often cause a normal increase in anxiety and tension.

Sometimes we become overly tense and we are unable to reason things out or control our feelings. We must be very careful not to destroy our well-being and happiness.

Here are some steps you can take to deal more effectively with your tensions.

--1)Talk it out: Talk with someone you can trust (spouse, parents, friend, physician, nurse, counsellor, etc.). It helps you to see the problem more clearly.

--2)Escape for a while: For a short time, lose yourself in a movie or book, go for a drive or walk, and spend some time alone.

--3)Work off your anger: If you have the urge to lash out, do something constructive with your angered energy. Clean out the garage, exercise, work in the garden, etc.

--4)Take one thing at a time: Take the most urgent tasks and work on them, leave everthing else aside. Once you've cleared a few away, the others won't seem such a "horrible mess".

--5)Do not be "Superman" or "Superwoman": Some people expect too much of themselves; they strive for perfection in everything they do. Do well the things that you like and from which you obtain the most satisfaction. Delegate work to others.

--6)Accept others as individuals: Each person has his/her own virtues, shortcomings, values and ways of doing things. Search for their good points and help them to develop. You will be less frustrated if you learn to accept each person as they are.

--7)Make yourself "available": Instead of feeling that you are left out, neglected or rejected, make the first move and plan things with friends and family.

--8)Have fun: Take time for fun and recreation. Set time aside to enjoy sports, hobbies, and social activities with your family or friends.

Remember: All your efforts will be worth it. Be good to yourself.

BATHURST COUPLE "ARRESTED" IN B.C.

Roger and Annie Leger of Bathurst thought they were getting a parking ticket when the RCMP arrested them recently while visiting Port Alberni, B.C. Instead, they were being chosen as the Tourists of the Week, a regular feature in the Alberni Valley Times newspaper, and were asked to sign the town's guest book. From left are Chamber of Commerce representative Aaron Vissia; RCMP Constable Dianne Monteith, who made the "arrest"; Annie and Roger Leger; and Acting Mayor Hugh Anderson.

Buraglia family reunion on for this weekend

This Friday and Saturday are special days to look forward to, as memebrs of the Buraglia family gather from various parts of Canada and the United States.

While all but one member of Thomas Buraglia's family now live in Bathurst, Claude Buraglia's family will be arriving from as far as Texas and California to attend the event.

The Buraglia family has contributed greatly to Bathurst's growth over the years, having been active in various business ventures.

Natale Buraglia was an importer and contractor, moving to Bathurst with his family at the time when the pulp mill was being constructed, a project which he was involved with as well. Thomas Buraglia and Waldo Bosca successfully operated a wholesale business, bakery and soft drink plant. Claude Buraglia built and operated the Chaleur Centre, which most people will remember fondly as "Briggs". It was a restaurant and very popular dance hall. He also had a hotel and bowley alleys.

Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren will be gathering at Danny's Inn and Conference Centre and Atlantic Host Inn to celebrate the reunion. All have fond memories of growing up in Bathurst and, although some have moved away, they look forward to a visit in their home town.

Spokesmen for the occasion will be Claude Willett Sr. and Conrad Lutes, once employed at the local radio station. Everyone looks forward to renewing old acquaintances and memories of days gone by.

Canobie "Over 80 Party" a success

Downshore Breezes

By SANDRA HORNIBROOK
Correspondent

Earl and Helen Knowles, Toronto, are spending some time at their cottage in Janeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Clark and son have returned to Coopers Mils, Maine, after a vacation spent in the Downshore area.

Peter Scott, Toronto, is visiting his parents, Rupert and Ruth Scott, Stonehaven, as well as other family members in the area.

Mrs. Edith Jagoe, Loch Harbour, N.S., and her son Lloyd and Mrs. Jagoe of Peterborough, Ont., recently visited family members in the Bathurst and Downshore area.

Heidi Hornibrook, Saint John, visited her parents, Sherwood and Sandra Hornibrook, Stonehaven, during the recent holiday weekend. She was accompanied by Derek DeLurry, also of Saint John.

Mrs. Florence Daley, Janeville, accompanied her daughter, Mrs. Marion Glendenning, Canobie, on a recent trip to Toronto to visit the former's daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Scott, who is now visiting in the Downshore area.

Mrs. Margaret Cormier and daughter of Strathroy, Ont., are vacationing at their cottage in Janeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Young of Belmont, Mass., are vacationing at their summer home in Clifton.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bremner recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Leston Breckenridge of Clifton.

OVER 80 PARTY

The annual "Over 80 Party" of the Chaleur Evening Stars was held at the Canobie Community Centre on July 3, with 92 members in attendance.

Following the blessing of the meal, asked by Rev. T.H. Drillen, everyone enjoyed a catered meal of salad, turkey, ham, birthday cake, and ice cream.

Master of Ceremonies was the president of the Chaleur Evening Stars, Harold Morrison. The honored over 80 guest was Mrs. Beatrice Jagoe, who was presented with a corsage and a china mug. Rev. Drillen spoke words of appreciation on behalf of Mrs. Jagoe who, in turn, thanked everyone for their kindness and messages of congratulations.

The over 80 party this year was the 16th for the group.

Pet's vacation needs

Pet News

By MARGUERITE MORRISON

Vacations and your pet can be a time of joy or worry. Now that holiday time is here, where will your pet be?

If he goes on holidays with you the most important items to take are a certificate of vaccination against rabies and distemper, this is a must if you cross an international boundary. Check with your veterinarian about this.

Take a large container of water along with you, as water is different in certain places and could upset your pet. Take along his favorite food, play thing, and bed, as it will make him feel more at home. Travelling can be very upsetting for pets as well as people.

Be sure his name and your phone number are on his collar, in case he gets lost. Keep him with you at all times when in a campground. Everyone does not like your pet as you do, and wild animals are always near park areas.

Happy holidays to you and your pet.

BIG SCHOLARSHIP

Université de Moncton graduate Mario Haché of Pointe Verte was a recent recipient of a Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada scholarship valued at $15,000, and renewable once.

The scholarship is awarded annually to exceptional students in order to help them pursue graduate studies leading to a doctorate degree.

Mr. Haché is a graduate from the mathematics department.

Vincent Theriault feels he has created the best alternative to traditional survival crafts. Others seem to agree, including the Research and Productivity Council, which is studying the craft's possibilities.
(Northern Light Photo)

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

"There is a pressing need for systems that are simple, reliable, and above all, safe, to move people off a rig in distress in Canadian storm and ice-ridden eastern waters."

The design for Vincent Theriault's survival capsule is so simple, it's a wonder it hasn't been thought of before.

That's the way he himself described his latest invention in an interview with The Northern Light.

"When they see things are getting dangerous, they just jump in," said the Blue Cove resident.

The premise may be the same used by fishermen who rely on rubber liferafts or wooden dinghies, but with Mr. Theriault's invention, there is far less chance of further danger arising once the ship is abandoned.

According to the Royal Commission on the Ocean Ridge disaster, the 1982 mishap that left no survivors, traditional liferafts are simply not the safest means of escape from a ship in distress.

"There is a pressing need for systems that are simple, reliable, and above all, safe, to move people off a rig in distress in Canadian storm and ice-ridden eastern waters," reads the report.

As far as Mr. Theriault is concerned, those qualities fit the description of l'Esperanto, a fiberglass capsule that can hold 10 people. A prototype has been completed, and others are being worked on, to hold five, 15, and 20 men.

Mr. Theriault, who has invested $40,000 of his own money into the project, may not be alone in his opinion.

The Research and Productivity Council in Fredericton is conducting studies to look into the potential of l'Esperanto.

The 10-person, egg-shaped model measures 11 feet long by five feet wide. It is five feet high, and is equipped with a manual air pump to sustain life.

"As long as they have water to drink, people can supposedly live fifteen to twenty days," Mr. Theriault noted, adding a water pump is also installed in the craft to dispose of salt water that may get inside.

Mr. Theriault, who has invented other things but feels his survival capsule is his first truly significant project, hatched the idea after a harrowing experience of his own.

He spent two days and a half caught in a storm in the waters off Groenland, bobbing up and down in a dory under 45-foot waves.

"Nine months later, the Ocean Ridge went down," he said.

That same day, his thoughts turned toward designing something better.

L'Esperanto is more resistant than traditional survival craft, Mr. Theriault said, and its design follows the specifics of recommendations such as those made in the 1982 Ocean Ridge report.

Traditional craft have often been destroyed by savage winds thrashing them against the side of their mother ship shortly after they have been lowered into the water.

Mr. Theriault said this wouldn't be the case with l'Esperanto.

"The egg-shape makes it more resistant."

He has tested the capsule himself, and videotaped his efforts. All that now remains is to convince others of the capsule's worth.

The problem he now faces is therefore "not a technical one, but a political one."

He expects assistance from the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency, which helps Atlantic Canadian entrepreneurs, and is convinced a market exists to warrant the completion of the project.

The studies should be completed within about four months, but some local fishermen have already expressed an interest in l'Esperanto.

"With the study, hopefully some more eyes will open."

On the lookout for teenager

Crime Stoppers

She visited the Bathurst region during the summer months of 1987, at which time we believe she was the victim of foul play.

She was approximately 14 years of age, and she expressed herself in French with a Quebec-like accent. She is described as follows: tall, medium build, shoulder-length blond hair, and blue eyes.

While in the area, she used the name Sonia LeBouthillier, which may have been false.

If you have any information regarding this teenager, please contact Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477.

A story that appeared in our June 26 Progress Edition, regarding Chaleur Regional Hospital, contained unintentionally misleading information, which The Northern Light would like to clarify.

Chaleur Regional Hospital has been equipped to offer eye surgery services for the about the past 15 years, thanks to the presence of Dr. Andrew W. Struthers. Also, ear, nose and throat services at Chaleur Regional Hospital were not implemented recently, but have in fact been offered for about the same number of years, by Doctor Mohammed Yousuf.

Is the recession really over?

Your Business
By DIANNE MALEY
Business Analyst
Thomson News Service

They didn't see it until we were knee deep in it. Now they say it is gone.

"They" are analysts, politicians, economists and other observers who assured us last year that the economy would make a soft landing.

"It" is the recession that was not supposed to happen. And now it's gone. Or is it?

No one knows for sure. In the past, recessions have been characterized by bumps--a quarter or so of recovery--before the slide resumed. Could the few hopeful signs we see be a mere bump on the long road down? You bet. Indeed, some forecasters are still calling for a "double-dip" or "W"-shaped recession, in which growth starts then falters again.

The negatives are overwhelming. Chief among them is the unprecedented debt load weighing down government, business and individuals alike. Ultimately, this load falls on the back of individual taxpayers. That's us.

All the attempts to talk the economy back to its feet are really just a concerted effort to persuade people to spend money again.

SAVE MONEY

Before you rush out to do your bit for the economy by buying things you can't really afford, stop and consider. What Canada really needs is savings--and solvent citizens--to finance the burgeoning debt. The debt will not disappear overnight, perhaps not even in our lifetime. Governments will have to tap the personal savings pool to finance spending, including social services.

Altruism aside, what you and I need most is savings. We have learned from this recession and the last one that we only have ourselves to depend on when things go wrong.

And in a world economy where everything is strange and new, any number of things can go wrong.

As for the recovery, it could be the real thing. But the numbers are far from persuasive. The supposed rebound in housing could disappear as quickly as it arose. In most parts of the country, prices are still too high.

Meanwhile, commodity prices continue to slide. This is deflation, pure and simple. It is hard to imagine a deflationary rebound.

But the real problem is the financial sector. Chances are, the worst is not over there: some big U.S. banks are still teetering; some Canadian trust companies are weighed down by bad real estate loans.

Another bank or trust company failure would have tremendous repercussions on consumer and business confidence. Tentative hope would vanish overnight. Doomsayers would emerge with dark warnings of imminent collapse.

The uncertainty will go on for months. All we can do is hope for the best but prepare for the worst. By next spring, the outlook should be a little clearer. In the meantime, try to set some money aside for emergencies. Three months' salary is a good rule of thumb, but three weeks' is better than nothing.

University Medal of Honor presented to Dr. Eddie

The Université de Moncton recently honored a well-known local member of the Acadian community, Dr. Edouard S. Eddie of Bathurst, with the Médaille d'Honneur de l'Université (University Medal of Honor).

Dr. Eddie was born in Lebannon in 1927. He received his degree in medicine in Paris and later specialized in cardiology in Houston, Texas, and at the Institut de Cardiologie de Montreal.

He began his medical practise in cardiology at the former Hôtel-Dieu hospital in Bathurst in 1957, and later at Chaleur Regional Hospital.

His contribution to his profession was recognized by three Fellowships from the International College of Angiology, the American College of Cardiology, and the Collège des Maladies Thoraciques.

Dr. Eddie also played a leading role in his community, most notably as founding president of the Comité des Droits de l'Homme du Nord-Est in 1966, and president of the board of directors of a youth camp in the area.

But the Université de Moncton honored him recently for his contributions as president on the board of directors of the Collège de Bathurst, and for his participation in the creation of the Institut de Technologie du Nord-Est.

A member of U de M's board of directors in 1975-76, he contributed to the eventual evolution of the three campuses of the Université de Moncton. From 1980 to 1983, he was a member of the board of directors of the Ecole des Sciences Infirmières de Bathurst.

Dr. Eddie is married to Maryvonne Bonniot and the couple have six children, all graduates from the Université de Moncton.

Pure gold (24 karat) is so soft that it must be mixed with another metal to make it durable enough for jewelry. Copper will turn it red, iron will turn it blue, and when nickel is added, it forms white gold.

Gloucester Gourmet

Lately, she has been busy preparing such upcoming events as a swim meet, lifeguard competition, and open water race.

A native of Bathurst, Diane has been working at the Aquatic Centre for close to seven years. She has little time for hobbies, but enjoys canoeing, skiing and swimming.

Her recipe this week is a classic.

CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES
⅓ cup margarine
⅓ cup butter-flavored shortening
1 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 tsp vanilla
2 cups flour
1 tsp baking soda
1 tsp salt
1-350 g bag semi-sweet chocolate chips

Mix margarine, shortening and eggs. Beat until fluffy; add vanilla. Put flour, baking soda and salt in a bowl, and mix slowly into egg mixture.

Add chocolate chips, drop teaspoon-sized portions on a pan, and bake at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes.

Every month, a draw will be held, with one of our Gloucester Gourmets for that month winning a cake from Jamieson's Save-Easy in the Place Bathurst Mall. To enter, simply submit a recipe along with your name and telephone number and The Northern Light will make arrangements to get you into the Gloucester Gourmet column for your chance to win!

How to make a pen and ink

Art Talk
With Bathurst artist JEAN-FRANCES

Materials required: Popsicle stick, sharp knife or blade, blueberries or raspberries, fine mesh strainer, piece of rag or paper towel, and a small jar.

Often artists use black or colored inks to make interesting drawings on paper, but if you are willing to experiment we don't have to have special inks or equipment to try it ourselves.

Take a popsicle stick and cut one end into a point (shaped like a pen nib). Then slit this point right down the middle.

For ink, take some ripe blueberries or raspberries and crush them through a strainer or piece of rag. The juice you have collected is for drawing.

What kind of effects do you get with your "pen"? Cut different popsicle sticks different widths and see what happens when you draw. Are there other things you can use for ink? Experiment and have fun.

POET'S NOOK

Bathurst is celebrating its Silver Jubilee,
25 years or ¼ of a century as well;
Hard work was done by the people,
That make's our city so swell.

This river is about 100 miles long;
Where fishermen enjoy the fishing and scenery,
Camping, canoeing, and singing many a song.

In the downtown city of Bathurst,
Nicholas Deny's grave and memorial is there;
It's part of our history and heritage,
All people admire and respect it with care.

Our city was once named Nepisiguit,
And then to St. Peters as well;
Then Lord Bathurst renamed this settlement,
And that is how our City of Bathurst became I do tell.

The Phantom Ship of the Bay Chaleur,
Has been seen burning from the land;
It's believed to be a ship from the Battle of Restigouche,
And has been seen by many a man.

We have three beautiful shopping malls,
Where people shop each day;
They meet and talk to each other,
In a most respectable way.

Our churches of all denominations,
Where people can go to pray;
To thank God for His blessings,
And for this beautiful place where we stay.

Bathurst Radio Station is wonderful,
C.K.B.C. 136 on the dial;
Over 35 years it has been with us,
Serving people for many a mile.

The Northern Light is our weekly paper,
Is the best on the old North Shore;
Enlightening the people of Bathurst,
And the surrounding districts galore.

Our hospital is the richest,
Where you are treated with love and respect;
Our nurses are the finest,
Our doctors are the best.

Herman J. Good, V.C. Royal Canadian Legion,
There the Memorial Museum is held;
It's for our Canadian soldiers from all wars,
And the Ladies Auxiliaries as well.

We have some scenic places,
Pabineau, Grand Falls, and Tetagouche;
Daly's Point with its birds, wildlife and flowers,
You can hike, picnic, bird watch and really enjoy yourself.

Our schools are the best in the country,
Where our children go each day;
To learn to love our city and country,
In a most responsible way.

We have a new Marina,
It's on our Bay Chaleur;
Our people go to enjoy themselves,
Sailing along its shores.

Our arena, bowling alleys, and aquatic centre,
The places we go for sports each day;
To help rebuild our bodies,
In a most delightful way.

We have some government build ings,
They show up our city so nice;
The work that they give to our people,
Was well worth the sacrifice.

Our mill, mines, and industrial park are important,
To the people that work there each day;
They work with pride and honour,
And really earn their pay.

Our visitors are treated so kindly,
They return home with lots of stories to tell;
About the friendly people of Bathurst,
Its beaches, restaurants, and motels.

The V.O.N., Extra-Mural, Red Cross, and volunteer people,
Do everything they can;
Each day from sun up to sun down,
To help their fellow man.

Let's all take pride in our City of Bathurst,
Help it in all that you do and say;
Be kind and show love to friends and neighbours,
And continue to make Bathurst a wonderful place to stay.

(Editor's Note: This poem was written by Mrs. Pearl Pitre of Young Street, a tribute to Bathurst's Silver Jubilee.)

Canadian literary scene

Book Review

There is much to respect in this book, but not much to like. Ideas, rare in the Canadian novel, attractively are given full play. The narrative moves swiftly, smoothly in the short sub-sections, and the carefully crafted images are cunningly deployed, especially those of surgery, miscarriage or abortion. (The Argentine military coyly calls its kidnap victims "patients of abortions.")

After less than a decade here, Alberto Manguel has become an omnipresent figure on the Canadian literary scene. A prolific magazine journalist, a radio playwright and a multilingual translator, he has edited eight anthologies--three of them published this year alone. Manguel now extends his enviable range to the novel with News from a Foreign Country Came (Random House, 246 pages, $23).

Largely, it's a creditable if heavily stage-managed effort. A native of Argentina, the co-author of Dictionary of Imaginary Places has drawn on real places--Perce, Algiers, Paris, Buenos Aires. The events are all too real: French colonial rule in Algeria, German-occupied France, the Paris student revolt of 1968.

Most important to the story is Argentina just after 1976. In the notorious years of the desaparecidos (the disappeared), the military junta's terror squads abducted numerous enemies, actual or presumed: some victims were merely tortured, many were tortured and killed, their friends and families left in agonized ignorance of their fate.

In the Argentina of the time, there may well have been someone like the novel's Antoine Berence, French ex-army officer and, courtesy of France, an advisor to the Argentine regime. We first meet Berence, "the Captain," retired en famille in the seaside Gaspe. With him in Perce is his wife, Marianne, whom he had married while serving in Algeria, and their small daughter, Ana. Also on hand is their Argentinean servant, Rebecca. The Quebec police suspect that Rebecca and her friends may seek to avenge atrocities in Buenos Aires, including her own family's decimation.

EVIL

Early on, the reader quickly understands that all is not well in Perce--or anywhere else. The accidental drowning of a child due to Ana's inattention prefigures many other deaths--some calculated, some inadvertent--on three continents. The tacit complicity with evil that comes from being part of a privileged group is one of Manguel's themes, as is the relationship between private virtue and public violence. Berence--a cultivated, intelligent man deeply responsive to poetry, painting, photography, devoted to his own family--professionally lectures military goons on how to kill people as painfully as possible.

The Nazi as homebody, the fascist lover of the life-enhancing arts--such phenomena have haunted the public imagination since the Second World War. Yet why should they astonish us? Ordinary business--and artists, too--typically segregate work and domesticity, and good taste has seldom guaranteed sound ethics. In any case, a sample from a beautifully reasoned Berence lecture on the theory and practice of torture is the high point of the novel.

Irish artists to converge on Bathurst

The Inishowen Tour, which includes Bathurst in its itinerary on July 31 and Aug. 1, has been described by its organizer, Ann Brennan, of Johnville, N.B., as "a dream which evolved into reality."

The tour will see more than 100 Irish people--paying their own way--descend on New Brunswick for a first-hand, person-to-person relationship with the people of this province.

They'll be coming from the City of Derry and from Carlingford, whence virtually many of New Brunswick's original residents came.

The tour will consist of singers, dancers, historians and crafts people from both the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland. It emerged out of meetings Mrs. Brennan had last summer with members of the arts community in the Emerald Isle.

They'll be starting out on Grand Manan, which they expressed a special desire to visit, then opening the Miramichi Irish Festival before continuing on to Saint John, including participation in the Loyalist Days parade there.

Then comes a side visit to St. Andrews and Deer Island, before trips to Fredericton, the Perth-Andover Multicultural Festival and the aforementioned trip to this North Shore.

"As the group makes its way throughout the province, it will be bringing the very best in Irish culture and at the same time promoting unity and kinship among ethnic communities," Mrs. Brennan said.

"It's an extensive and challenging program. People from Ireland are going to be staying in New Brunswick homes. And where people share their art and music together, there will be peace".

Jim Boyle, chairman of the Bathurst Chapter of the Irish Cultural Association of New Brunswick, sponsors of the Bathurst segment of the Inishowen Tour, seconds these sentiments.

Highlighting the Inishowen Tour's stay in Bathurst are concerts in Coronation Park and the Bathurst High School Theatre. The latter performance is under the name and style of "Different Drums". There are a number of other interesting features which be announced as soon as firm plans for these are completed.

Rodney DeGrace, Lorne Whalen, Vincent Colton and Ron Jessulat form the committee charged with completing arrangements for the Inishowen Tour program in Bathurst.

In the meantime, billeting for the visitors in local homes is progressing favorably, according to Carmel MacDonald, who has been assigned this important and necessary task. Accommodations for 110 individuals are required and reservations for 80 of these have been confirmed as of this writing. Further offers of hospitality to make up the difference will be warmly welcomed by Mrs. MacDonald, phone 548-3655.

TROOPER, MINGLEWOOD CLOSE OUT FESTIVAL

Trooper lead singer Ra McGuire hammed it up with members of the audience Sunday night at the Causeway Park during a performance by his Vancouver-based group and Maritime music legend Matt Minglewood. More than 1,000 people turned out for the performance, the final event of the 1991 Silver Jubilee Festival.

CBC's Information Morning schedule

CBC Radio has plenty to offer its listeners in the summer edition of Information Morning.

Every day of the week, listeners in the Chaleur region can tune into 97.9 FM for the 6:15 a.m. wakeup interview guaranteed to inspire early risers to get up and start the day off on the right foot.

While hopping from the breakfast table to the dressing table, those with an interest in New Brunswick's current events can tune into the Party-Line at 6:50 a.m.; when all three Information Morning headquarters hook up to provide a provincial perspective of goings-on.

The drive to work can become an equally informative experience with CBC radio, as Bob Johnstone presents the daily Today in History feature at 7:20 a.m.

Tuesday mornings, at 6:40 a.m., the CBC offers commentary for seniors 65 and older on The Best Years, with seniors' columnist Freda Woodhouse.

The rest of the day has lots more to entertain and inform, with 7:15 a.m. on Tuesdays set aside for the Environmental Commentary; Julia Chadwick provides information on environmental issues, always accurate and useful, and always topical.

Science Beat takes a look at science in the Maritimes, with interviews and documentaries every Wednesday at 8:20 a.m.; and for the golf enthusiast, there's the 8:40 a.m. broadcast of Golf Corner, with Brent Taylor.

Thursday mornings at 6:40 a.m., Robert Appel updates all the automotive news with Car Talk; and on Fridays at 8:20 a.m., the weekends are mapped out on Weekend Round-Up, a run-down of what to do and what to see. The final half-hour offers suggestions for a weekend getaway to Maritime destinations.

These and other highlights of Information Morning can be heard throughout the week.

Your Week Ahead Horoscope

Forecast Period: July 14 - July 20, 1991

ARIES Mar. 21-Apr. 19	Be impulsive—no holds barred. Dive into that project, jump into that romance. Good things will happen.
TAURUS Apr. 20-May 20	Keep silent about matters at home. Do not air dirty laundry. Career move should be postponed until you feel on solid ground.
GEMINI May 21-June 20	Family duties interfere with outside activities. Keep your priorities straight. Don't be taken in by one less discrete.
CANCER June 21-July 22	Think twice before taking that planned trip. Travelling now may cause you financial difficulties later. Use your time wisely.
LEO July 23-Aug. 22	Do not be intimidated by co-worker looking for your job. You are capable of handling problems without his input. Be decisive.
VIRGO Aug. 23-Sept. 22	Be realistic in setting goals for future. Don't overlook the long-term effects of your present actions. Spouse could use your help in homebound project.
LIBRA Sept. 23-Oct. 22	Don't be embarrassed to admit a mistake. Your present position will not be altered either at work or with friends.
SCORPIO Oct. 23-Nov. 21	A new romance could develop if you are looking in the right direction. Be receptive to unlikely offer. Don't overlook the obvious.
SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 21	Time is your best friend. Allow old wounds to heal. Join philanthropic organization and give a new meaning to your life. Be productive.
CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 19	There is hope even though the horizon seems unclear. Keep your eyes open and stay alert to new ideas. Don't be afraid.
AQUARIUS Jan. 20-Feb. 18	Teenager needs guidance. Be objective. Too many restraints may cause him to rebel. Think carefully before taking action.
PISCES Feb. 19-Mar. 20	You do not need to justify your actions to one who concerns himself needlessly with your affairs. Keep confidences to yourself.

Eurythmics forego typical "hits" route

Eurythmics--Greatest Hits

Remember when the term 'new wave' actually meant something? When it did, the Eurythmics were a major part of it.

From the chart-topping hit "Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)" to 1989's "Would I Lie To You", Annie Lennox and Dave Stewart have pioneered the genre, moving gracefully through "new wave" pop, always managing to stay at the forefront.

This may or may not be true in terms of constant exposure and critical success, but the Eurythmics have nevertheless always been there.

And if it wasn't always the music that got most of the attention, it may well have been Lennox' penchant for cross-dressing, flamboyance, and general charisma.

Stewart, meanwhile, has been the musical genius on the sidelines, providing the technical backbone of the unit.

This latest release spans the scope of the duo's career thus far, dating back to 1982's "Love is a Stranger"; in short, it is the definitive Eurythmics collection.

"Sex Crime (1984)" is a personal favorite among the 18 tracks herein, but most of the tunes that have spelled success for the Eurythmics are included as well.

But there is also the moody "Here Comes the Rain Again", and the anthemic "Sisters Are Doin' It For Themselves", as well as "Missionary Man", and--if you liked this one--"There Must Be an Angel (Playing With My Heart)."

The Eurythmics have chosen to forego the 'greatest hits' tradition of including an added incentive to buy, such as a previously unreleased live track, fresh material, or an alternate take or two.

Instead, they have allowed the music to speak for itself, transporting the listener through the archives of 1980s pop music as seen through the eyes of Lennox and Stewart.

For those who have stayed with the band all these years, Greatest Hits is an excellent way to enjoy all the favorites without ever getting out of bed to change the channel; while for those who may not be as familiar with the music, it is an introductory primer made easy.

Finally, for VCR addicts, a home video version of Greatest Hits is also available; we must not forget after all, that the Eurythmics rode the crest of the music video craze to get get where they are today.

VIDEO REVIEW

J. L. CONVENIENCE

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

Mermaids

Rising star Winona Ryder once again plays a quirky, troubled teenager as she did in such films as Beetlejuice, Heathers, and Welcome Home, Roxy Carmichael.

This time around, she is troubled by her Jewish mother, portrayed to perfection by Cher (Moonstruck).

Seems young Charlotte (Ryder) has some difficulty coming to terms with mom's trampy ways, and chooses to rebel by obsessively immersing herself in Catholicism.

That in itself would not be enough to carry the film, but there is more; much more.

With a combination of touching moments and flashes of warm humor, Mermaids endears itself to the viewer in a way that only a few films do.

The effective use of a voice-over narration maintains the continuity of the story, while several subplots keep the action moving.

Everything is tied together in the end, despite first appearances that would suggest an aimless movie about the Family from Hell.

The one objection some viewers may have is to the opening sequence, which is nothing more than a slick music video, featuring Cher's questionable vocal talents over a series of clips from the film.

Once that's over, however, Mermaids quickly becomes the kind of movie you watch in a cozy chair with someone special.

The Grifters

A powerful cast makes this Stephen Frears film, about a trio of con artists, every bit the winner is has been made out to be by critics.

John Cusack (Fatman and Little Boy), Anjelica Huston (The Witches) and Annette Benning (Postcards from the Edge) are a young con, the estranged mother, and the girlfriend.

Together, they tackle the seedy world of con games in Los Angeles.

As strange a crew as has ever been conceived, all three are playing on different levels, yet somehow manage to maintain a tight relationship that is almost, but not quite, familial.

In fact, it is initially unclear whether Huston is really supposed to be Cusack's mother, but then he is a child only a mother could love.

This is probably Cusack's best role to date, although Fatman and Little Boy may be a close second, in terms of dramatic performance.

Huston is also wonderful, coming across with as frigid a personality as can be imagined, except when her son enters the scene.

Her love for him is obvious, but in the bitter finale, it is learned that, to a grifter (con artist), money is thicker than blood.

Highly recommended.

'Golden Years' role is felicitous for Huffman

If Felicity Huffman's role in Stephen King's "Golden Years" seems unusual, there's a good reason for it. (The summer series premieres Tuesday, July 16, as a two-hour movie, then moves to Thursdays for a six-episode run.)

Felicity Huffman

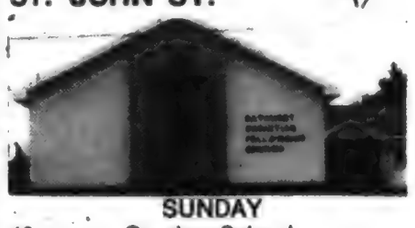
"She was written as a man, Otis, two weeks before they cast me," Huffman reveals.

Her character, now named Terry Spann, is the head of security at a secret government lab in which an explosion injures elderly janitor Harlan Williams (Keith Szarabajka). Not long afterwards, Harlan's wife, Gina (Frances Sternhagen), notices some puzzling changes in her husband – he actually seems to be getting younger. With the government ready to pounce on this most unusual specimen, Harlan and Gina make a run for it and find an unlikely ally in Terry.

"What happens to him is what everybody wants," says Huffman. "Those aches start to disappear. You start to have energy. At first it seems like a blessing. Then I think he realizes that what he's giving up is growing old with – if you'll excuse me – his soul mate. And the price is incredibly high."

Huffman enjoyed Stephen King's writing long before she landed the role. "But what attracted me wasn't, 'Oh, a Stephen King project; sign me up!' " she says. "What attracted me was the character."

Huffman is intrigued by the fact that Terry was created without sexist assumptions. "I hope she will be a new kind of woman on television, one that doesn't need to be conniving, one that doesn't have to be manipulatively weak, one who is given her due," she says. "I hope that it comes off as it's written, because it's possible that it won't. And I hope that it's appreciated as such if I played it right, which it's possible that I didn't."



If Huffman sounds a little uncertain, it's because she has worked primarily in theater (she was Madonna's replacement in "Speed-the-Plow" on Broadway), and working in front of the camera requires an entirely different mind-set.

"You go in with something prepared, and the director gives you blocking that is the antithesis of that," she says. "So in 10 minutes – literally – you've got to reanalyze the scene and refigure out what you're doing. I watch Keith Szarabajka, who has done a lot more television than I, and Frannie Sternhagen, who's done quite a bit of film work, and you can see them dancing around the process. They're really facile at changing things and being impulsive."

For Huffman, it's more of a struggle. "It's like playing a tennis game in the dark," she says. "When you hit the ball it feels good, but you can't see where it went."

Should be hearing more from talented Canadian Sharon Anderson in future

Sharon Anderson--The Bottom Line

Canada has given country music many excellent entertainers: Anne Murray, k.d. lang, and Michelle Wright, to name a few.

Now Canada presents another outstanding talent, writer/artist Sharon Anderson, whose debut project on the Capitol/Nashville label, The Bottom Line, showcases her infectious melodies and lyric craftsmanship.

Anderson brings solid performing and writing experience to the disc; the work reflects her country, folk, rock and R&B roots, as well as a positive attitude, which, she says, was instilled in her while a child.

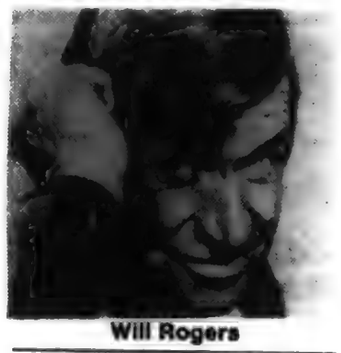
Anderson was born in the tiny town of Calahoo, Alberta, and grew up in an area filled with musicians and artists.

Her mother, Fiete Anderson, had been a well-known and loved singer in the region prior to her child-rearing days, and Sharon started out performing at an early age, partially to fulfill her mother's dream.

She began dabbling in songwriting by the age of eighteen; she was soon performing with bands that bridged the aforementioned genres.

Artists who have recorded her songs include Lucille Starr, Laura Vincent and Susan Jacks.

"Unbelievable Love," the first single, is written by Anderson and Johnny Cymbal with an infectious uptempo beat and a good, spirited message.



"Go For Broke," written by Paul Nelson and Larry Gottlieb, is somewhat indicative of the singer's mind set; she is the sort of individual who will go for broke, and give fate a run for its money.

The title cut, written by Anderson and producer/musician extraordinaire Billy Joe Walker, Jr., is a strong statement about committment; while the James House/Dave Gibson/Allen Shamblin tune, "Say When," has a country-rock feel, laced with folk inflections.

Of the ten selections, Anderson wrote "Pony," a song which displays her fine melodic and lyric talents; she also co-wrote four others.

We should be hearing more from this fine Canadian in future.

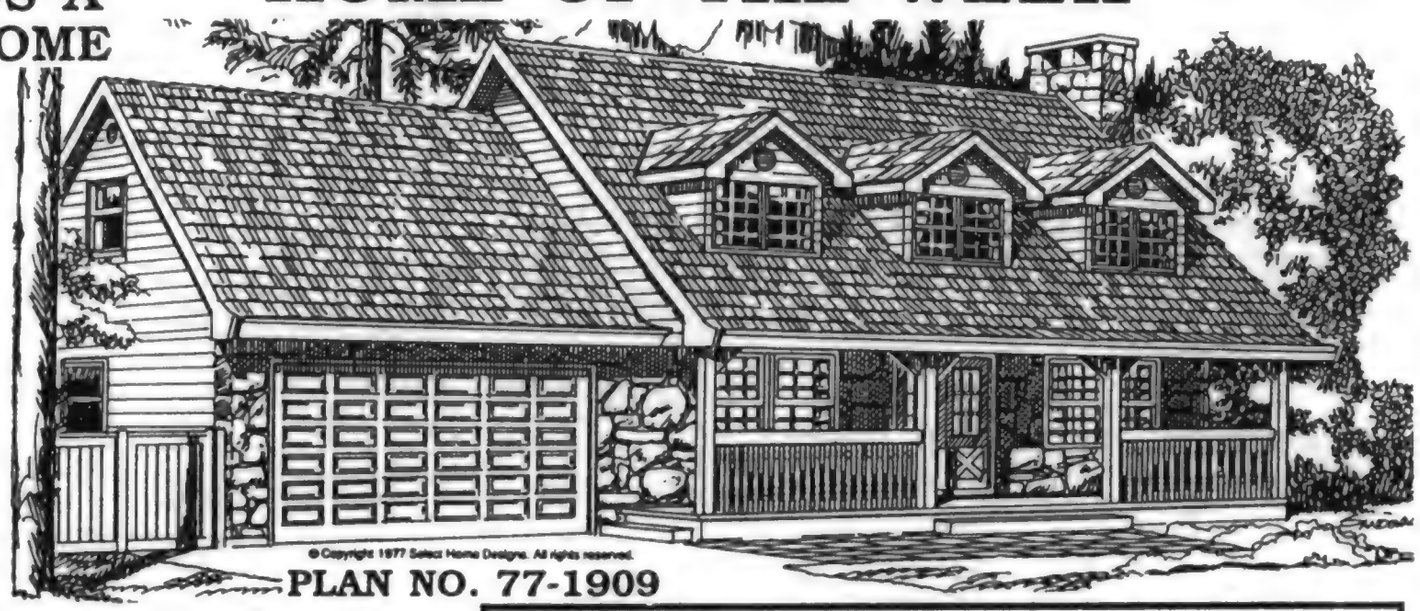
Will Rogers

WILL ROGERS – Did Will Rogers have any children? When and where was he born? When did he die? I say he was born in this century, but my wife says he was born in the 1800s. – W.G., Birmingham, Ala.



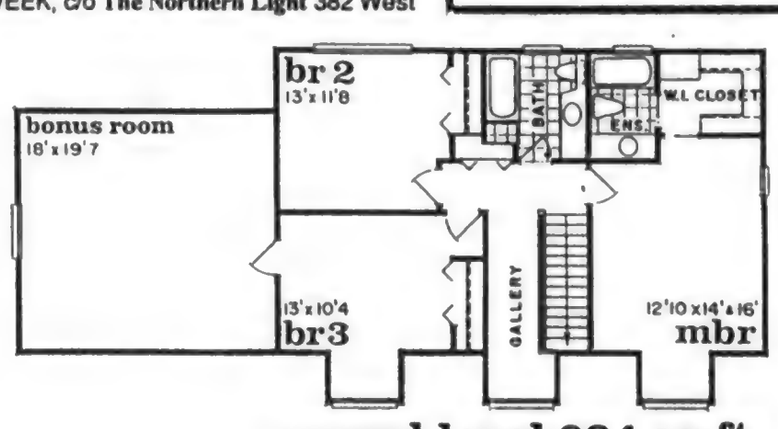
Humorist and actor Will Rogers was born William Penn Adair Rogers on Nov. 4, 1879, in Oologah, Indian Territory (now Oklahoma). He married Betsy Blake in 1908, and they had three children: Will Jr., Mary and James. He died in a plane crash with aviator Wiley Post Aug. 15, 1935, in Point Barrow, Alaska. His films include "State Fair" (1933), "Judge Priest" (1934), "Life Begins at Forty" (1935) and "Steamboat 'Round the Bend" (1935).

SEE YOU REAL SOON – I have tried to follow the Mickey Mouse Club over the years, but it has been almost impossible to keep track of it. How many times has it been revised? – J.W., Hendersonville, Tenn.

The first Mickey Mouse Club ran in movie houses in the early 1930s. A new version aired on TV for four years beginning in 1955. Syndicated reruns of those shows led to yet another version in 1977. The current version on cable's The Disney Channel began three years ago.

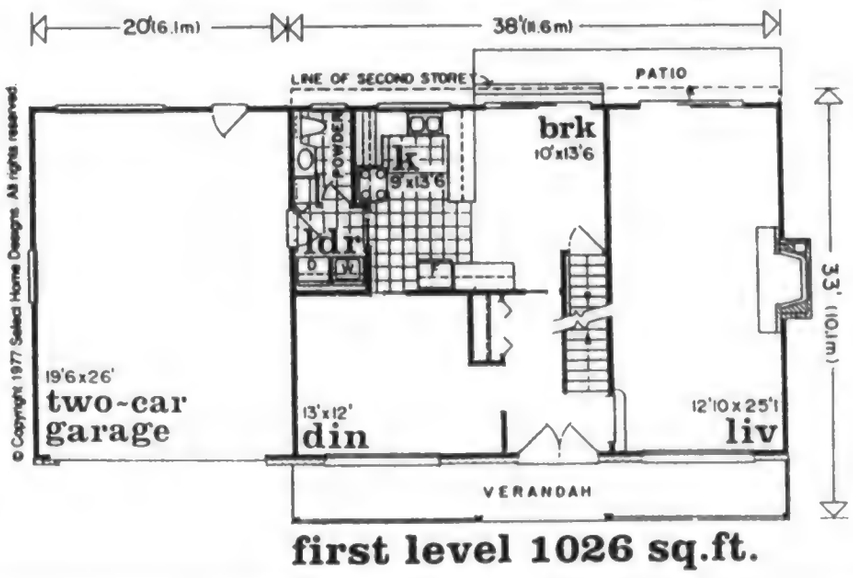
HOME OF THE WEEK

DESIGN EXTENDS A COUNTRY WELCOME



PLAN NO. 77-1909

An inviting, covered front verandah, fieldstone exterior and dormer windows introduce this charming three bedroom country home. The foyer steps down to a large sunken living room, which extends from the front to the rear of the house and features a masonry fireplace. An efficient U-shaped kitchen with abundant counter and shelf space, adjoins a sunny breakfast room and conveniently serves the formal dining room. Sliding glass doors from the rear patio provide access to the breakfast room and living room. The main floor laundry and powder room connects the two car garage to the kitchen.



The open railed staircase from the main foyer ascent to the dormer gallery-an ideal compputer station or library loft. The master bedroom features a front view dormer window, walk-in dressing room and adjoining three-piece ensuite with bath. The two additional bedrooms, each with all closets, share a main bath with soaking tub. A spacious bonus room over the double car garage provides 377 square feet for future expansion and can easily accommodate a game room, extra bedroom or media centre.

The finished floor area of this affordable home is 2,020 square feet. Plans offer a choice of foundations, including a full basement or crawl space.

SYLVIE DUGUAY OFF TO MISS N.B.

Miss Beresford 1991 Sylvie Duguay left this morning Wednesday for the 1991 Miss New Brunswick Pageant, slated for Woodstock next Tuesday evening. The pageant is part of Woodstock's 44th Annual Old Home Week summer festival, and 24 contestants are expected from throughout the province. Sylvie and the other contestants will be busy with rehearsals and public appearances up until the night of the pageant. She will be joined Saturday by her parents, Eldon and Noella Duguay. A special guest at the pageant will be Beresford mayor Real Boudreau. Sylvie, 16, was chosen Miss Beresford in January, during the Beresford Groundhog Winter Carnival. She is going into Grade 12 this fall at Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit.

Fisherman, son escape burning boat

Frank Pettigrew was a little shaken up Tuesday, but glad to have survived the sinking of his fishing boat.

"I wouldn't want it to happen again," he said of an on-board fire Monday evening, that left nothing of his boat, the Tracy Jay, but its fishing nets.

Mr. Pettigrew, who is the president of the Chaleur Professional Fisherman's Association, was out fishing mackerel with his 15-year-old son Ryan about nine miles away from the Stonehaven Wharf.

They had set out at about 6:40, and as fishing boats are not known for speed, it took some time to get to the spot where they planned to lay their nets.

"I just no more than got them set, and I could smell smoke," he told The Northern Light Tuesday.

He went to the source of the odor, the engine room, where he found not only smoke, but flames as well.

He emptied three fire extinguishers trying to douse the flames, "but it was still coming at me."

Ryan was still tying the fishing nets when his father decided it was time to abandon ship.

Mr. Pettigrew sent a distress signal, told his son to put on a lifejacket, and headed for the rubber liferaft.

Once the liferaft was thrown over the side and self-inflated, they hopped into it and "paddled like hell to get clear of (the boat)."

Stonehaven resident and fellow fisherman Thomas Kenny heard the distress signal, as did another ship; but Mr. Kenny, who was about three miles away, could already see the flames tearing into the Tracy Jay.

He reached the burning vessel and rescued the Pettigrews, an act for which Mr. Pettigrew is understandably most grateful.

The Canadian Coastguard was called, and advised Mr. Kenny and the Pettigrews to stick around until they arrived on the scene.

As he awaits the results of an insurance investigation, Mr. Pettigrew figures the fishing season for him has ended early.

But although the 45-foot, $100,000 boat was lost, it was not the first of Mr. Pettigrew's worries, anyway.

"My biggest priority was to save my son and myself," he said, adding, "I've got to give Ryan a pat on the back."

"He came through for me; he didn't panic or anything."

Meanwhile, the Transport Safety Board is conducting an investigation of its own, to determine what caused the fire.

Mr. Pettigrew, a 41-year old resident of Janeville, has been fishing for the past 22 years.

He was still recuperating from the unfortunate ordeal Tuesday, and wasn't really thinking about his next fishing trip.

What was on his mind was gratitude.

He again expressed his thanks to his rescuers, adding, "I'm just glad someone was there for me."

No funds for beach study

Beresford mayor Real Boudreau has a busy week ahead of him, involving both business and pleasure.

The business portion of Mr. Boudreau's plans are of the most serious nature, as far as he is concerned.

"We didn't get the money for the (beach) study," Mr. Boudreau said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

"We're not very happy."

The town has been hoping to get a development plan for its beach off the ground, but has so far been unsuccessful even getting to square one, because of lack of government assistance to conduct a feasibility study.

Mr. Boudreau will express the town's dissatisfaction in a meeting with Department of Tourism, Recreation and Heritage personnel in Fredericton next Monday.

He also plans to meet with Department of Transportation in an effort to get funding for traffic lights on Highway 134 through Beresford. That's something the town has been pursuing every year for the past few years, Mr. Boudreau said.

Unfortunately, the request is continually denied because the town does not pass the criteria set forth by the provincial government.

"Enough is enough," he said, adding the complicated criteria has to do with average traffic and accident ratios; and as far as the government is concerned, Beresford simply does not meet the levels required for additional traffic lights.

Mr. Boudreau pointed out, however, that 9,500 vehicles pass through the town on Highway 134 on an average day.

He said the meetings will not include input from the cabinet ministers responsible for the two departments, but it will come to that if the answers Mr. Boudreau receives in Fredericton next week are not to his satisfaction.

"I'm going to see where things are now, and then I'll go to the top," he said.

On a more pleasant note, Mr. Boudreau has accepted an invitation from Woodstock mayor Harold Culbert to spend some time in the Southern New Brunswick town after his meetings in Fredericton.

Mr. Culbert and Mr. Boudreau took part in a cultural mayoral exchange in October, 1989. Both visited each other's hometowns, taking part in local activities and getting a feel for the differences between the two communities.

Local 550 files grievance

Outside city workers are taking action over a negotiated wage increase, that the City of Bathurst cannot deliver because of the provincial government's one-year wage freeze.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 550, representing the City of Bathurst outside workers, submitted a group grievance Tuesday to the city. Local 550 claimed in a release that the city has violated the current collective agreement, by not paying its employees the proper rate of pay.

Ed Grenier, national CUPE representative for this area, said in the release the workers were entitled to a wage increase effective July 1. However, as a result of the Liberal government of Premier Frank McKenna extending or breaking signed legal contracts, the city has refused to pay the wage increase negotiated by the union, said the release.

Mr. Grenier said the grievance will be referred to an arbitrator at a later date for a decision.

Contacted Tuesday, deputy mayor Bob Anderson said the city would look at the situation, but indicated there is little that can be done.

"Our hands are tied," he told The Northern Light.

The wage freeze legislation, passed earlier this year, extends all contracts between government and public sector unions by one year.

Mr. Anderson said the province controls the purse strings, via unconditional grants given annually to municipalities. As a result, Bathurst and other municipalities have to fall in line behind the government's wage freeze policy.

"We're dictated to," he said.

A provincial election will be held this fall, and the labor movement has organized various protests at Liberal nominating conventions throughout the province, including conventions in St. Anne and Nigadoo.

The government has held its ground, however, saying the wage freeze is necessary, to maintain services and prevent layoffs.

Liquor store for sale

The New Brunswick Liquor Corporation wants to sell its building and property at the corner of St. Peter Avenue and Chaleur Street.

"We're looking at the option of selling and relocating somewhere in the (same) general vicinity," said Jack Dorcas, NBLC vice-president of finance and administration.

"We don't feel we're serving the community as well as we should," he said in a telephone interview from Fredericton this morning Wednesday.

Mr. Dorcas explained the building, which houses the most frequented liquor store in the Chaleur Region, is structurally sound, and the location is good, with a set of traffic lights nearby to aid the flow of traffic. However, "the times have outgrown the building," making the building "dated for the type of modern operation we have."

The NBLC is embarking on an advertising campaign, expected to be 30 days in length, to see if there is any interest in buying the property, which the Crown corporation owns.

The building has a full basement, with 4,500 square feet on each floor level.

Meanwhile, Mr. Dorcas said there is no word on the possibility of the NBLC renting spacing in Harborview Place, the city's new downtown office complex.

"There's nothing happening currently on that subject," he said.

Businessman is mourned

Cyril Coffin died last Tuesday night following a lengthy illness. For many years, he operated Coffin Office Supllies on Douglas Avenue.

Throughout his lifetime, Mr. Coffin was active in both his community and with Bayview Baptist Church, where he was a member.

The body will be resting at Elhatton's Funeral Home with funeral mass to be announced at a later time.

Pathfinder is going to Mexico

Karen Urbanoski has been brushing up on her Spanish lately.

She only has a few sentences mastered, but she'll be able to put them to good use next month.

Karen, the 15-year old daughter of Larry and Joan Urbanoski of Bathurst, has been selected by the Provincial Council of the Girl Guides of Canada to represent New Brunswick on a nationally-sponsored trip to Mexico.

She is one of 14 Canadian Guides who will leave for Mexico City Aug. 20, for a two-week long cultural exchange.

A member of the First Bathurst Pathfinders, Karen is the first local Guide to be chosen for the trip in about 20 years.

She got the honor simply by applying for it, although simple may not be an accurate description.

The process involved the completion of a four-page application, a 300-word essay on why she wanted to go, and references from a Guide leader and two non-Guide individuals.

Having been accepted, Karen is now anxious to be on her way.

"I hope to learn a lot about Mexico," she said, adding the last week of the trip will include some practical work designed to make a contribution of some sort to the country.

The first week will be spent in a Mexico City hotel, while the second will be spent at the Girl Guide World Centre in Cuernavaca.

There, the Canadian group will be joined by groups from the United States, Japan, Venezuela, Argentina, and St. Lucia. There will be 78 girls in all, with two Guide leaders, called Guiders, per group.

They will participate in a "Friendship Session," whereby they will learn about one anothers' home countries, and compare notes on the Guiding program.

The practical work will take place in Cuernavaca, where the group will engage in service project that could mean digging wells or building mud homes for rural Mexicans.

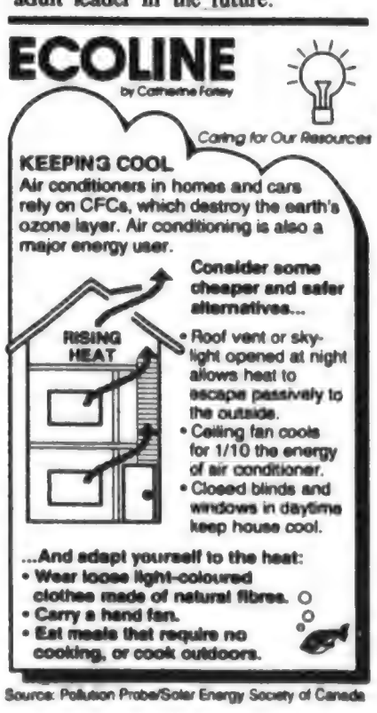
A tentative plan also includes sitting in on religious classes and visiting a convent.

Whatever the case, it is certain to be a learning experience for her.

The first week of the visit, however, will give her a more touristic taste of the country, with sightseeing tours planned, as well as a trip to the Mexican ballet in Mexico City.

When asked what she is most looking forward to about the trip, Karen answered, "Mexican food."

But she knows she will also meet new friends, learn about Mexican crafts, and probably get a chance to add a few more Spanish sentences to her vocabulary.



Karen, who will be entering Grade 10 at Bathurst High School this fall, has been in the Guides programs for nine years.

She plans to continue her Guiding career by becoming a Junior Leader with a Brownie Pack in Bathurst, with an eye toward becoming an adult leader in the future.

Pathfinder Karen Urbanoski looked over a map of Mexico Tuesday. She's going there next month to represent New Brunswick in a cultural exchange.

Downshore homes get numbers

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

"It's nothing mandatory, (but) we're encouraging people to put the numbers up for their own benefit."

It should have been done 30 years ago.

That's the type of comment being heard this week in the the Downshore area, where homeowners are finally acquiring something those in the city have always taken for granted--street numbers.

"The biggest reason is for ambulance service," said Bill Knowles, president of the local service district.

Homes within the district are being given numbers for the first time, as a means of identification. Previously, the close-knit community identified homes simply by knowing who lives where.

The area affected extends from the Bathurst city limits to the lower end of New Bandon, including Canobie, as well as part of Doucetville, Mr. Knowles said.

The idea of using numbers to identify homes makes things easier for fire and ambulance services to reach their destination in case of an emergency, said New-Bandon Salmon Beach Fire Department chief Ernie Smith.

It is something the fire department has been talking about for more than a year, Mr. Smith said, adding ambulance drivers in particular are often unfamiliar with outlying areas such as the Downshore region.

"(The fire department) keeps a good lid on who lives where; but the ambulance services don't."

After months of "on and off" planning since the idea was first hatched, the local service district and the fire department recruited the services of a gentleman who helped get a similar program going in Robertville.

The first numbers were assigned at the beginning of July, with homeowners bearing the responsibility to go out and purchase numbers in whatever style they chose, to affix to their homes.

The project, a cooperative effort between the service district and the fire department, was aided by an Access '91 grant.

Two people were hired through the program to measure the community and help assign numbers, Mr. Smith said.

The system allows for future changes in terms of development. For instance, two adjacent homes may be given numbers 3500 and 3504, to allow for the possibility of a future 3502.

According to Mr. Smith, local stores that sell house numbers are quickly running out of the number four, as downshore residents snatch them up.

But a shortage of fours is not Mr. Smith's main concern; he's more preoccupied with ensuring his message gets across.

"It's nothing mandatory, (but) we're encouraging people to put the numbers up for their own benefit," he said.

Ted Crowther of Salmon Beach was one of many Downshore residents placing numbers on their homes last week. The numbers system is intended to provide a means of identification for firefighters and ambulance drivers in case of emergency. Sharing the moment with Mr. Crowther are his granddaughters Kelsey Drillen (left), and Marika Crowther. Kelsey is the 11-year-old daughter of Philip and Gayle Drillen Of Salmon Beach; and Marika is the 12-year-old daughter of Glen and Sue Crowther, also of Slamon Beach.

Nigadoo pageant tonight

The highlight of this year's edition is the festival pageant this evening Wednesday. Things will get underway at 7 p.m. at the Nigadoo arena, with 11 contestants seeking the festival crown.

Tomorrow Thursday is Olympic day at the Nigadoo arena, starting at 8:30 a.m. A dance for 14 to 18-year-olds will take place at 9 p.m. at the arena, with local hard rock band Nightcrawler.

Also at the arena throughout the week will be Friday's show with Breen LeBoeuf; Saturday's country hoedown with local musical entertainers Pat and Collette; and on Saturday and Sunday afternoon, the arena will host a 'Bistro Pub'.

Sunday will see a truck parade leave Chez Pelletier in Beresford at 2:30 p.m., with trophy presentations at the same location after the parade, at about 5 p.m.

Tug-of-war competitions, horseshoe tournament, and a week-long softball tournament, with finals on Sunday, will also highlight this year's festival.

Less tourists, but they like NB

Tourists may not be staying as long in New Brunswick this year, but those who do seem to be enjoying it.

"I've heard the (tourist) traffic has increased this year, but the actual stop-overs have decreased," said city Parks, Recreation and Tourism director Marc Boudreau.

At least one tourist who spoke with The Northern Light, during a visit to Tourism Information Centre on Vanier Boulevard Tuesday, proved Mr. Boudreau right.

He said he had no real intention of stopping in New Brunswick before going on to the islands, but said he may visit more on the way back.

It was Mr. St. Laurent's frist visit to New Brunswick in about 15 years.

He could not offer any comment on the changes that have taken place over the years except for the construction of Highway 11, which impressed him. But he didn't have to stop in order to see it.

Robert Croteau and his family, also from the province of Quebec, had just arrived from Campbellton Tuesday afternoon. They were planning on driving around the province for their first vacation here in about 10 years.

Although they had just started their journey, Mr. Croteau found New Brunswick to be "very nice so far."

He and his family were also impressed with the new Highway 11, with the friendliness of New Brunswick people, and with the province's bilingual flavor.

The New Brunswick attraction he was most looking forward to visiting was the Acadian Village, an always-popular destination located between Grande Anse and Caraquet.

Also vacationing in the Picture Province for the first time was Melbourne Saulnier and his family, of Digby, N.S.

They had visited St. Andrews, Fredericton and the Miramichi, and liked what they saw; but Mr. Saulnier felt there was little to offer along the way from Fredericton to Bathurst.

He was also looking forward to seeing the Acadian Village, hoping to get a feel for the history and lifestyle of his Acadian ancestors.

Raymond Godin and Claudette Bilodeau of Blainville, Que., were in an even better position to offer an analysis of the local tourist appeal.

Mr. Godin is a native of Petit Rocher who moved to Quebec 30 years ago, returning every summer for a visit with friends in the area.

Camping opportunities have improved, and, of course, there's the new highway.

"People are friendly as usual."

Province has best of both worlds according to Beresford essay writer

(Editor's Note: The following is an essay written by Beresford resident Wendy Savoie. The essay was written as an entry in a contest organized by Dialogue New Brunswick, and took third-place honors. The province-wide contest required participants, of which there were 120, to compose in 300 words or less, an essay stating their thoughts on the theme Two Languages, Une Province...For Me...Formidable!)

Maman or Mommy, Sesame Street or Passe Partout. Does it really have to be either or?

In New Brunswick, children can have the best of both worlds. Our province is rich in culture. We have a school system to be proud of. We have not one, but two official languages. Oh, sure, some say that it's too hard to learn two languages. Some seem to find it difficult to learn even one properly. And if you'll recall, some thought man would never walk on the moon.

The Iron Curtain has fallen in Germany; it's time to unite New Brunswick as well. Time to accept our differences, and yes, even rejoice in them. We in New Brunswick have an opportunity to be educationally and culturally superior to many of our provincial counterparts.

Isn't that odd? After all, we aren't a big province in stature or size. Nor are we an economically dominant one. Yet, we are in a position to show the rest of Canada a thing or two, when it comes to bilingualism.

Still, many question whether New Brunswick is big enough for all that bilingualism entails. I think it is, as long as New Brunswick parents are big enough to accept change and challenge. Every mommy and daddy...chaque maman et papa play a key role in the development of not only our children, but of our province.

We must educate our children against racism and bigotry. We must encourage and nurture understanding and cooperation.

Two languages...one province. New Brunswick...it suits me just fine!

FINISHES THIRD IN ESSAY CONTEST

Wendy Savoie (left) of Beresford was a third-place finisher in an essay contest sponsored by Dialogue New Brunswick. The province-wide contest required participants, of which there were 120, to compose in 300 words or less, an essay stating their thoughts on the theme Two Languages, Une Province...For Me...Formidable! Dialogue New Brunswick is an independent group that works as a catalyst to foster mutual understanding between English-speaking and French-speaking New Brunswickers, so that they collaborate fully in the development of their province. Mrs. Savoie is shown receiving her prize, a cheque for $50, from Anne Church of Fredericton, executive director of Dialogue New Brunswick. (Northern Light Photo)

Arrest made

Motorists crossing the Village Bridge July 10, around 10:30 a.m., were given an opportunity to watch members of the Bathurst City Police Department in action.

Police had received a complaint that someone "was acting kind of weird," near the bridge, said Sgt. Bernie Allain.

When two officers went to investigate, they walked onto the bridge, where they found a man who was carrying a knife.

The officers moved, subdued and arrested Rheal Rouselle, 29, of Bathurst.

Rouselle, a Caraquet native, is known to local police, but considered "pretty harmless," said Sgt. Allain.

Rouselle was subsequently charged with possession of stolen property and assaulting a police officer. He pleaded guilty in provincial court last Friday, and was to be sentenced Tuesday afternoon.

Mishap investigated

A Bathurst man was sent to hospital in Moncton following a mishap on Bridge Street near Woodland Drive last week.

Luc Perron, 23, of Daniel Drive, was transferred from Chaleur Regional Hospital after an accident that is still under investigation by the Bathurst City Police Department.

Mr. Perron was driving West on Bridge Street around 2:38 a.m. July 11, when he suddenly lost control of his vehicle. The 1984 quarter-ton pick-up truck left the road, hit a telephone poll and ended up in a roadside ditch, said Sgt. Bernie Allain.

Mr. Perron's passenger, Pierre Legacy, 23, of Carron Drive, was later treated and released from Chaleur Regional Hospital.

Sgt. Allain noted the asphalt road was wet at the time of the accident, the sky was dark, and it was raining.

The death of Mrs. Adeline Arseneau of Madran occurred July 10, 1991, at Chaleur Regional Hospital at the age of 78.

Born in Bangor, Me., she was a daughter of the late David and Rosanna (Guitard) Pitre. She was predeceased by her husband, Hector.

Mrs. Arseneau is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Martin Vienneau (Irene) of Petit Rocher, Mrs. Omer Hache (Alfreda) of Madran, Mrs. Victorin Roy (Rosalie) of Ste Rosette and Mrs. Rejean DeGrace (Hilda) of LaPlante; eight sons, Alcide, Alfred, Leon, Raymond, Lionel, Livain and Victor, all of Madran, and Rheal of Bathurst; two sisters, Mrs. Louis Jacque (Imelda) of Ontario and Mrs. Agathe Arseneau of Petit Rocher; 36 grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

The body rested at Verret's Funeral Home in Nigadoo. Funeral mass was held July 13 at St-Polycarpe Church in Petit Rocher. Interment in the parish cemetery.

OBITUARY
Kathleen Bradley

The death of Mrs. Kathleen Bradley of 550 Riverside Dr. occurred July 10, 1991, at Chaleur Regional Hospital following a brief illness. She was 92.

Born in Bathurst, she was a daughter of the late Dr. John C. and Delia (Dixon) Meahan. She was the last surviving member of her immediate family whose history in Bathurst dates back to 1833 and who over the years were prominent in shipbuilding, merchandising, medicine and mining.

Mrs. Bradley was educated at Holy Family School, Sacred Heart Academy, Bathurst, and St. Mary's Academy, Newcastle, and graduated from Rosevelt Hospital School of Nursing, New York, in 1925. She remained there until her husband, John C. Bradley, died in 1940, after which she returned to Bathurst to live.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Colin Taylor (Anne) of Bathurst, Mrs. Allan Ryan (Mary) of London, Ont., and Mrs. Ralph Ferguson (Margaret) of Fredericton; six grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews amongst whom are Ms. Helen Meahan and Bill Meahan, both of Bathurst.

She was predeceased by a son, Philip, in 1952.

The body rested at Elhatton's Funeral Home with funeral mass celebrated July 12 at Holy Family R.C. Church. Rev. Levi Arseneault officiated and readings were done by Miss Margaret MacDonald and Mr. Colin Taylor. Hymns were sung by Mrs. Louise Ross and the organist was Mrs. Helen Hachey.

Pallbearers were John Ryan, Timothy Ryan, Bill Meahan, Barry Meahan, Byron Brown and Henry White.

Burial was in the parish cemetery.

Relatives and friends attending from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Allan Ryan and Kara Ryan of London, Ont.; Miss Camilla Ryan of Huntsville, Ont.; Mr. John Ryan of Barrie, Ont.; Mr. Tim Ryan of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ferguson and Meg Ferguson of Fredericton; Mr. Charles Meahan of Hagersville, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Art Dewar of Calabogie, Ont.; Mr. Barry Meahan, Kathryn, Sean and Jennifer Meahan of Caledonia, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Gillespie of Halifax, N.S.; Mr. and Mrs. Don Jenkins of Hampton; Mr. and Mrs. Brent Taylor of Riverview, N.B.; Mr. Charles Ramsey; Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Keenan, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Comeau, all of Fredericton; Mrs. Lonnie Hachey and Charescta Hachey of Dartmouth; and Mrs. Bob Noon of Ottawa.

OBITUARY

O'Reillys returning home to England

Eugene and Mary O'Reilly's year-long visit to Bathurst has provided them with a host of experiences, both good and bad. The couple is now ready to return to England with a well-rounded understanding of Canada and its people, and a greater appreciation of old-fashioned Maritime hospitality. (Northern Light Photo)

Northern Light Staff

When they leave early next month — with four suitcases straining at the seams from the many souvenirs and gifts they have accumulated — they will go with a new understanding of Canada in general, and New Brunswick in particular.

"It's small, rural and friendly," Mr. O'Reilly said in a recent interview.

"That will always be my abiding impression of New Brunswick."

Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly arrived in Bathurst about this time last year, to allow Mr. O'Reilly to take part in a Commonwealth Exchange of Teachers.

The program saw Bathurst High School biology and chemistry teacher Reg Killoran trade places with Mr. O'Reilly, who is head of biology at St. Michael's Catholic High School in Garston, Watford, about 12 miles from his home in Harrow Wield near London.

Mr. Killoran's tour of duty won't be over until later this month, but Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly are already packed and ready to go home.

In the year the couple spent on this side of the Atlantic ocean, they have visited most of Canada, as well as the states of Maine, Massachussetts and New York.

POSITIVE COMMENTS

As for New Brunswick, they covered most of that too; and although they still plan to see Hartland's famous covered bridge before going home, their insights with regards to New Brunswick and its people are already well-informed and mostly positive.

"The people are very friendly, there's no question," Mr. O'Reilly said.

"You can go down the street and people will say hello to you."

Unfortunately, Mr. O'Reilly has found that not everyone he has met elsewhere in his travels shares his enthusiasm.

However, it's not because of any bad experience they may have had; it's simply because they don't know any better.

"No one seems to stop here; it's a pity because (New Brunswick) is so beautiful."

Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly have come to appreciate such sights as Mount Carleton Park, and plan to recommend New Brunswick as a holiday destination for friends back home.

But they feel New Brunswickers themselves could do the same.

"New Brunswick isn't hot on their tourism policy," Mrs. O'Reilly observed.

One need only look at Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island to see how effectively self-promotion can work for a province, they indicated.

PROBLEM ROADS

Part of the problem could be the condition of New Brunswick's roadways, which do not enjoy the best reputation in Canada; nor did they particularly impress the O'Reillys.

"I can appreciate that (in England), there is more money for roads than there is here," Mr. O'Reilly said.

Nevertheless, as the couple made their way to Mount Carleton for a visit, "the road was so bad, we had to turn back."

The O'Reillys' stay in Canada was filled with experiences both good and bad, but roads were in large part the source of the latter.

While travelling from Halifax to Bathurst last March, the couple encountered a snowstorm that would easily have shut down the entire country of England for a day.

"We didn't know how to eat a lobster...The first time I saw (people eating it), it certainly was very strange."

"It was literally eyeball to (windshield)," Mr. O'Reilly said, adding their worst experience of the year involved three slipping and sliding incidents on the highway.

But they emerged unscathed, and eager to tell the tale.

As it turned out, England's major snowstorm this year produced 10 centimetres of snow.

"At home, the place would come to a stop under five centimetres of snow," Mr. O'Reilly said.

FINALLY

Snowshock aside, it was while driving along New Brunswick's highways that Mr. O'Reilly saw something he had hoped to see before leaving the country — a moose.

It was in a clearing about 100 yards away from the highway; Mrs. O'Reilly didn't see it, but her husband did, and won't forget the experience for a while.

"It's a big animal," he said with a smile.

Vehicles in England simply are not equipped for the elements because the elements are not as extreme; so winter driving had its share of harrowing experiences and unusual discoveries.

When an accustomed Canadian explained that plugging in one's car during cold spells is one of the necessary evils of winter driving, Mr. O'Reilly was somewhat taken aback.

"I thought, 'where is the plug; how do I plug the car into something? Do I plug it into the side of the house?'"

But winter was great fun for the O'Reillys, who appreciated the picture-perfect scene of a Canadian Christmas snowfall, but had less appreciation for the "gallons and gallons of water and slush" that inevitably visit in spring.

Another first experience for the O'Reillys was the taste of lobster which, unfortunately, was not to their liking.

"We didn't know how to eat a lobster," Mr. O'Reilly said, adding, "The first time I saw (people eating it), it certainly was very strange."

They attended a number of social outings that included at least one lobster party, but the O'Reillys did not join in the revelry of the crustacean cuisine.

"There must have been 200 lobsters there, and here's us eating a bit of steak."

On the other hand, fiddleheads and the local salmon proved quite agreeable.

Safe grad, intercoms among interesting BHS memories

The work aspect of Eugene and Mary O'Reilly's visit to Bathurst also proved most enjoyable.

"School was great; the whole staff was very welcoming and very helpful," said Mr. O'Reilly, commenting on his year of teaching at Bathurst High School.

The only truly difficult moment that arose was when the school administration buzzed Mr. O'Reilly's classroom via the intercom, and Mr. O'Reilly was expected to respond.

"I was almost embarassed to speak into the intercom," he said.

When he did, he could not help but remember a Canadian teacher who spent some time teaching in England a few years back.

As 800 children roamed through the hallways one day, a message came over the intercom, directed toward the Canadian teacher. Not knowing any better, he walked up to the speaker, looked up — way up — and began to shout back at it.

In England, intercom systems are located about 30 feet from foot level, and work only one way. They are for transmitting messages, not for conversations.

"I still laugh over it," Mr. O'Reilly said with a chuckle.

Some aspects of the school system here stuck in Mr. O'Reilly's mind for different reasons. They are the ones he intends to bring to the attention of his own administration.

One of them is the system of tabulating the names of students who are absent. The lists originate in homerooms, are sent to the administration, and circulated to teachers throughout the day, so they know who is where.

"It's a simple, excellent way of keeping tabs on kids," he said.

The use of computers is also more widespread in Canadian schools, making life easier for teachers, Mr. O'Reilly observed.

"The teachers are very computer-literate; we don't have that so much at home."

Aside from that, very few other differences between the Canadian and English school systems presented themselves.

In the end, as far as Mr. O'Reilly is concerned, all is more or less the same.

He was impressed with the involvement of teachers in extra-curricular affairs, particularly the graduation safe-grad.

High school graduation in itself is a novelty for Mr. O'Reilly, because such affairs do not take place in England; but the all-night safe-grad proved a high point, simply because it gave him a chance to see teachers taking part in a school activity in the wee hours of the morning, and seeming to enjoy it.

"In our system, they don't do that," he said.

Mr. O'Reilly may now be armed with recommendations for his superiors, but his peers had better be prepared for more than just talk about New Brunswick's school system.

"People could come to New Brunswick and really have a super holiday," he said, adding he and Mrs. O'Reilly hope to come back to visit the friends they have made through school, through Mrs. O'Reilly's work at a local kindergarten, and through their many outings.

"Hopefully, that's not the end of it," Mr. O'Reilly said, adding, "Undoubtedly, this has been a year that we'll both always remember."

McColm meets Mulroney

Ken McColm's Incredible Journey has been well received in Ontario, where he will remain for the next three to four months.

"It's adding quite a substantial additional mileage," the blind diabetic walker told The Northern Light in a telephone interview from Ottawa last Friday.

"I'm not crazy about the extra miles, but we will be covering more of Ontario."

The extended visit was suggested by the Canadian Diabetes Association in Toronto, which wanted Ken to cover a more significant portion of Southern Ontario than he had planned.

So far, the province has treated him well, heralding his arrival last week with a procession headed by bagpipers and a police escort.

He was treated to a reception at a downtown Ottawa eatery, and participated in a Beep-Ball game with the Ottawa Blind Sports League against the local media.

Beep-Ball is a game similar to baseball, but uses a ball that beeps to make it easier for blind people.

Ken managed to make it to first base, but fared even better at a Canada Day reception in Montreal July 1.

Taking part in a visit to city hall, interviews and walking tours, Ken also was given the opportunity to meet Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and his wife Mila.

"He told me I was a fine Canadian," Ken said, adding the Prime Minister was presented with an Incredible Journey t-shirt and Ken was treated to VIP status during his stay in Montreal.

Ken had just arrived in Ottawa from Orleans, Ontario, when The Northern Light spoke to him Friday afternoon.

By that time, the Incredible Journey had raised about $100,000 for diabetes research since Ken first set out from Newfoundland in March.

He was expected to finish in Victoria, B. C. in December, but his journey through Ontario could put him behind schedule.

However, he said he will be equipped with heavy winter clothing to get him through the colder months.

Today Wednesday, he should be on his way out of Morrisburg, Ont. headed toward Toronto.

LANG, MAHER WIN GOLFING TITLES

Local golfers Yannick Lang and Kerry Maher won top honors in the Coca-Cola Junior Provincial Championships, held at the Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club in Bathurst Monday and Tuesday. Yannick (left) took the Provincial Boy's Juvenile Championship title (ages 15 to 16-years-old), with a score of 76-76. However, he lost the overall title (ages 15 to 18) to a Saint John golfer by one hole. Yannick was the the defending champion. He played against 110 boys from accross the province. Kerry won her second Overall Provincial Ladies Championship title, and the Provincial Junior Ladies Championship title, with a score of 89-87. Kerry played in a field of 30 girls from across the province. She will represent New Brunswick at the national Junior Ladies championship in Winnepeg next month. Kerry, 18, is the daughter of Bob and Pat Maher of Bathurst. Yannick, 16, is the son of Onil and Margaret Lang of Beresford. See story page 6B.

Appointments are announced by Bishop of Bathurst diocese

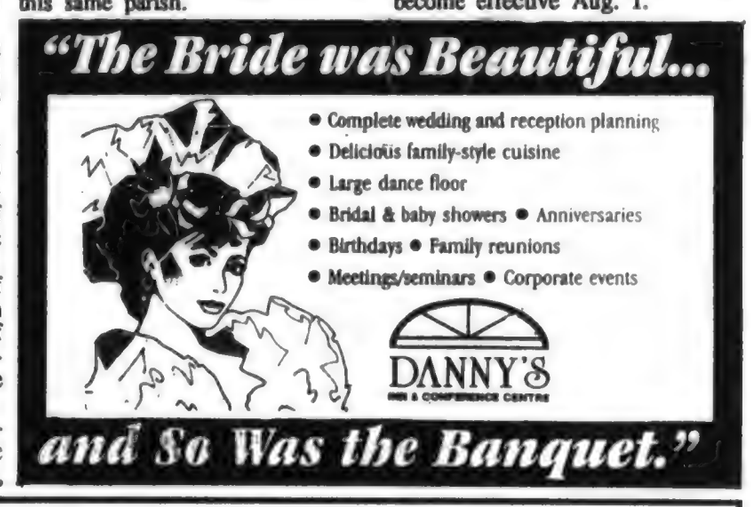
Father Edmond Theriault, pastor of the parishes of Lagaceville and Lavillette, will be comming to Bathurst to organize the diocesan Pastoral Council.

Father Guy Loisel, a Eudist priest newly arrived to the diocese, is appointed pastor of the Lagaceville and Lavillette parishes.

FatherJean-Guy Thibodeau, chaplain at the Tracadie Hospital and in charge of liturgical services at Saint-Irenee, will leave for a period of studies at Villa Manrese, in Quebec City.



Father Regent Landry, curate of Saint-John the Baptist parish, in Dalhousie, is appointed chaplain of the Tracadie Hospital and responsible for the liturgical services in the parish of Saint-Irenee.

Father Maurice Frenette, administrator of Saint Marguerite Bourgeoys parish in Saint-Leolin, will also become responsible for the parish of Saint-Rose. He will henceforth assume the pastoral care of both parishes.

Father Yvon Hache, at present administrator of the parish of Saint-Simon, is now appointed pastor of this same parish.

Father Martin Roy has received a leave of absence.

The appointment of a new pastor in Lagaceville and Lavillette is effective at the beginning of next September. The other appointments will all become effective Aug. 1.

United States bucking abolitionist trend

Washington Notebook

By KEVIN BELL
Washington Bureau
Thomson News Service

It has been dubbed "the land of the death penalty."

While countries around the world are renouncing executions, the United States is executing more prisoners every year.

During 1990, seven countries abolished the death penalty, bringing the total number of abolitionist nations to 44. Another 17 restrict executions to exceptional offences and 25 others do not exercise their death penalty provisions. In Canada, the death penalty was abolished in 1976. Several compaigns to have it reinstated have failed.

"The worldwide trend to abolish the death penalty is a sign that countries are willing to give up the medieval tradition of seeking retribution," says Carole Nagengast, chairperson of Amnesty International U.S.A.

But the U.S. is defiantly bucking the trend. A crime bill before Congress would bring the number of crimes punishable by death to 49. The U.S. Supreme Court also recently restricted inmates' rights to appeal death sentences.

Since the court ruled in 1977 that states may resume executions, 34 have opted to do. States executed 143 people from 1977 through 1990. More than 2,300 other people are on death row.

Amnesty International, which strongly opposes the death penalty, comes down hard on the U.S. in its 1991 annual review of human rights abuses around the world.

FLAMES AND SMOKE

"The unique cruelty of the death was graphically demonstrated when flames and smoke emitted from Jesse Tafero's head-piece during his electrocution in Florida in May (1990)," it said. Three applications of electricity were used before he was pronounced dead.

In Illinois, three physicians inserted an intravenous tube into Charles Walker's arm to administer a lethal injection. It is believed to be the first time doctors have directly participated in an execution, contrary to the guidelines of the American Medical Association and the World Medical Association.

In Louisiana, Dalton Prejean, a black who was mentally retarded, was put to death despite the fact he was a juvenile when he murdered a white police officer. The prosecutor in the case used his peremptory challenges to exclude any blacks from the all-white jury.

Alleged racial bias in executions is now receiving special attention in Congress, and the focus is on the Chattahoochee judicial district in central Georgia.

The Washington-based Death Penalty Information Centre (DPIC) told a congressional subcommittee that Chattahoochee prosecutors tend to seek the death penalty when victims are whie. The judicial system is placing a premium on white lives over black, it said.

Whites represent only 35 per cent of murder victims, but 85 per cent of the capital cases brought by prosecutors involve white victims. In most cases, the prosecutors used their challenges to exclude blacks from juries, it says.

The Southern Prisoners' Defence Committee also reported that Chattahoochee prosecutors sught the death penalty in 34.3 per cent of the cases that involved a white victim and only 5.8 per cent of cases involving black victims.

In the past 18 years, 27 people have been sentenced to death in the district, leading some to call it Death Valley. The DPIC report called the region a "microcosm" of a "national disgrace".

Although the report examines the race of the victim instead of the accused, Amnesty International says Blacks are 11 times more likely to receive the death sentence than whites in some jurisdictions.

"We see the death penalty used against blacks and the poor as a human rights abuse," said John Healey, executive director of the organization's American chapter. "Organized crime figures will never be on death row."

In an attempt to reduce racial bias in sentencing, legislation is before the House of Representatives that would allow courts to consider statistics on racial disparities in death sentences. President George Bush opposes the measure, which failed to pass last year.

Behind schedule

When it comes to tourism, it is no secret New Brunswick lags behind other Maritime provinces.

If any among us still have doubt, cross the border at Aulac, south of Sackville, into Nova Scotia: flowers, tourist information centres, good signage. Now turn around and come back: mounds of dirt, patched roadway, and a sign on an old covered bridge that reads New Brunswick.

We all know the provincial government is seeking monies from Ottawa to upgrade our highways. An uphill battle, but a necessary and important one.

As for other aspects of tourism, signage and the like, the question is, how did we fall so far behind our fellow Atlantic Provinces? And more importantly, how long is it going to take to catch up?

We all lose

The Chaleur Region is not a "hot spot" for cross-border shopping, since we do not live close to Maine.

However, we are not immune to revenue losses from people shopping south of the border to escape taxes.

While we do not argue that there are bargains to be found in the United Staes, local merchants should be supported whenever possible — if not for them for ourelves. When local stores board up their windows and pack it in, we all lose — closed doors mean lost jobs, and lost jobs means even less money in the local economy.

Thanks from organizer of city pencil campaign

July 1921

Chief of Police Chamberlain is back in town after attending the Policemen's Convention in Montreal, and from conversations with him it is clear that he is fired up with the enthusiasm of the general police movement against the ever increasing dangers of precocity.

One of his first actions upon returning to town was to issue an edict against the driving of automobiles by people under 18 years of age. It is not that such people cannot drive, for they can, and they do, but the dangers attendant upon the practice are too obvious and too manifold to require any explanation. After this week therefore, one of the possible sources of trouble should be well on the way towards elimination.

Mr. Leon Arseneau of Tremblay Settlement, a small but prosperous community a few miles west of Bathurst, recently had the good fortune to capture alive a young moose which had made itself at home among his cattle.

The denizen of the woods seems to have become perfectly domesticated and is now happy to be made the pet of the family and the many visitors who call the lordly animal at close range.

For the first time in a number of years, the Bathurst Race Track will echo to the hoofbeats of thoroughbreds when an ambitious program starts July 30.

The races are sponsored by G. Blondin Thomas, noted horse trainer of Nouvelle, Que., and Mr. Henry Good of Dalhousie.

The track is in the course of being reconditioned for the event, and a good field of horses and well-filled classics are promised to racing enthusiasts.

Officials of the Donald Eddy Memorial Hall were agreeably surprised at the success of the two first Friday night motorboat cruises. Some 40 mothers, children and teenagers enjoyed the first two-hour cruise and 42 the second trip last Friday on which members of the TNT Club predominated.

The committee in charge wishes it known that it plans to continue these trips every Friday night until further notice. It is emphasized that these are not commercial profit-making ventures, as only a nominal contribution of 25 cents is asked as a share in gas and oil and advertising expenses.

June, the traditionally popular month for weddings, took on a new role here this year. It was a record month for births at the Hotel Dieu, breaking a previous record for any other 30 or 31-day period since the institution opened in 1942 by 14.

Hospital authorities report 102 new arrivals, including three sets of twins on June 12, 16 and 18. This surpassed the August 1959 record of 88. Next closest was April 1960, when the total was 85.

And...if the 12 births recorded from July 1 to noon July 4 are any indication of this month's activity on the maternity floor, the new record might also be broken.

First phase of the project costing over $2 million includes a 70,000 square-foot K-Mart department store, a 23,000 square-foot Dominion grocery store, a number of smaller shops and a theatre.

The succeeding phases of the development will include a hotel complex, office building and apartments and possibly a medical-dental clinic.

Cost of the entire project is estimated to exceed $5 million.

Best of Irish culture coming

July 12

Dear Editor,

Words like gathering, cultural celebration, unity, kinship, reconciliation, poetry, music, dance, and fun, tumbled off the pages of the July, 1991 issue of The Shamrock Leaf, the newsletter of the Irish Canadian Cultural Association of New Brunswick.

World news blasts out depression from every corner of the globe. That's one reason that our present news on Irishowen tour breathes such a gust of joy across Planet Earth, and more precisely, across our own province of New Brunswick.

Basically, all humans of good will want to celebrate the loveliness which unites us, without denying the differences which cause us pain.

A living witness to the ability of people to rise above the pall of negativity is the Irishowen Tour. More than one hundred artists gleaned from Northern and Southern Ireland leap over traditional cultural and religious barriers, which have often prevented these talented lovers of art from gathering to share their God-given gifts.

Today, they are stretching that leap across the Atlantic Ocean to taste our own rich culture of New Brunswick while offering us theirs.

Hospitality has always been characteristic of the Irish people — may they find delight in ours as we open wide our hearts and homes to our Irish guests who will be with us in Bathurst, Wednesday, July 31 and Thursday, Aug. 1! Some of us hope to make a return visit to Ireland in 1992.

Now, as July moves into August, let us all enter wholeheartedly into the spirit of the fun event.

"Our summers are always too short, and we tend to complain about a lack of excitement in our little 25 year-old City of Bathurst. Help to make it come alive with play involving music, poetry, dancing and theatre."

Our summers are always too short, and we tend to complain about a lack of excitement in our little 25 year-old City of Bathurst. Help to make it come alive with play involving music, poetry, dancing and theatre.

Participation is the key ingredient still needed to allow the year's plans of many hard workers and over 100 performers explode into a successful spectacle of delight.

Quoting from The Shamrock Leaf: "Don't miss the Inishowen tour on its N.B. visit...

You may never see their like again. As the group makes its way throughout the province, it will be bringing the very best of Irish culture, while at the same time promoting unity and kinship among ethnic communities."

Wednesday July 31

She walked 1,150 miles with Ken

Pat Sargent's participation in the Incredible Journey is over for now, but she has lots more walking planned in the near future.

Mrs. Sargent married to Gary Sargent, a member of the Incredible Journey's main organizer, the Telephone Pioneers of America.

She accompanied blind diabetic walker Ken McColm as he walked from Antigonish, N.S. to Montreal--a distance of some 1,150 miles.

"It was not a difficult walk," she told The Northern Light Friday.

"On the whole, it was pretty good."

Ken's pace is averaging about 32 kilometres a day, which isn't fast; but the experience was excellent training for a speed-walking competition Mrs. Sargent intends to enter at the end of this month.

The 13 kilometre race is being held in the state of Vermont; and she also plans to speed-walk in the Montreal marathon this year.

Mrs. Sargent, who has been "a serious speed-walker" for the past four years, has walked with Ken before; but this last trek was particularly long and full of interesting experiences.

"There were lots of seniors' club meetings; and we went to a lot of school and picnics," she said, adding she also stayed overnight at a priest's residence in St. Valier, Quebec.

Other than herself, Ken and his entourage, the only other residents were a Telephone Pioneer and "a big, funny priest."

Although Quebec crowds were not as receptive to the Incredible Journey as those elsewhere, it wasn't necessarily because of any sense of apathy.

"We couldn't travel on the main road," Mrs. Sargent said, adding doing so in Quebec would mean acquiring a walking license. So the Incredible Journey stuck to the side roads while in Quebec.

Mrs. Sargent said the motorhome that is following Ken, who has so far raised about $100,000 for diabetes research, can now be reached by dialing 1-800-563-WALK.

Ken, a Bathurst writer, is walking across Canada to raise monies for a cure for diabetes, and to raise public awareness about the disease which took his sight.

He began his walk, dubbed the Incredible Journey, in March in Newfoundland, and is scheduled to finish in Victoria, B.C. in December.

Stereotype about carnies is unfair

Sitting Back
With GREG MULOCK
Personal opinion from the managing editor

Hucksters. Con artists.

Those are just two of the unfriendly terms sometimes used to describe "carnies," the people who work carnival midways.

Such generalizations are hardly fair, as a recent incident in our community illustrates, related to me by a member of the Bathurst Lions Club, Glyn MacDonald.

The story involves Campbell Amusements, a carnival outfit basked out of Bramtford, Ont. The midway was set up in the Chaleur Centre parking lot during the recent summer festival, brought in by the local Lions Club.

Mrs. Eugene Boulay of Gaspé, vacationing in Bathurst June 28, inadvertently left her purse on top of her car, and rove away. The owner of Campbell Amusements, Joyce Campbell, later found the purse on the nearby bypass, its contents scattered far and wide.

Mrs. Campbell and her travelling companion searched both sides of the roadway, finding pieces of identification — and in excess of $1,000 in large bills.

It took about a week, but the grateful owner was finally contacted, and the money returned.

Says real sabbath Saturday

July 15

Dear Editor,

Almost noboby is aware of it, but most are breaking one of God's greatest commandment, the fourth one. It is the day of rest, the sabbath, the seventh day of the week, we call it Saturday.

He created the sabbath by resting on that seventh day (Genesis 2:2-3. He reminded again Israel at Mount Sinia (Exodus 20:8-11). And His commandments are forever (Psalms 111:7-10). One of the last things Malachi said in the Old Testament was "Remember the law"... (Malachi 4:4). And the next to this book is the New Testament, and some say now, "the law is done away".

Where did they dig that up? The sabbath was never done away with, and Jesus observed every one of them and all his disciples after him. And the easiest thing to find is that they all observed the sabbath day. Nowhere in the Bible does it say the seventh day, the sabbath, the day of rest, has been shifted to the first day of the week or any other day for a day of rest.

Why Sunday today? What Bible autority can support that? None!

Maybe we can understand this verse in Revelations a little better now: "And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent called the Devil, and Satan which deceiveth the whole world" (Rev. 12:9). Today Satan is the god of this world (2 Corinthians 4:4). And he's going to be there until Jesus returns at the end of this age (Matthew 24:30). Then, at that time, Satan will be put away (Rev. 20:1-3).

And that's why we all observe Sunday today because we're all deceived.

Comments on this, that

July 14

Dear Editor,

The July 1 holiday has come and gone and so has "hospitality days." Hadn't it not been for the "Kids from Maria," we wouldn't have had a band. The parade might have been the longest and slowest, but anyone who says that it was the best ever hasn't been too long around Bathurst, I'd say.

Driving through Coronation Park the other Sunday afternoon, I listened to a few selections played by our community band, and I must say they sound good. I suppose it will take practice before they can march, in time. Keep up the good work.

According to the figure, $12,000 spent for fireworks. Didn't see any of it — bad enough some of our money goes down the drain, I couldn't bear to watch it go up in smoke. And, what's the rumor of having a Halifax firm to set off the firecrackers? This is going too far, isn't it? This money could have been better spent on uniforms for our band members. Let's see what the city does about it.

While speaking of money, how much did it cost the taxpayers to send the mayor and three councillors to Newfoundland, recently? Are these trips necessary? Why four people? What do they learn? Just a big social event, from what I gather. And we pay for it. These trips should be eliminated, in my view.

A new parks and recreation director has been appointed. Now, let's see if he trims the staff. Just imagine 80 people in this department, for a little town like this. Too many sporting and not enough working.

And what's this I hear, couldn't get a qualified electrician, in Bathurst? Had to give the job to an outsider, again. Something's wrong here.

On to another theme, why do ambulances use St. Peter Avenue so often when on call? Don't they know that the bypass would be much quicker and safer in most cases? And why are the attendants looking for hospital and Medicare cards, wasting valuable time when a person may be having a stroke or heart attack? A life could be at stake here.

Would prefer a plebiscite

July 11

Dear Editor,

I am writing to add my voice concerning the proposed site for the civic centre. I would like for you to note that this letter is also addressed to the citizens and taxpayers of Bathurst.

For the past several months, I have been reading your letters coming from the people expressing their views on where to build the civic centre. Tonight I am expressing my view on it. I am very angry; I do not like the site at all.

The people have the right to express their anger. We are the forgotten people who cannot express their point of view at city council. We are being ignored our rights and we are not heard.

I read the article about Mr. George Astle appearing before the council meeting about where he wants the civic centre, at White's Wharf. I do believe White's Wharf is the best location.

I am one hundred per cent behind Mr. Astle's proposal. This pitching and picking as to where the centre is to be built should stop. It's getting us nowhere.

I only have one solution for this problem. Tonight I have written to the City of Bathurst to solve that problem. I propose a plebiscite on this matter, during next spring's municipal election.

Let us decide where the civic centre is to be built. It will be our duty as taxpayers in this city to have a say where the centre should go, rather then council deciding for itself.

Report shows police were busy

Silver Points
By SONIA-SIMARD CORMIER
News from 25 years ago.

July 21, 1966

Although there wasn't much in the news department during this week, there was an article of some interest about the day-to-day work being accomplished by the city police department. In this partial police report to city council no details were omitted as the following segment illustrates.

"Facts and Figures: Convictions, 28 criminal code; 67 motor vehicle act; 38 N.B. Liquor Control Board; 47 City of Bathurst bylaw; 3 premises left unsecured; 8 in for protection; 301 meter fines; patrol car mileage, 9,525; and parking meter collections for June $2,644.05." Now that's what I call keeping the taxpayer informed!

As for keeping the public entertained, you could always count on the Kent Theatre. At that time the local cinema operated seven nights a week and even included special matinees, during summer and Saturdays year-round.

ELEVATOR FUND RISES

St. Polycarpe church in Petit Rocher received $1,000 July 4 from the Community Services Fund of the Royal Canadian Legion, New Brunswick Command. This will go towards the church's $70,000 project to build an elevator in the church for seniors and handicapped people. The money was raised through a levee of one dollar charged per member, per year. Members of Chaleur Branch No. 100 of the Royal Canadian Legion in Petit Rocher applied to the New Brunswick Command for the financial support. Front from left are Nancy Arsenault, president of Chaleur Branch No. 100; Leandre Roy, president of the elevator project; and Henry Doucet, Chaleur Branch No. 100 secretary. Back from left are Lise Laforest; Chaleur Branch No. 100 treasurer; Father Leo Lanteigne, parish priest; Wendell Firlotte of Dalhousie, provincial chairman of the Community Services Fund; and Don Thorburn of Dalhousie, Branch No. 17 president and legion deputy commander for the North Shore district.

Federal monies announced

Bernard Valcourt has announced $365,544 to allow 50 unemployed workers in the riding of Restigouche-Chaleur to retain their work skills.

"These projects will enable the participants to maintain their work skills while unemployed, and also improve their future career prospects," said a release from Mr. Valcourt, MP for Madawaska-Victoria, and federal minister of Employment and Immigration.

Section 25 (formerly section 38) of the UI Act allows businesses and organizations to undertake projects of benefit to the community by helping unemployed workers use and maintain their skills while receiving unemployment insurance.

These projects will permit seven different communities or organizations to create 50 jobs in a region where the rate of unemployment is generally quite high. It is consistent with the socio-economic development of the region.

Included in the announcement is $67,403 for Atlas Society Park Inc, creating seven jobs to improve the quality of this tourism-based park in Pointe Verte.

Meanwhile, the Village of Pointe Verte will receive $48,222 to improve municipal facilities, creating six jobs.

The Robertville Gold Age Club Inc. will receive $30,254 to expand an existing structure creating six jobs, and the Petit Rocher Recreation Association will receive $29,120 to improve existing infrastructures. This project will create 6 jobs.

Section 25 (formerly section 38) fo the UI Act allows businesses and organizations to undertake projects of benefit to the community, while helping unemployed workers use and maintain their skills while receiving unemployment insurance.

Fifty-six persons receive their Diploma of Apprenticeship and Certificate of Qualification at the N.B.C.C. - Bathurst

The New Brunswick Community College - Bathurst offers a complete apprenticeship program to persons wishing to become competent labourers in the field of their choice.

The apprenticeship program consists of two components, the first being a practical training and the second a related collegial training prepared to develop highly qualified persons in their field.

Under the direction of the employer and competent instructors, the apprentice learns to better know the occupation he or she has chosen, knowledge of the occupation, and the qualifications required.

During the past year, July 1, 1990 to June 30, 1991, 56 persons have received their diplomas in apprenticeship and their aptitude certificates rendering them as fellow workers in their field.

Of that number, 39 have received an international level award, in other words, they have qualified to work in this province as well as in any other Canadian persons.

The N.B.C.C. - Bathurst is pleased to present these persons:

IN MEMORIAM

DUGUAY- In loving memory of our mother Mildred Duguay.
"Do Good; O'Lord, to the Good and to the Upright of Heart".

IMOUGH- In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grand-mother. VANGY, who left us so suddenly on July 16, 1986.
Beautiful memories woven in gold
This is the picture we tenderly hold
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept
To love and cherish and never forget.
A loving wife and mother, true and kind
No friend on earth like you we'll find
With farewells left unspoken
You quickly slipped away.
When God saw you getting tired
And a cure was not to be
He put His arms around you
And whispered "Come to Me".
Lord, keep Your arms around her
And keep her in your care
Make up for all she suffered
And all that was unfair.
God knows how much we miss you Mom
As it dawns five years today
It broke our hearts to lose you
But one thing makes us glad
That you chose to share with us
Those precious years we had.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by husband Manny, children Joyce, Brian, Darlene, Keith, grandson Kirk, and new grand-daughter Linsay.

PERSONALS

PRAYER
THROUGH APPLICATION to the Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you, even and in spite of all material illusion. I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this pray for three consecutive days. This prayer must be published immediately after the favor is granted without mentioning the favor. Only your initials shall appear at the bottom. Thank you. G.D.

IN THE MATTER of the Quieting of Titles Act, being Chapter Q-4 of the Revised Statutes of New Brunswick, 1973, as 270 amended and Rules 70 of the Rules of Court of New Brunswick,

IN THE MATTER of the Application of ALVERA NINI MELANSON, of the City of Bathurst, in the County of Gloucester and Province of New Brunswick, for a Certificate of Title in respect of certain lands situate, lying, and being at the City of Bathurst, in the County of Gloucester and Province of New Brunswick.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN,
PUBLIC NOTICE
UNDER THE QUIETING OF TITLES ACT
(FORM 79B)

ALVERA NINI MELANSON will make an application before the Court at Bathurst, N. B., on the 12th day of August, 1991, at 9:15 o'clock for a certificate that she is the owner of land located at the City of Bathurst, in the County of Gloucester, Province of New Brunswick, the legal description of which land is set out in Schedule "A".

If any person claims an interest in such land, or any part thereof, he must appear at the hearing of the application at the place and time stated, either in person or by a New Brunswick lawyer acting on his behalf.

Any person who intends to appear at the hearing of the application and wishes to present evidence to support his position must, no later than the 5th day of August, 1991,

b) serve a copy thereof on the applicant's lawyer, Brent D. Therlault, at the above address.

The claim of any person who does not file and serve an adverse claim will be barred and the title of the applicant will become absolute, free of the exceptions or qualifications set forth in S.18(1)(c)(d) of the Quieting of Titles Act, R.S.N.B. 1973 c.Q-4 but subject to the exceptions or qualifications set forth in S.18(1)(a)(b)(e) of the Quieting of Titles Act.

Adverse claimants are advised that:

a) they are entitled to issue documents and present evidence in the proceeding in English or French or both;

b) the applicant intends to proceed in the English language; and

c) if adverse claimants require the services of an interpreter at the hearing they must so advise the clerk upon filing his adverse claim.

THIS NOTICE is signed and sealed for the Court of Queen's Bench by GREGOIRE BOUDREAU, Clerk of the Court at Bathurst, N. B., on the 8th day of July, 1991.

Catholic Turtles?

Although it is the most famous, the Sistine Chapel Frescoes are only one of themany artistic contributions that Michaelangelo made to the Catholic Church. Today, another Michaelangelo, a 1990's reptilian version, has also contributed, this time to the liturgy of the Catholic faith. During that part of the Mass in which all faithful are enjoined to offer a "sign of peace" to their fellow worshipers, one sweet young thing pulled her thumb out of her mouth and held it up to the person sitting next to her, saying "Cowabunga Dude!"

MAPPING THINGS OUT

Claudette Bilodeau and Raymond Godin of Blainville, Que. took time to look over a map of the Bathurst area during a visit to the Tourist Information Centre on Vanier Boulevard Tuesday. Although Mr. Godin is originally from Petit Rocher and likes to return for a visit every year, some tourists seem to only be passing through. Those who do stay, however, have good things to say about the Picture Province. See story page two, this section.

Police, fire depts. in a weightlifting challenge for charity

The Bathurst city fire and police departments will square off next month to test their fundraising skills — and to protect their reputations.

"It will be a weightlifting contest," said firefighter Fred Morrison, who is the representative for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada in the local fire department.

The firefighters will take on the city police at P.J.'s Pub and Eatery Aug. 24, in a weightlifting competition to raise funds for the association. The theme of the event, which is slated to begin at 7 p.m., is Building Muscles to Aid Those Who Can't.

The contest will be divided into three categories of exercise: bench press, leg extensions, and arm curls; those participating will be canvassing for donations and sponsorship, and will test their strength by performing as many repetitions as they can in one set.

In the bench press, the participants will be expected to press the equivalent of their body weight; the leg extensions will be performed with a quarter of the individuals' body weight; and the arm curls, with one-third.

Winners will be announced in each category, but Mr. Morrison noted only reputations are at stake.

"The main objective is to raise money for Muscular Dystrophy," he said, adding, "It's also to promote physical fitness."

This marks just the second time such an event has been held in Canada.

A similar weightlifting competition for MD was held in Saskatoon in the late 1980s, successfully raising about $6,000.

Mr. Morrison said there will be no monetary objective for next month's contest, but the two departments will attempt to outdo each other by seeing who can raise the most funds.

An as yet undecided cover charge will apply to those members of the public who wish to watch the event, and door prizes will be awarded, Mr. Morrison said.

MONCTON MAYOR VISITS BATHURST

Moncton Mayor Leopold Belliveau (right) was recently in Bathurst for the close of a municipal cultural exchange between his city and Bathurst. He and Bathurst mayor Kevin Mann exchanged municipal flags in Moncton May 31. The exchange between the two cities was funded by the Department of Municipal Affairs, as part of an effort to encourage exchanges between New Brunswick municipalities. Mr. Belliveau is shown signing the city's guest book July 7 in the presence of Mayor Mann. (Northern Light Photo)

LEGION SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED LOCAL STUDENTS

The Herman J.Good V.C. Branch No.18 Royal Canadian Legion awarded four annual scholarships Monday of $1,000 each. The recipients were all students from the Bathurst area. Members of the scholarship committee who were present were Percy Bendell (far left) and Art Bond (second left). The scholarships were given out by Robert Smith (far right), chairman of the scholarship committee. The recipients are, from third left, Kim Mersereau, who received the Herman J.Good Memorial Bursary, and who will study business at the University of St. Frances Xavier in Antigonish, N.S.; Bryanna White, the A.M. McMurray Memorial Bursary, second year music at Mount Allison University in Sackville (second renewable bursary years out of four annual years); and Tanya Fisher, the Harry Willett Memorial Bursary, University of New Brunswick in Fredericton for a bachelor of elementary education. Missing from photo is Susan Marie Boucher, the Phil Andrews Memorial Award, at St. Mary's University. Kim, 18, is the daughter of Jay and Roz Mersereau of Bathurst. Bryanna, 19, is the daughter of Mark and Francine White of Bathurst. Tanya, 17, is the daughter of Bernie and Joyce Fisher of Bathurst. All four recipients of these awards are granddaughters of war veterans from the Bathurst area.

Violent incident nets pair jail terms

Two local men sentenced Tuesday on multiple charges, stemming from a weapon-waving incident last year, were given a stern tongue-lashing from the judge.

"When you're talking about brandishing axes and machetes, you're not talking about a snowball fight," Provincial Court Judge J. Frederic Arsenault said before passing sentence on William Gray and Alfred Legacy.

Gray was sentenced to a total of 31 days in jail for possessing a weapon dangerous to the public peace, assaulting a police officer, resisting arrest, obstructing a police officer, damage to police property.

Legacy was sentenced to 21 days for possessing a weapon dangerous to the public peace, resisting arrest and damaging police property.

Gray and Legacy were given the option of serving their sentences from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays only, at the Bathurst jail. Judge Arsenault said they could not serve on weekends, because the Dalhousie jail, where such sentences are normally carried out, is overcrowded.

The two had pleaded not guilty to all charges in an earlier court appearance; but they changed their plea to guilty Tuesday. Crown Prosecutor George Chiasson withdrew a charge against Gray for resisting arrest, and one against Legacy for common assault.

The charges stem from an incident outside the Penguin Club around 2 a.m. Dec. 30, 1990.

According to a police report read in court by Mr. Chiasson, one of the accused had been involved in an argument with a patron inside the club; the other got involved when the altercation moved outside.

Shortly after one of them smashed a beer bottle on the hood of a taxi cab. Both grabbed weapons from the back of Gray's truck, which was parked nearby. One weapon was a machete and the other was a small hatchet; both weapons were in the possession of a police officer seated at the front of the public gallery during the court session.

The two then scuffled with police officers who arrived at the scene. When the officers initially tried to place Legacy in a squad car, Gray attempted to obstruct them. Gray was eventually placed in the back of a squad car, which he began to kick from the inside, causing $217.35 in damage.

Both said they were heavily intoxicated at the time, and their lawyer, Terry Lenihan, said Gray told him he could not remember striking one of the police officers.

Both Gray and Legacy have prior convictions, but judge Arsenault noted none had any relation to the type of charges brought against them in December.

Judge Arsenault called the Penguin Club incident a serious one, even though no one was hurt.

UNACCEPTABLE

"There was a potential for serious harm to be done to people who had congregated there," he said, adding Gray and Legacy's behavior that night was "simply not acceptable."

"That is not the kind of community anybody would want to live in, whether we're talking about Bathurst or any other city in the country," he said, adding, "The signal has to go out that if people are going to (act that way), then it's going to be met with appropriate punishment.

In addition to the prison term, Gray and Legacy will have to pay restitution to the city for the damages caused to the police cruiser and mattress, and will be placed on one-year probation following the completion of their sentence.

R.H. FRENETTE WINS DIVISION IN TOURNAMENT

The winners of the Labatt's Blue Pitch Softball Tournament in the Big League division was the R.H. Frenette team of Nigadoo. The tournament hosted 28 teams from throughout New Brunswick, and ran from July 11 to July 14 at the Coronation ballfield. The Nigadoo team defeated the Robertville Roi du Poulet team 13 to 8. To enter into the semi-finals, the Nigadoo team played the Allardville Cultural Centre, and Robertville played the Right Spot Classics. Nigadoo walked away with the Labatt's Championship trophy and $600, while the runners-up from Robertville received $300. The R.H. Frenette Nigadoo team shown front from left are Marc DeGrace, Mario Doucet, Donald DeGrace (most valuable player for the team), and Dale Hadley. Back from left are Rejean Hachey, Marc Pelletier, Barry Legacy, Robert DeGrace, Marc-Andre Chiasson (winning pitcher), and Andre Boudreau. Missing from photo are Laurent Roy (one single and one double in the final), Charles Comeau, and Geatan Losier. From the Robertville team Stephane Legacy had a home run, and Harvey Legacy had one double, also in the final match-up.

JANEVILLE BREW CREW TRIUMPHS

The winners of the Labatt's Blue Pitch Softball Tournament in the House League division was the Janeville Brew Crew. The tournament hosted 28 teams throughout New Brunswick, and ran from July 11 to July 14 at the Coronation ballfield. The Janeville team edged the Penguin Club Spoilers team by a score of 6-5. The game was a tie 5-5 in the last inning when the Brew Crew picked- p the last run in the bottom of the seventh. The Janeville team took away the Labatt's Championship trophy and $400, while the runners-up from the Penguin Club Spoilers team received $200. Front from left are the Janeville Brew Crew champions: Vaughn Daley, Blair Scott (winning pitcher), Leon Duguay, Shane Good, and Kirk Knowles (one single and one double in the final game). Back from left are Lester Sullivan, Steve Martin (most valuable player for the team, with one single and one double in the final game), Darrin Sullivan, Scott Good, Charles Scott, Keith Sealy, and Benny Murphy. Missing from photo are Peter Knowles, and Dwight Scott. From the Penguin Club Spoilers, the losing pitcher was Danny Daigle and Louis Theriault was the top hitter with one single and one triple in the final.

She's the champ!

Kathy Grebenc

Kathy Grebenc would be the first to tell you that a nine-stroke margin with only one round to go in a golf tournament is a nearly impossible one to overcome.

And she also may be the first to ever go out and do it, claiming the New Brunswick ladies amateur championship in the process.

"That's a rarity," she said in an interview with The Northern Light. "The chances of that happening are slim to none."

The one-stroke victory July 10 represents the second amateur title in three years for the Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club member, and also secured her a spot on the four-woman provincial team off to the Canadian championships later this summer.

Grebenc, 32, carded rounds of 84, 82 and 83 in the first three rounds, placing her nine-shots behind leader Mary Ellen Driscoll of Riverside with only one round to play. Driscoll, seeking a record 25th amateur title, saw her final round uncharacteristically balloon to 86, while Grebenc came in with a solid 76 to gain the title by the slimest of margins.

According to Grebenc, this latest victory was better than the one in 1989.

"This one was nicer because there wasn't a playoff, and I finished well in the last round," she said.

Joining the local golfer on the amateur team are Driscoll, Leanne Richardson of Moncton, and Debbie MacLeod of Woodstock. Patricia Clowater of Fredericton is the alternate.

Valerie Frenette of Gowan Brae finished the senior portion of the provincials with a four-round total of 367, based on scores of 89, 89, 89 and 100. Those scores were enough to secure the alternate spot on the senior ladies team.

Volleyball event draws 64 teams to Youghal

The Third Annual Labbatt's O' St. Pierre Invitational Volleyball Tournament was a success again this past weekend at Youghal Beach, although the men's title was taken out of town.

Brian Rourke and Brian Johnstone, both of Dartmouth, N.S., captured this year's men's title by the end of the finals Sunday, edging out Gilles Boudreau of Fredericton and his partner, Travis Murphy of Halifax.

Tony Desjardins of Beresford and Gaetan Lepage of Balmoral were the third-place runners-up.

A local player did manage to walk off with a first-place finish in the ladies' division, however.

She was Kim Jamieson, and she and her partner Cathy Ramier of Fredericton defeated Alice Kamermans of Bathurst and Lynn Poirier of Moncton to each earn $200 for first place.

Coming in third were Bathurst's own Jody Ouellette and Sarah Ouellette.

The weather was ideal for the two-day event, said organizer Wendy Babineau, who said plans are already being thought out for next year's competition.

Invitations went out to players in the Maritime provinces and Quebec, and the final tally was a total of 64 teams from throughout New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

The Quebec players "just couldn't make it," she said, adding the quality of play is nonetheless getting better and better as the annual event attracts more people year after year.

INCOMING!

Alice Kamermans of Bathurst gave her best shot during the ladies' finals of the Third Annual Labatt's Brasserie O' St. Pierre Invitational Volleyball Tournament at Youghal Beach Sunday. She and her partner, Lynne Poirier of Moncton, finished second behind Kim Jamieson of Bathurst and Cathy Theriault of Fredericton.

Seminars at Aquatic Centre

Bathurst Aquatic Centre staff will be giving one-hour artificial respiration seminars every Wednesday evening at 7 p.m., with anyone 14 and older invited to take part. The facility has 10 practise mannequins ready for the influx of participants.

The course is recommended for parents and others who own a swimming pool, but is also a skill which can be put to use away from water as well.

"It's a skill you'll remember for life, and it may even save one," Mike Ballak, general manager of the aquatic centre, said.

To register, simply phone the aquatic centre at 548-9667.

Snuff

Dipping snuff can reduced athletic performances. Researchers examining heart rate, blood pressure and the volume of blood puped by each heartbeat during exercise discovered snuff users had faster heart rates and tired more quickly than non-users.

Ready for championships

"We practiced the last two weekends," said Velma, 15-year-old daughter of Don and Margaret-Ann Cann of Bathurst.

Seven hours of weekend practice culminated in an exhibition game for Velma, her 13-year-old sister Virginia, and the the rest of the local players on the team.

Originally from Cape Breton, N.S., the sisters have no qualms about competing against some Nova Scotia friends at the Eastern Canadian girls' basketball championships, this weekend in Fredericton.

"I want to beat them," said Velma with a laugh, adding she has a number of close friends on the Nova Scotia team.

Her resolve stems from an unsuccessful attempt to make the team last year, while the sisters, now students at Superior Junior High School, still lived in Nova Scotia.

But the the Canns have been making waves at the local sports level, earning a berth on the provincial Midget team during tryouts in Fredericton last month.

They are both looking forward to representing New Brunswick against Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

Virginia said the provincial team, which is coached by Alvin Gates of Sussex and includes players from Superior, J. Gordon Chalmers Junior High School and Bathurst High School, is a strong one.

"We have a lot of height," she said, adding two of the team members are six-feet tall.

Legion hosts oldtimers softball tournament, from July 26 to 28

Bathurst has been chosen to host the Fourth Annual Legion Oldtimers Softball Invitational, July 26 to 28.

This year's tournament will attract more than 200 people to the area, said Bob Wesenberg, publicity officer for the event, which is sponsored by the Herman J. Good V.C. Branch No. 18 Royal Canadian Legion.

The events get underway July 25, with tours of Brunswick Mines and the Stone-Consolidated Inc. pulp and paper mill, as well as a all-day deep-sea fishing expedition in the Bay of Chaleur.

The tournament itself begins July 26 at 6:30 p.m., with registration at the Legion at 9 a.m., and again between 8 and 11 p.m. for latecomers.

The senior's division, aged 35 and over, will take to the ESN field at 6:30, with Bathurst team No. 1 taking on team No. 2 from Phillipsburg, Que; Parkwood Heights field will be taken up at the same time by a match between Bathurst team No. 2 and Phillipsburg's No. 1 squad.

July 27 will put the masters' division, 45 years and over, to the test with two 10 a.m. games: Kensington, Prince Edward Island will take on Bathurst; while the seniors' Bathurst #2 will face Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

The games will take place at Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit and Parkwood fields, respectively.

At 12 noon, Kensington will take on Phillipsburg at ESN field, while Bathurst No. 2 meets Shediac in Parkwood.

The official opening of the tournament will be held the same day, at 2 p.m., followed by 3 p.m. games pitting the master's division's Bathurst and Phillipsburg teams at ESN, and Phillipsburg No. 2 versus Summerside in seniors' play at Parkwood field.

The first division winner will take on the runner-up of division two at 10 a.m. July 28 at ESN field; while Parkwood field will host a match between the winner of division two and the runner-up ot division one.

ESN field will then host the master's division final at noon.

Finally, at 2 p.m., the two winners of the 10 a.m. games play for the championship.

A number of social activities will be interspersed between games, including a July 27 breakfast at the Legion, and an evening dance in the Legion hall.

The closing banquet will take place July 28 at the Bathurst Marina, highlighted by a pig roast and dance, with entertainment provided by the Good Old Boys.

After all is said and done, more deep-sea fishing will take place July 29.

G and N Trucking are on top Downshore

Two decisive wins and one close call carried the action in the most recent New Bandon Sports Association Men's Softball League play.

Last Sunday's game pitted G and N Trucking against C.J. Sharks, with G and N taking the contest 19-8.

The team's record is now 11 wins and three losses, having also demolished Knowles Brothers last week with a solid 29-9 win in a July 8 game.

Sunday's winning pitcher was Todd Scott, with Colin Jagoe contributing a homerun, two doubles and a single.

As for the July 8 Knowles Brothers mismatch, Peter Knowles put in the best performance at the plate, with a two-run homer and a double. Nathan Ellis also fared well with two doubles and two singles to help pitcher Benny Murphy win the game.

Pitching for Knowles Brothers was Kirby Daley, while Mark Smith and John Jamieson were the team's top hitters, with three singles and a triple resepectively.

Finally, a July 10 game saw Hornibrook Contruction edge out Sealy Enterprises by a score of 13-12.

John Morrison was on the mound for Hornibrook, while Jeff Wiseman was Sealy's losing pitcher. The team's Winston Coombs managed two doubles; But Kirk Knowles hit a homerun and John Morrison put out four singles and a double to take the victory.

Counting down the standings from G and N's 11 and three record, Hornibrook is next in line with 10 wins and three losses; Sealy Enterprises follows with seven and seven; Knowles Brothers, six and seven; C.J. Sharks, four and 10; and Jay's Place, two and 10.

LADIES CHAMPS IN VOLLEYBALL TOURNAMENT

Kim Jamieson of Bathurst and Cathy Ramier of Fredericton were the winners of the ladies' division of the third annual Labatt's Brasserie O' St. Pierre Invitational Volleyball Tournament held at Youghal Beach Saturday and Sunday. The event attracted 64 teams from accross New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Kim and Cathy paired up to win 15-4 against second-place winners Alice Kamermans of Bathurst and Lynn Poirier of Moncton. Third place went to Jody Ouellette and Sarah Ouellette, both of Bathurst. The first-place holders each received a $200 cheque from the sponsors. Shown from left are sponsor representative Serge Benoit; Cathy; Kim; and Denis Leger, president of the organizing committee.

Catch made the difference for ATS

A game-saving fifth inning catch spelled an 8-6 victory for A.T.S. Convenience in South Bathurst Alpine Men's Softball League last week.

With runners on second and third at the bottom of the fifth, the Allardville Cultural Centre seemed poised to get ahead when a player fired off what looked to be a potential triple.

But that was before it landed in Hussey's mitt.

The win advanced the team's record to four wins, nine losses; the winning pitcher was Roger Martel, with Lloyd Lavigne the best at bat with a homerun and a single.

Parkwood league is keeping busy slate

The Parkwood Schooner-Pizza Delight Softball League kept its teams busy last week with six games July 8-10.

The July 8 early evening game saw the Right Spot Classics take on the Uptown Club, winning the contest 30 to 12.

The 8:30 game pitted the Wild Goose against the Big D Blues. With the help of pitcher Herb Scott, the Wild Goose took the victory 16-13.

Top hitter was Chris Burns, who hit a double and a homerun for the Goose; while Danny Cormier fired off three homeruns for Big D. However, it wasn't enough to help pitcher Miles Coombs win the game.

In the 8:30 spot, Techno 90 disposed of Jim Walter Sports 29-17, with Christian Doiron at the mound for the winners. Allan Furlotte was the losing pitcher.

Top hitter for Techno 90 was Phil Daigle, with three singles and a homerun; and Blair Daley chalked up a single and a homerun to top Jim Walter's hit list.

Two July 10 games pitted the Right Spot against Big D, and Brasserie O' St. Pierre against the Uptown Club.

The Right Spot won its contest by a score of 16 to 8, with Leslie Smith on the mound, and Kevin Caissie hitting a single, a double and a homerun.

Furs on top

The team defeated C.N.G. Smith Trucking 3-1 in the first of last week's games, July 8 at 6:30 p.m.

Gaston Duguay was the Furs' top hitter with a single and a double, over the opposing team's Rene Mainville, who hit two singles.

The 8:30 p.m. game saw the Penguin Club put away Brasserie O' St. Pierre with a decisive 10-4 victory; Danny Daigle pitched the winning game which saw a homerun and two singles delivered by the team's Terry Paris.

The losing pitcher was Marc-Andre Comeau, who was also the team's top hitter with two singles.

July 9 action saw a close game won by Bistro Terrasse, with a score of 11-9 over the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters.

Later in the evening, B.J. Furs edged out C.N.G. 17-16, with pitching duties handled by Eddie Couture and a homerun, two-single performance by Emilien Roy.

Kevin Peters managed two homeruns and two singles for the losing team; the losing pitcher was Carl Smith.

The final game was played July 10, with another tight game ending with a 11-10 victory for the Penguin Club over Brasserie O' St. Pierre. Danny Daigle was on the mound for the Penguins, while Marc-Andre Comeau pitched the losing game for O' St. Pierre.

B.J. Furs now has 13 wins and 1 loss; the Penguin Club is second in line at 11-2; Brasserie O' St. Pierre, 6-7; Bistro Terrasse, 5-7; C.N.G. Smith Trucking, 3-10; and the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighers, 1-12.

Bathurst splits win

Sunday's New Brunswick Midget A baseball league doubleheader put Bathurst in a tug-and-pull contest against Newcastle, with both teams winning a game.

Patrick Godin was the winning pitcher in a Bathurst victory of 7 to 6 against Newcastle's losing pitcher Bernie Cassidy.

The Newcastle squad paid back the Bathurst team in spades however, with an 11-1 win against Jonathan Godin on the mound.

Bernie Cassidy was again pitching for Newcastle, but with the help of a double from Trevor Butler, managed to chalk up a win of the most decisive kind.

The Bathurst Minor Baseball Association's Giants defeated the Indians by a score of 24 to 17 in a July 11 Mosquito league game. Warren Lelanson hit a homerun and scored two runs for the Indians, but the Giants' Brian Boucher — this week's Player of the Week — countered with a home run, a double and a single, with three runs scored.

Elsewhere, the West End Alignment Dodgers beat the Expert Fence Pirates 25-17 in Squirts league action. Chris Brown put in a double and three runs scored for the Dodgers, while the Pirates' Matthew Garrett contributed a triple and two runs scored.

Beaver league play saw the Blue Jays double up the Twins 12-6, with the Jays' Jean-Pierre Gouland, Serge Duguay, and Marc Boudreau hitting a single, homerun and a double, respectively.

Going back to Squirt action on July 10, Masse Hardwood Cubs beat out S.G.D Concrete A's 26 to 17.

Lee Henry contributed a double, two singles and five runs scored to the victory, while Philippe Bourque did his best for the A's with a double and three singles.

Beaver league White Sox nudged the Angels out of a win by a score of 9-8, with help from Bruno Doucet's single and Jean Lou Roy's triple.

Hitting a single each for the Angels were Timithy Basque, Keith Landry and Scott Donnelly.

The Cardinals took a win from the Expos in July 9 Mosquitos play, with Alain Albert's triple and double helping the team to a 23-7 victory despite Expo Jacques Roy's grand slam.

Elsewhere, the Blue Jays doubled the Twins 16-8, with two triples from Serge Duguay, two singles from Kevin Glazier and one single from Brad Cavanaugh.

The Twins' top hitters were Jamie Doucet, one single, and Marc-Andre Pinet, who hit a double.

TIGHT WIN

July 8 Beaver action saw another tight win for the White Sox over the Angels, this time with an ending score of 8-7.

BATHURST MINOR BASEBALL'S

Player of the Week

Brian Boucher

This week's Bathurst Minor Baseball Association Player of the Week is 10-year-old Brian Boucher.

He is the son of Wally and Beth Boucher of the Mines Road, and is a first-year member of the Mosquito division's Giants.

He also enjoys playing hockey and soccer and just about any other sport. He enjoys collecting hockey and baseball cards, and marbles.

Brian attends South Bathurst Elementary, where he will go into Grade 6 in September.

Gowan Brae host to two provincial junior golf events

Former provincial junior women's golf champion Kerry Maher led the pack with an 87 Sunday in the provincial team trials hosted by Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club.

Maher, who won the junior crown two years ago, is hoping to be among four girls who will be chosen to represent New Brunswick at the national Junior Ladies championship in Winnipeg next month. An alternate is also to be chosen for the team.

She was first ahead of Heather Wilbur of Moncton, who had a 91; and Cathy Miller of Hampton in third place with a 92.

Next in line were Kathy Brewer of St. Andrews (94), Beth Ryan of Saint John (98), Cathy Lloyd of Moncton (99), Mara Mallory of Fredericton (100), Kristie Brewer of St. Andrews (101), Katy Christie of Gowan Brae and Maureen Boulet of Restigouche (both with 102), Vanessa Reed of Saint John and Shelley Milton of Gowan Brae (both 104), Sara Meldrum of Sackville (105), Caroline Forsythe of Moncton (106), Suzanne Lloyd of Moncton (107), Cindy Toner of Grand Falls (110), Jennifer Sweet of Gowan Brea (111) and Erika DeGrace of Gowan Brae (119).

The provincial boys' championship was also being played Monday and Tuesday, with the two rounds also serving as the third and fourth legs of the six-round provincial boys' team trials.

Reigning provincial champion Yannick Lang of Beresford was to defend his title. Results of both provincial championships will be in next week's edition of The Northern Light.

Petit Rocher wins soccer tournament

Teams from Fredericton, Tracadie, Petit Rocher and Campbellton competed in the round-robin event, with the top two teams meeting in Sunday's final.

Petit Rocher's first game saw an experienced Fredericton squad edge out a 1-0 victory, despite being dominated by the determined Centre du Cyclisme club in the second half.

During the following game versus Campbellton, Petit Rocher opened with a flourish and grabbed a quick 2-0 lead after five minutes of play on a pair of goals by Darren Sturgeon. Campbellton could not recover from this blitz and saw themselves down 4-0 at the half. Guy Guerrette and Roger Roy netted the third and fourth goals respectively, while Guy Slaney added an insurance goal late in the game to leave Petit Rocher with a 5-0 victory.

Sunday morning's match against Tracadie was much anticipated by both squads. The game marked the first meeting since last season's Acadian Peninsula Soccer League final.

Marc Arseneau's goal at the nine-minute mark gave Petit Rocher the confidence it needed to completely dominate the remaining time. This confidence was converted to goals late in the first half and the early part of the second, as Petit Rocher coasted to a 4-0 victory.

With the victory, Petit Rocher, members of the North Shore Senior Men's Soccer League, earned a berth in the final against Fredericton, which had been victorious over both Tracadie and Campbellton.

Fortunately, during this game Petit Rocher solved the defensive riddle and went ahead on a gallant effort by Guerrette in the 29th minute. From that point on capturing the title seemed imminent, but disaster struck as the match drew to an end. With two minutes remaining in regulation time, Fredericton converted the equalizer from an indirect free kick.

To the relief of the many spectators that were attending on Petit Rocher's behalf, Guy Slaney nodded in an Arseneau free kick two minutes into extra time, and Sturgeon sealed the victory by knocking a penalty kick into the back of the net for his fifth goal of the weekend.

Petit Rocher's record for the year now stands at 9-1 won-lost, including all league, exhibition and tournament games. The back line and goal keeper Stephane Roy played a major role in these victories.

Gowan Brae Ladies Club

Gowan Brae has another provincial champion to add to its honor roll. Last week at the Ladies' Provincial Championship at Westfield, Kathy Grebenc came in with a final round score of 76 to beat out Riverside's Mary Ellen Driscoll by one shot.

Kathy, who is very active as the New Brunswick Ladies' Golf Association's Junior Chairman, also earned a spot on the New Brunswick Amateur team that will compete in the Nationals in August. Valerie Frenette was made the alternate in the provincial Senior Ladies' team. Congratulations to both Kathy and Valerie.

The Pokemouche Invitational Field Day was held this past Saturday. Those Gowan Brae Ladies who brought home prizes were Kathy Grebenc, first low gross in the First Division (with a score of 85); Valerie Frenette, first low net in the First Division; Marie Dykeman, first low net in the Second Division; Pat Maher, second low gross in the Second Division; Mary Gavin Closest to the Pin and second low net in the Second Division.

Bernice Jardine, first low gross in the Third Division; Monique Kratzios, second low net in the Third Division; and Lynn Watling for the longest drive in the Third and Fourth Divisions.

On July 9, Ladies' Day matches were played under strange conditions - golfers could only use four clubs. This made for many interesting shots! Prize winners were Marie Guidry, Bernice Jardine, Bella White and Sybil Hills.

Gowan Brae is the scene of two Provincial tournaments this season: the Provincial Junior Championship was held this week, and the Provincial Family Classic will be played here Aug. 9.

This is the first year that the Family Classic is being held in Northern New Brunswick. Two family members, male or female of any age, play as a team. This is becoming a very popular tournament and local golfers are encouraged to participate. Deadline for entries is Aug. 2. These must be mailed to the New Brunswick Golf Association. Entry forms are available at the Pro Shop.

Congratulations and thanks go out to members of Gowan Brae's Beautification committee and their helpers. Your efforts in the planting and maintenance of flowers and shubs around the golf course have been outstanding!

Local team boasts world record

Bowling Update
By EDWARD CHAMBERLAIN

While in Moncton last week, I droped in to Moncton Fairlanes to bowl a few strings, and noticed on the wall the up-to-date world records.

These are the world records: Ladies Single-Grace Pasatum from the United States, 200; Triple - Stasia Czernicki, United States, 466; and our own Ladies team from Bathurst, with a 1,784 sheet.

The men's scores are just unbelievable: World Single - Gerry Montninny from the U.S., 240; the World High Triple belongs to Don Patchell, another American, with 537. The high sheet belongs to the U.S.A. All-Stars with a 2,086.

In local bowling news, there will be a tournament at Chaleur Family Lanes this coming Sunday, involving the Chaleur Centre Mall and the Douglastown Mall employees.

Moonlight bowling was a hit again this past weekend on Friday Night. The winners were Gilles Doucet, Guy Gagnon, Daniel Roy and Pat Duguay. On Saturday night the alleys were packed and the winners were Mario Couture, Yves Basque, Denis Blanchard, Ken Martin, Edward Chamberlain and Nicole Hebert, each making a strike on the stripe pin.

Other prizes went to Mario Couture and Agnas Doiron, Alvin Gionet and Denis Blanchard and Bernie McKennon. The Chaleur Lanes would like to advise the seniors that a seniors'league will start in September. If you are interested, drop in or call Louis to register.

I would like to advise the bowlers in the Bathurst and surrounding areas that the City of Bathurst TV Challenge will take place at Capitol Lanes again next season. The roll-offs will be held around the second week of September, and this is open to all lady and men bowlers in the Bathurst areas.

There will also be three major tournaments next season: a mixed, a ladies' and a men's tour.

Negotiations are presently being held with sponsors, and soon as the time and dates are scheduled, I will advise you in this column.

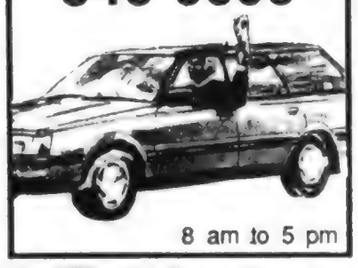
Bill's favoring the Duke

On The Ropes
By "Wild" BILL HUDON

Let's forget Tyson and Foreman for a while, and let's get to some new blood in boxing.

Let's tune in Aug. 9, when it will be the Duke, Tommy Morrison, and Ray Mercer trading blows. This should be a dandy; I would give the edge to young Morrison, who is only 22 with a record of 28-0, with 24 knockouts.

Mercer lacks boxing skills due to his age, 30, and has a record of 17-0, with 12 knockouts. He has probably already reached his peak.



I give the edge to the Duke but I could be wrong. Like I have said many times, the kids love the Duke because he was Tommy Gun in Rocky V. We will see how much Mercer can take from Morrison's left hook, the meanest left hook in boxing today.

Getting back to Mercer: this guy is tough. He fought in rounds with a broken jaw and could not see out of one eye and still won his fight. I could be wrong but I pick this Aug. 9 fight to be a war..

Yes Jessica, we will wish you a happy birthday. We met Jessica eight years ago, when she was only seven-years-old. She lived on the top floor over me and she always kept banging on the floor.

Today she lives in Parkwood Heights and she is still banging at our door, so my wife and I wish a happy birthday to Jessica Daigle, who turned 15 Tuesday. Jessica is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Guy Raiche.

Virginia good spot for busy tourists

Travel Today

By VINCENT EGAN
Travel Columnist
Thomson News Service

There are two types of people: Those who divide people into two types, and those who don't.

Just kidding. No, the two types — when it comes to vacations, at least — are those who want a stay-put, do-nothing, relaxing holiday, and those who want to see and do as much as possible.

If you are the latter type, you crave variety, can probably tolerate crowds and lineups, and figure you can rest some other time.

Chances are you'd be interested in the coastal and tidwater area of the Commonwealth of Virginia. There, you can visit some of the oldest historic sites on this continent, as well as amusing Olde Worlde re-creations.

You can tour a busy military aviation base or a space-exploration centre. You can loll on a beach, go deep-sea fishing, or shop till your credit card breaks.

This cornucopia of attractions, all within about an hour's drive, is highlighted by Colonial Williamsburg, if you are a history buff. But if you lean toward hedonism, then it's Busch Gardens — The Old Country, or the day-and-night-life of Virginia Beach.

The Norfolk-Virginia Beach airport is served by both direct and connecting USAir flights from Toronto and Montreal.

Wililamsburg was founded in 1699, and served as the capitol of Virginia until 1780 (by which time, as you may remember, it was no longer a British colony).

In the mid-1920s, John D. Rockefeller Jr. put much of his hard-inherited money into the philanthropic task of reconstructing and renovating the townsite. With the help of skilled archaeologists, Williamsburg was returned to its 18th-century look.

A 20th-century overlay of hucksterism gradually became apparent over the decades, but during the 1980s, the non-profit Colonial Williamsburg Foundation sensibly steered the project back toward its purer goal of historical authenticity. (Nevertheless, the bakery, the print shop and other establishments still do a brisk business selling their pricey wares).

Crowds are an inescapable result of success. Patience is advisable when you visit such popular highlights as the Courthouse (reopened a few weeks ago after a total interior restoration), the Governor's Palace and the Public Hospital (asylum), or when hunger and thirst beckon you to one of the several historic taverns.

Colonial Williamsburg is open — and heavily visited — throughout the year, but December is especially popular because of the famous Christmas decorations, music, foods and seasonal activities.

The most desirable upcoming dates for the Christmas-New Year's period have already been booked at Colonial Williamsburg's six hotels by repeat visitors, some of whom have been returning annually for decades. But accommodation may still be available for two-night, mid-week packages, a week or two before Christmas.

For reservations, Colonial Williamsburg has a cutesy 800 telephone number: "History" (800-447-8679).

THEME PARK

Five km east of Colonial Williamsburg is Busch Gardens — The Old Country, a popular 360-acre theme park, open daily until Sept. 3, and then Fridays to Tuesdays until Oct. 27.

Here, the theme is 17th-century Europe, but the guiding spirit is show-biz, and certainly not history. A stroll takes you through fantasy versions of villages in England, Scotland, France, Italy, Germany and — stretching the format a bit — New France, in the form of "a French-Canadian trappers' village."

No one expects authenticity or worries about anachronisms such as the presentation of a lively 1920s-style vaudeville or music-hall revue in the English village's Globe Theatre

Teens, especially, seem delighted that 20th-century hamburgers and fries are served in all of the 17th-century villages, to ward off starvation. Thus fortified, many of them make a beeline for the thrill rides — rollercoasters, battering rams, a flume ride and a device that wafts riders up and down in a taffy-pull motion.

At the other end of the excitement spectrum is a large petting zoo that, for the very young, is thrilling enough.

Virginia's Golden Coast is a chain of beaches and wilderness areas along the Atlantic shoreline. At Cape Henry, a cross marks the spot where the first permanent settlers landed on April 26, 1607, after an arduous voyage from England.

Naturalists are drawn to the scenic beauty of Back Bay Wildlife Refuge, while hikers and cyclists favor the 3,000-acre Seashore State Park.

UNB entrance scholarships awarded

The University of New Brunswick has awarded entrance scholarships to two Bathurst High School graduates, for study in the 1991-92 academic year.

Mark Daniel Arseneau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Arseneau of Pointe Verte, received a Tom and Parker Hickey Memorial Scholarship valued at $2,000 to assist him in his studies. He plans to enrol in the electrical engineering program on the Fredericton campus of the university in the fall.

Shawn Wayne Hickey was awarded a Martha Fraser McIntosh Scholarship valued at $1,465 and an Ivan F. Ronalds Engineering Scholarship valued at $535. He plans to enter the mechanical engineering program at UNB's Fredericton campus in the fall. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne E. Hickey of Beresford.

Current costs for a student at UNB are estimated at $7,500 a year for tuition, books and living expenses, said a release.

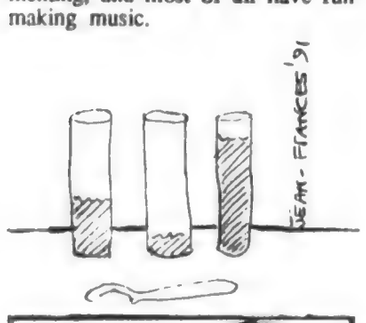
A musical interlude...

Art Talk
With Bathurst artist JEAN-FRANCES

Topic: let's look at music.

Materials required: Three tall glass jars or glasses, spoon, water.



This week, let's take a musical interlude. Definitions of what is music, its importance and meaning are often argued but there is no denial of its existance.

Although not always recorded, it seems that man has always made attempts with song or instruments to make some sort of music.

In the past century, with a multitude of recordings becoming more and more available to us, we have become accustomed to hearing a variety of music and enjoying it for its sake alone. Much of music has become complex in technique as well as composition, but let's look inside our homes and see if we can make some music with a few very simple things.

Most people can remember hearing the clink of a crystal glass when gently tapped with a spoon. Now try something similar with three tall glasses or jars, only fill them with different amounts of water. Do they sound the same or different? What happens when you blow into the mouth of a bottle? Does the sound change when you fill it with water? Why?

What other things can you find in your home to make a tune? Get some friends together, have fun experimenting, and most of all have fun making music.

The familiar saying "A good time was had by all" proved to be true at a musical performance at the Janeville Elementary School on Saturday July 13, in aid of Doug and Mary Knowles and family of Clifton, who lost their home, barn and all belongings in a fire just two weeks previously.

The evening included choirs, solos, and duets, as well as skits. William Wiseman and Rev. T.H. Drillen emceed.

Rev. and Mrs. Edward Thompson, Halifax, N.S. recently visited Mrs. Dorothy Knowles, Janeville. While here, Rev. Thompson participated in the service at Central United Church, Clifton on Sunday July 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Drillen and family of Oromocto are vacationing at the family cottage in Salmon Beach.

Mrs. Alice Ronalds of Port Hawksbury, N.S. is vacationing at her cottage in Salmon Beach.

Mrs. William Knowles, accompanied by her father Gordon Jagoe, and Mrs. Ada Scott, all of Clifton, recently visited relatives in Niagara, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Parker Cummings in Ottawa, Ont.

Belated congratulations are extended to Eric and Helen (Sullivan) Doucet of Bathurst on the recent arrival of their baby boy, Raymond Eric.

Mrs. Evangeline Dupuis of Renfrew, Ont., is vacationing at her summer home in Salmon Beach.

Family members, relatives and friends gathered at the Pokeshaw-Black Rock Community centre on Saturday evening, July 13 to honor John and Francis Dempsey of Pokeshaw, the occasion being their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Daley and family of Walpole, Mass., recently spent a week at Chapman's Trailer Park, Janeville, and visited relatives in the Downshore area.

Bill and Betty McLean of Cornwall, Ont., recently visited the latter's mother, Mrs. Loraine Knowles, Clifton, as well as other relatives in the Downshore area.

FROM MASS.

Mrs. Arthur Kelly, Mrs. A. Thompson and daughter Michelle, and Audrey Sullivan all Bradford, Mass. recently visited relatives in Pokeshaw.

Mrs. Sue Johnstone and family of Hope, B.C. have been visiting her parents, Fred and Edrie Hornibrook, Janeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Rob Robson, Montreal, recently visited the latter's brothers, Eric and Elva and Gordon and Norma Ellis in Janeville.

Edwin and Wanda Ellis, Toronto, Ont. are vacationing at the Ellis Cottage in Janeville.

Mrs. Inez Hornibrook has returned to Stonehaven following a three-week visit with her daughter, Emma Jean Harvey and Rev. Harvey, Nash Creek.

HONORED GUEST

Mrs. Florence Good, Bathurst, was the honored guest at a celebration held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fern Wiseman and her husband Byron Tuesday, the occasion being Mrs. Good's 85th birthday.

A church service at Christ Church, Clifton Thursday at 7 p.m. will mark 90 years of the establishment of the Anglican Church in this area. Guest speaker will be Rev. Thomas Crowther.

Mervin Smith, Canobie, was honored on his 80th birthday July 7 with a celebration, including a family dinner at the Canobie Community Centre, followed by an open house.

Hurricanes

It has been estimated that the energy in ten minutes of one hurricane is equal to the power of all the nuclear weapons in the world.

REV. CLAUDE MILLER TAKES OVER AS RECTOR OF ST. GEORGE'S

Rev. Claude Miller is back in Bathurst, having been inducted as rector Sunday at St. George's Anglican Church. Originally from this area, he was most recently in Kingston, N.B. Rev. Miller replaces Rev. Harley Clowater, who recently moved to Sussex. Shown from left are R. B. Stockall, Archdeacon of Chatham; Rev. Miller; and Rev. John Matheson of Kingston, who was in Bathurst for the induction ceremony.

Bathurst woman back from Kenya

Over The Back Fence

By ELEANOR A. SCOTT
Call 546-5680 after 6 p.m.

Helen MacMinn is back home from Nairobi, Kenya, East Africa, visiting her mother Marion MacMinn, her brothers Don and Eric, their wives and families.

Accompanied by her mother and niece Nancy, she visited her brother David, his wife Brenda and children Andrew, Kathryn, Susan and Kimberly in Harvey Station. They also visited her brother Neil and his wife and his wife Shirley in Moncton.

Nancy availed herself of the opportunity of having a "sneak preview" of Mount Allison University which she will be attending in the fall. She was a guest in Sackville of her cousin John MacMinn and his wife Liane.

Sanford and Etta Smythe, their son Roland, Bonnie Boudreau and Marjorie Good, South Teteagouche, were recent visitors to Gloucester, Ont. where they attended the 50th anniversary celebration for Etta's sister and brother-in-law, Alice and Parker Cummings.

Marjorie Good, after a visit in Ottawa, returned home, accompanied by Joan Cummings and Dawn, Harold and Stacey Jenks who are visiting with her and with Harold's brother and sister-in-law, Ken and Marion Jenks and their family.

Jared Hall, Oakville, Ont. is spending a month in Bathurst visiting his grandparents Allan and Betty Hall.

Elsie and Wayne Miller were pleased to have as their guests the former's aunt and uncle, Norma and Eric Conner, Halifax, N.S. They also were visited by their son Jerry Miller, his wife Sue and boys Tim and Robert, Moncton.

Sister Eva Melanson, Mount Currie, B.C. and Elamor Williams, Lively, Ont. are visiting their mother Opal Melanson and other relatives and friends in the area.

Ben and Margaret Caldwell, Halifax, N.S. accompanied by their grandsons Jeffrey and Michael Goodine, Ottawa, Ont. are in Bathurst visiting Margaret's sister Eva Brown, her husband Preston and daughter Becky.

Mary Patterson, Scarborough, Ont. is in Bathurst visiting Wendy and Chris Arbour and their daughter Laetitia. Chris has just returned from a visit to Mississauga, Ont. where he attended the 25th wedding anniversary of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Austin Arbour.

Also attending were his sisters Mrs. Bunny Kerwin and Mrs. Audrey Rowland and her husband John Rowland.

Happy birthday greetings Chris from Mary.

Mrs. Martha Carey has returned from a visit with her sister-in-law Mrs. Juanita Black, Nictou.

CANADIAN TRIP

Bathurst was one of the places Fran Geldart visited on her trip across Canada to visit family and friends. She was accompanied by her daughter Christine Hodgson and her grandsons Aaaron and Steven, Edmonton, Alta. and her son Michael, Halifax, N.S.

Fran, who is living in Edmonton, still remains very active in the Girl Guide movement.

Last week was a memorable one for former Bathurst folks Doris and Bill LeBrocq, now living in White Rock, B.C. Their 60th wedding anniversary was on July 11, and two days later, July 13, Bill celebrated his 90th birthday. Friends here in Bathurst extend their very best wishes to the LeBrocqs.

Gloucester Gourmet

Our gourmet this week is Angela Boyle, a third year international studies student at Mount Allison University in Sackville.

She is employed as a sales representative with The Northern Light in this, her fourth summer living in Bathurst.

Angela, who is the daughter of James and Moira Boyle, who also now reside in Bathurst, enjoys tennis and the beach. Her recipe this week makes for an excellent kitchen project to keep busy on a rainy afternoon.

APPLESAUCE DROP COOKIES

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 tsp baking soda
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
¼ cup sifted flour
½ tsp salt
1 tsp cinnamon
½ tsp nutmeg
½ tsp cloves
1 cup raisins
1 cup bran

Blend shortening and sugar. Add egg and beat well. Add baking soda to applesauce, sift flour with salt and spices. Add to first mixture alternately with applesauce. Add raisins and bran. Drop by teaspoon onto greased baking sheet about 2 inches apart to allow for spreading. Bake at 375 degrees for 15-20 minutes. Makes three dozen cookies.

Awarded art scholarships

Andrew Herygers, a 1990 graduate of Bathurst High School, has been awarded two Marguerite Vaughan Eller Scholarships, for the second year.

These scholarships will cover the cost of tuition, room and board, when he studies art this summer at Sunbury Shores Arts and Nature Centre in St. Andrews. The two courses he will be studying are Painting The Landscape, taught by well-known American artist Sharon Yates, and Mixed Media, with Canadian artist Denis Cliff.

Last year, he studied Wildlife Art with Ontario wildlife artist and woodcarver Jay Dampf.

Mr. Herygers was also recently awarded the Thomas George and Ethel Pearson Mackenzie Foundation entrance scholarship. This will pay $500 of his first-year tuition fee, when he studies at the Nova Scotia College of Art and Design in Halifax this fall.

He is the son of William and Lorraine Herygers, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Leger of Bathurst, and Mrs. Joseph Herygers of Kingston, N.S.

Blaney outlines conditions for power line that will run from Salisbury to Belledune

Environment Minister Vaughn Blaney released details last week on the conditions of approval granted under the Environmental Impact Assessment Regulation, for construction and operation of a 345-kV transmission line from Salisbury to Belledune by NB Power.

"The final decision on the project was based on results of an extensive environmental impact assessment, which included formal consultation with the public," Mr. Blaney said in a release.

"The EIA study considered the environmental, economic and social impacts of the proposed project and identified methods to minimize any negative effects."

The minister confirmed the approval granted under the EIA regulation requires NB Power to implement the recommendations made in the EIA study.

"In addition to the methods proposed in the EIA to minimize significant environment impacts, the approval requires that NB Power meet additional conditions," Mr. Blaney said.

The main terms and conditions established are as follows:

1. N.B. Power must construct and operate the facility in accordance with the practices outlined in the Environmental Protection Plan for New Brunswick Power Transmission Facilities, submitted to the Minister of the Environment in April 1991.

2. NB Power must conduct a study on possible effects arising from the presence of transmission lines on New Brunswick property values and submit its findings to the Minister of the Environment.

Terms of reference for this study must be approved by the Minister of the Environment prior to commencement of the study.

The study report, once completed, must then be submitted to the Minister of the Environment.

3.NB Power must build the transmission line along the alignment shown in their Salisbury North 345-kV Transmission Line EIA Study Report.

If the transmission line must deviate significantly from that route, NB Power must submit a request to do so to the Minister of the Environment prior to construction of that particular section.

The criteria to determine when a deviation in the route is significant will be determined through consultation between NB Power and the Department of the Environment.

NB Power must fulfil the commitment made in the Salisbury North 345-kV Transmission Line EIA Study Report to complete certain arachaeological surveys and report on any archaeological resources within the right of way to the Department of the Environment and the Department of Tourism, Recreation and Heritage.

If any such resources are found, NB Power will comply with the Department of Tourism, Recreation and Heritage's determination on the appropriate measures to be followed.

NEW HORIZONS GRANTS PRESENTED

Acadie-Bathurst MP Doug Young presented cheques last week totalling $7,871 to two local senior citizens' clubs, on behalf of the federal government's New Horizons program. The Golden Rings Club was presented with a cheque for $4,698 — the first installment on a total contribution of $7,698 — to expand its program of activities for seniors. Club Villa Chaleur received funding in the amount of $3,173 in order to start up social, recreational and service activities for its members. From left are Evangeline Luce, Golden Rings Club secretary; Yvonne Bourque, Golden Rings Club treasurer; Mr. Young; Florence Roussy, Club Villa Chaleur president; and Maurice Labossière, Club Villa Chaleur treasurer.

SUPPORT JOE HACHEY
SUPPORT THE FUTURE

The Committee To Elect JOE HACHEY invites all citizens of Bathurst to join the local LIBERAL party and vote for JOE HACHEY as our representative in the New Brunswick Legislative Assembly in the next provincial general election.

The Bathurst membership drive ends Thursday afternoon, July 18. The nomination convention is scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 18.

The Committee has pledged its support to JOE HACHEY because this region needs a dynamic, devoted, visible, honest representative in the province's highest legislative body.

We firmly believe JOE HACHEY is the best candidate seeking this vital public office. We firmly believe Joe Hachey has all the necessary qualities to represent this region with vigor and unquestionable integrity.

JOE HACHEY has been one of this region's finest citizens from the early times when he received his elementary and secondary education at athe College de Bathurst, then went on to participate unselfishly in all sectors of our community -- from a hustling sports figure to a sincere individual always ready to extend a helping hand to those in need.

WE ASK YOU TO SUPPORT JOE HACHEY.
WE ASK YOU TO SUPPORT THE FUTURE.

Firms have to increase research and productivity

By PAUL BAGNELL
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

"Because there's a critical mass there. If you drop too far below it, it's awfully hard to get credibility in the international marketplace."

When George Fierheller looks toward the end of this decade, he sees a telephone in every pocket and purse.

He sees himself in his backyard, using a laptop computer to send and receive information via satellite. And operating the computer not with his clumsy two-fingered typing, but by simply giving it verbal commands.

And Fierheller, chief executive officer of Rogers Cantel Inc., wants Canadian telecommunications companies to play a key role in developing these technologies and introducing them to the world marketplace.

But that's not likely to happen, he says, unless Canadian firms begin dramatically increasing their research and development.

The global market for telecommunications products and services is now estimated at $400 billion annually. As Eastern Europe continues to abandon communism, and as economies in East Asia become stronger, the market is expected to continue growing by leaps and bounds.

Yet, in the next decade alone, Canada's share of the world market is expected to drop by half, from four per cent to two.

"And that's serious," Fierheller says. "Because there's a critical mass there. If you drop too far below it, it's awfully hard to get credibility in the international marketplace."

From 1984 to 1989, Canada's balance of trade in telecommunications — the difference between what we export and what we import — went from a $700-million surplus to a $300-million deficit.

SEEKING SOLUTIONS

Two years ago, industry and government representatives met in St. Sauveur, Que., to come up with ideas to reverse that trend.

The result was Vision 2000, a partnership of large and small telecommunications companies, pledging to undertake commonly financed research and development projects aimed at maintaining Canada's competitive edge. The federal government, through the Department of Communications, is also involved.

The member companies — which include giants like Bell Canada, Spar Aerospace and IBM Canada, as well as smaller firms — agreed to focus on personal communications, an area where Canada already has a strong foothold in fields such as cellular communications.

"What we tried to do was pick something that Canada can do well," says Fierheller, Vision 2000's outgoing chairman. "That's why we latched onto advanced personal communications. Our feeling was we really can't compete with the Japanese in artificial intelligence or the Americans in super computers or something like that. But here's one where we've obviously got a good start."

Last May, Vision 2000 announced $30 million worth of collaborative research projects. One of the 15 projects, for instance, seeks to establish a much broader "vocabulary" for voice-operated communications devices (Fierheller already owns a cellular phone — "It's a little pricey," he admits — which he operates simply by verbal instructions.)

Another brings together companies like Spar Aerospace and Telesat Canada to develop the next generation of communications satellites, intended to be accessible to individuals using advanced telephones or computers.

Its a worthwhile first step, Fierheller says, but $30 million represents only that — a first step. Canadian companies are going to have to free up a lot more money for this kind of joint research if Vision 2000 is to give the industry the boost it needs.

It's already happening elsewhere. For every dollar a member telecommunications firm in the European Community spends on research and development, for instance, the EC's Esprit program contributes a matching dollar. The program's annual budget: $4.4 billion.

The big difference between Esprit and Vision 2000, however, is Vision 2000 lacks the huge amount of public money its European counterpart has. The research projects announced last spring involved just $7.7 million of federal government money.

As he prepares to step down as Vision 2000's chairman, Fierheller says he would like to see Canadian companies spend at least $500 million on the program before the end of the decade.

"Something like $500 million or $700 million," he says. "I think you've got to be in that ballpark to really play in the international game.

"And that's not beyond the range of possibility. I think the Canadian industry could afford that kind of thing if they really want to put their minds to it."

Wood workers at Stone ratify new three-year pact

The wood workers' union at Stone-Consolidated accepted a new contract last week by a strong majority vote.

Local 123 of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Union voted to accept the contract July 8, their previous contract having expired in April, said Max Cater, Woodlands Division manager for the Maritimes.

About 87 per cent of the approximately 100 union members voted to accept the three-year pact, which provides them with salary increases of 4.2 per cent in the first year, and 5.5 per cent in the second and again in the third.

Mr. Cater said the increases fall in line with those of other unions in the industry throughout Canada.

"The only difference is that these men are mostly piece workers," he said, explaining Local 123 personnel are not paid by an hourly wage, but by the volume of wood they cut.

Meanwhile, there were no new developments last week following three union locals' rejection of the company's latest contract offer, said Reg Miller, assistant manager in charge of administration at the mill.

The unions in question are Local 1505 of the International Association of Machinists, which includes all machinists and mechanics; Local 480 of the United Association of Pipefitters; and Local 1150 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

All three passed a unanimous vote to reject the company's offer on June 25.

A report was expected to be submitted to Labor Minister Mike McKee last week.

Under new management

Mr. Smith remains with the company as an advisor and mechanic, Mr. Molenaar said. He operated the business for more than 25 years, supplying clientele with sales of chainsaws and other equipment, as well as sales and repairs on all-terrain vehicles, snowmobiles, and commercial and pleasure-boat engines.

Mr. Molenaar, a native of the Netherlands, has lived in Bathurst for close to a year, and worked for a while with his older brother, Thys, at the latter's Molenaar Equipment Services Ltd., also in Salmon Beach.

Mr. Molenaar said he has only small renovation plans for Smith Sales and Service, which he operates with his wife, Tertia, with two employees.

Chamber gets new manager

She takes over from Colin Taylor Aug. 5, Mr. Taylor confirmed Monday.

Mrs. Kersys is presently an assistant manager with the Bathurst office of Household Finance. She is an experienced administrator who has worked throughout the Maritimes and Quebec, with volunteer and government agencies, and in the private business sector.

Originally from Montreal, she is married to Don Kersys. The couple resides on Murray Avenue and has two children.

Mr. Taylor has been general manager for two and a half years. A retired engineer, he said is looking forward to continued involvement with the Chamber.

He is staying on as secretary and a director.

CANADIAN TIRE SCHOLARSHIP RECEIVED

Nancy MacMinn, a 1991 graduate of Bathurst High School, has received a scholarship valued at $550 from the Canadian Tire store in Bathurst. She is shown receiving the scholarship from Michel Degrace, assistant store manager, representing owner Paul Turcotte. Nancy will enter her first year of science studies this fall at Mount Allison University in Sackville. She is the daughter of Don and Sharon MacMinn.

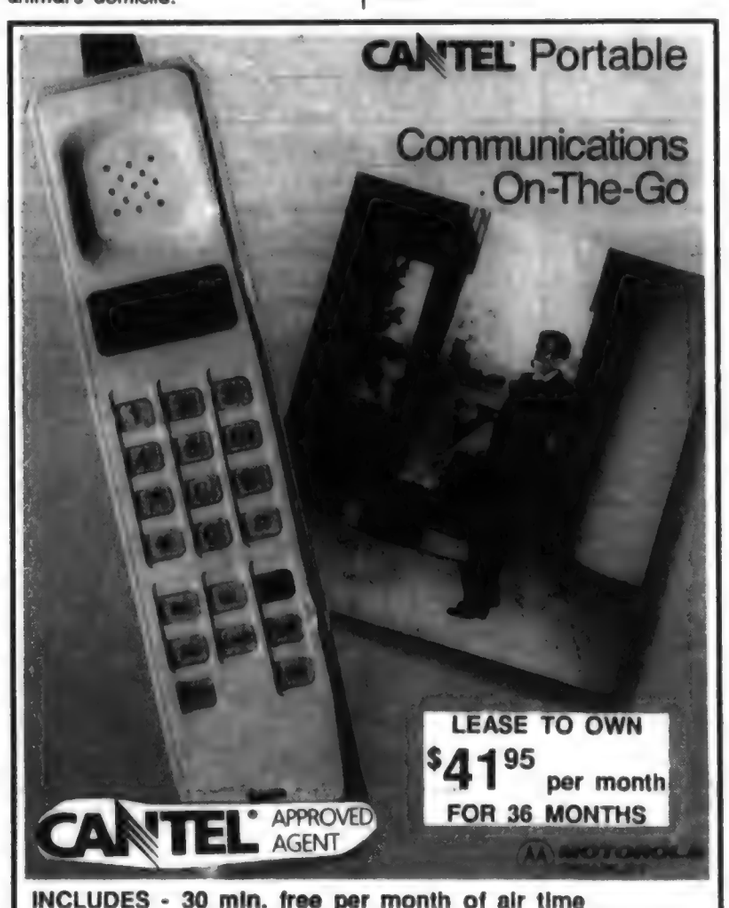
Bathurst wins Mug-Up event

Protection of the environment is taken seriously in Bathurst, if the results of last week's Mug-Up Challenge are any indication.

Bathurst won the challenge, which pitted it against the cities of Saint John, Fredericton and Moncton to see which city could get the most residents per capita to avoid styrofoam cups when drinking coffee July 10.



"We were getting calls from all sorts of people," said local ccordinator Julie Dugas, a representative of the Energy and Environment Educators of New Brunswick, which initiated the event.

There were 1,651 cups of coffee consumed in permanent mugs and officially reported to Ms. Dugas in Bathurst that day; Fredericton came in second, with 3,056 participants; Saint John was third with 3,912; and Moncton trailed the lot with 1,023. The per capita system based results in comparison to the cities' relative population.

Ms. Dugas noted businesses in Bathurst took up the challenge with enthusiasm, sending in their tally sheets at the end of the day for tabulation.

Although no official prizes will be individually awarded to those who took part, the collective prize for all is a cleaner and safer environment.

Pet of the Week

What a sense of humor! And at my expense, too.

The man at the Animal Shelter was the one who named me Pepsi, because that's what he was drinking when they brought me here.

His naming me should help me find a home that much faster, though: it'll give my future owner that much less to do.

I'm a dwarf rabbit, about six-months old, black with white markings, and female. I like kids too

Spending 50 hours at the top of a scaffold was a strange experience for Joel Maurice.

"It was kind of like being on an island," said the public relations and recruitment officer for Big Brothers Big Sisters Chaleur Region Inc.

"I could see the world, but I couldn't participate."

Mr. Maurice climbed the scaffold at noon July 5 and didn't come back down until July 7 at 2 p.m.

No, it wasn't some sort of hunger strike; The scaffold was equipped with a separate, canvassed level that housed everything Mr. Maurice needed to survive the weekend.

The exercise, held in conjunction with the Bathurst Silver Jubilee Festival, was actually a unique promotion put together by Big Brothers Big Sisters to raise awareness of their cause and to recruit a few more Bigs.

Big Brothers Big Sisters is a non-profit organization dedicated to providing companionship for children of single-parent families.

Mr. Maurice, in an interview with The Northern Light, deemed the event a success, with about half a dozen Big Brothers or Sisters signed into the fold since the promotion took place.

"We started getting a response; I think the organization is very satisfied."

Not only did the stunt prompt a response from potential Bigs, but passersby were quick to show their support as well.

"A lot of people were happy and proud that our association would go that far for the children," Mr. Maurice said, adding motorists passing by the scaffold on Main Street honked their horns and waved, while well-wishers brought him coffee and donuts.

The event was the first such promotion Big Brothers Big Sisters has put together; and it likely won't be the last.

But because of the unique nature of it, Mr. Maurice said the association doesn't want to overdo it to the point where it loses its effect.

Joel Maurice, public relations and recruitment officer for Big Brothers Big Sisters Chaleur Region Inc., spent a recent weekend on a scaffold in the former Dalfen's parking lot.

The shots you need

VON In The 90's

By VERONICA RATCHFORD
Executive Director
of the Bathurst VON

The Bathurst branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses would like to provide you with some information about immunization.

There are some vaccinations that you never outgrow your need for. You need a booster shot for diptheria and tetanus (dt) every 10 years. When did you have your last booster? If it has been within the last 10 years, then check with your family physician or the Department of Health.

Seniors should get an annual influenza vaccine as well as a 10 year dt booster. Flu shots will protect you against a specific variety of flu. You need to be vaccinated every year because you are dealing with a different flu bug each year.

If you are travelling outside Canada or the United States, you will need a different type of vaccine, depending on the country that you are visiting.

Doctors agree the value of the vaccine far outweighs the risks. Just like milk, there are shots you never outgrow your need for. Therefore, if your immunization is not up to date, contact your local Department of Health.

NEW LOGO

VON's new logo is Caring for Life and we hope to keep you well informed so you may maintain a healthy and happy life.

Through Shoppers Drug Mart, Vanier Boulevard, VON has a clinic every Tuesday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. where we may check your blood pressure, pulse, blood sugar, and offer you advice on foot care, ostomy care, and other health issues.

If you need information or require nursing services, please contact the VON Bathurst branch at 548-2448.

New date set for trial

Trial was to have taken place July 9, but was postponed until July 24, a spoken from the Bathurst detachment of the RCMP said.

DeHaitre was charged last November with refusing to submit to a breathalyzer test, resisting arrest, assaulting a police officer, and escaping lawful custody.

Murphy, who was a passenger in DeHaitre's vehicle when the alleged incident took place, faces charges of assisting DeHaitre in escaping custody, and with breach of probation.

Both pleaded not guilty to all charges in a previous court appearance.

Pinet appointed to Arts Board

Several new members have been appointed to the New Brunswick Arts Board, including a crafts artist from Petit Rocher.

Dorice Pinet was among those recently announced to the board, by Tourism Recreation and Heritage Minister Roland Beaulieu.

Down East Boy to be in Bathurst

Lloyd Snow--Down East Boy

Lloyd Snow is yet another fine country singer-songwriter to emerge from "The Rock."

Lloyd's current cassette Down East Boy has been getting a lot of airplay right across Canada, and more so in his native province of Newfoundland. The title track and first single is a song which many a Maritimer who had to leave home to seek work can relate to. The opening and closing lines best describe the content: "When the sun comes up this morning/ it will find me eastward bound," and "Cause city life ain't no kind of life/for a down east boy like me."

Lloyd is from Norman's Cove, Trinity Bay, and has been entertaining folks in the area for some time, and is now taking his music to the mainland. Lloyd spent some time in Bathurst last year, and in conversation with him last week, he explained how this came about.

He had gone to Goose Bay, Labrador and managed to get on the wrong boat. Seeing an opportunity to visit the coastal areas of the mainland, he ended up in Bathurst. He set up a display in a shopping mall here and sold a few of his independently-recorded cassettes. Liking the city and its people, he stayed two weeks.

SECOND TAPE

Lloyd is expected back in Bathurst Aug. 1 to promote Down East Boy and his forthcoming new cassette Back To Yesterday, due out in September.

Lloyd has written four of the 10 songs on Down East Boy: the title cut, "First Class Socialite", "Stars on Broadway," and "Life Of A Rambler," the latter being the only one done in the traditional Newdoundland style.

Lloyd does two very good covers, Merle Haggard's "Wake Up" and Dallas Harms' "Paper Rosie," plus two traditionals, "Hand That Rocks The Cradle," and "He Couldn't Live Alone."

For those who were in the mall last year and purchased Lloyd's Down East Boy, September's release of "Back To Yesterday" will be a welcome sight. Check your local country bar in August; you may get to see and hear the Down East Boy himself, Lloyd Snow.

BIRTHDAYS

Born, Woodrow Wilson Sovine in Charleston, West Virginia on July 17, 1918, Red Sovine became known as the king of truck driving songs. In 1956 he and Webb Pierce recorded "Why Baby Why" together, gaining a Number One hit. They followed that with "Little Rosa" the same year.

Other hits by Sovine were "Giddy Up Go," "Phantom 309" and of course "Teddy Bear". Red Sovine was killed in a motor accident in Nashville on April 4, 1980. He would have been 73 today.

Until next week, keep whistling.

Local choir to sing in Quebec

Thirty people from the Bathurst Voidunor Choir will be giving two concerts during the Ninth Annual Choralies Internationales, being held in Terrebone, Que., July 20 to 28.

The singing group will present both concerts this Sunday, said a release.

Les Choralies, traditionally a week-long choir-singing festival/workshop, was started in Canada in 1967 in Trois Rivieres. They have been held since in Quebec City (1970), Edmonton (1973), Sherbrooke (1976), Moncton (1979), Winnipeg (1982), and again in Quebec in 1985 and 1987.

Les Choralies is an event that allows the singing community to share its love for music, meet new friends, and participate in numerous wonderful musical moments.

New Brunswick will also be represented by a Fredericton group.

QUIZ BIZ

1. Bassist Timothy B. Schmidt replaced Randy Meisner in The Eagles. Both had formerly been in what country-rock band?
2. A band called Blue Angel released its one and only album in 1980, and it flopped. The group's female lead vocalist, however, went on to bigger and better things. Who was she?
3. Here's an easy one: Tim Finn is now a full-time member of brother Neil Finn's group Crowded House. What group were the brothers previously in together?
4. Ian Kilminster is better known as who?

Answers

1. Poco
2. Cyndi Lauper
3. Split Enz
4. Lemmy, frontman for the band Motorhead.

Sordid scandal revived in book

Even 70 years after the event, the "Fatty" Arbuckle scandal remains one of the most sordid in Hollywood history - a history that abounds in ugly scandals.

In the heyday of silent movie comedy, of Mack Sennett and the Keystone Kops, of Chaplin and Keaton, the obese Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle was in that top rank of slapstick clowns who commanded big money because their movies drew big crowds to the box office. He was known as "The Prince of Whales" and "The Balloonatic" and generally loved by movie fans.

His rapid demise, in 1921, resulted from a wild party in San Francisco, which led to the mysterious death of an obscure starlet named Virginia Rappe. Arbuckle was charged with manslaughter. Twice a mistrial was declared because the jury could not agree. In his third trial, Arbuckle was acquitted. But his career was ruined.

Now the whole story is retold (and somewhat embellished) in a book that is as rife with rumor as was the press treatment of l'affaire Arbuckle in the 1920s. The book, Frame-Up, The Untold Story of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, is by Andy Edmonds (William Morrow and Company, 335 pages, illustrated, $27.95), who is described as "one of America's top investigative reporters."

MYSTERY

The Arbuckle case has been shrouded in mystery for seven decades. He and some friends drove from Los Angeles to San Francisco for a Labor Day weekend of partying. Miss Rappe and some other people arrived at the Arbuckle suite in the St. Francis Hotel and after some drinking, the starlet became hysterical and complained of severe pains. She died days later, of peritonitis, following a rupture of her bladder.

Arbuckle was promptly arrested. He was initially charged with rape and murder, but was tried for manslaughter.

It was a time when the public was getting fed up with Hollywood scandals, and there seems little doubt that Arbuckle was the victim of a combination of public hysteria, an attempt by the studio moguls to "clean up their own house" rather than submit to the threat of imposed censorship and a lot of grandstanding by newspapers that climbed on the bandwagon.

Some of the headlines were indeed lurid: "Actress Dies Mysteriously, Roscoe Arbuckle Sought In Hotel Orgy Death," "Plan To Send Arbuckle to Death In Gallows," "Comedian Linked To Bootleg Booze (and) Actress' Death" and "Raper Dances While Victim Dies.".

The public's response was not much more rational. Reacting to pressure groups, theatres in many cities of varying sizes (including, incidentally, Vancouver) cancelled scheduled showing of Arbuckle movies. In one Wyoming town, a band of 150 armed cowboys shot up the movie screen and then seized and burned the Arbuckle film that had been on view.

The Arbuckle incident hastened the hiring of Will Hays as the "czar" of the movies, the arbiter of what would and would not be tolerated in films. It also led to the inclusion of a "morals" clause in movie contracts, and Arbuck'' was the first star to be dethroned on the basis of the morals clause.

Edmonds' chronicling of the events, not only of the outlandish trials but of Arbuckle's life — from obligatory unhappy childhood to his pathetically futile attempts to revive his shattered career after the scandal — makes for some fascinating reading.

But the book is trapped by its own title: Frame-Up. The author seems determined to demonstrate that Arbuckle was more than just the victim of public outrage at the grossness of the crime with which he was accused, however wrongly. She sets out to prove that the whole ugly incident was choreographed, that Arbuckle was set up, presumably by movie mogul Adolph Zukor (the head of Paramount Pictures), as a means of punishing Arbuckle for demanding more money. But Zukor was, first and foremost, a businessman, and Arbuckle was a revenue-producing star.

One can hardly conjure up a more bizarre instance of killing the goose that laid the golden egg.

"One of America's top investigative reporters" is a touch sloppy with dates. She refers to November, 1918, as the time when America entered the First World War. In writing about other Hollywoood scandals, she mentions that in 1920, an actress named Olive Thomas committed suicide and adds that Thomas's husband, Jack Pickford (Mary's brother), died of drugs "a short time later." The "short time" in this case was 13 years. And she tells us that one of her chief sources for this book was Minta Durfee, Arbuckle's first wife, whom Edmonds met and interviewed in 1976. But, in fact, Miss Durfee died in 1975.

ZEAL

In her zeal to establish her conspiracy theory, Edmonds resorts to a lot of escape-hatch phrases such as "most people believe" and "a popular suspicion is" and even refers to a "confirmed rumor."

She has dug up cheques, signed by Zukor, totalling $20,000, made out to Matthew Brady, the district attorney who prosecuted Arbuckle. But she cannot tell us whether these cheques were intended as bribes to pursuade Brady to go easy on Arbuckle (which he certainly did not do) or to help Brady win his case. In the circumstances, it is difficult to fathom what Zukor's goal might have been, and whatever speculation the book provides, it certainly does not answer that question.

"What sinister role was played by Paramount chief Adolph Zukor?" screams the book-jacket blurb, listing this as one of the questions to which Edmonds "finds" an answer. If she found it, the editors seem to have lost it again.

Perhaps it is relevant to mention that the same Andy Edmonds also wrote a book a couple of years ago called Hot Toddy. That one was about the mysterious death, in 1935, of the blonde comedienne, Thelma Todd, and it was recently turned into a TV movie. In that book, the resourceful Edmonds presents us with the tantalizing, but unprovable, conclusion that Thelma Todd was bumped off by the notorious Mafioso, Lucky Luciano.

Maybe there's a key there. Todd is dead. Luciano is dead. Virginia Rappe is dead. Fatty Arbuckle is dead. Minta Durfee Arbuckle is dead.

Adolph Zukor is dead. Matthew Brady is dead. Who's left to argue with the "confirmed rumors" and "popular suspicious" with which Frame-Up and Hot Toddy are peppered?

Alex Barris, a Toronto-area writer, is the author of several books on movies and TV.

Strange days: PBS airs 'Berkeley in the Sixties'

BY BOB REMINGTON

In the 1960s, the University of California campus at Berkeley was at the forefront of the civil rights and anti-war movements, leading the way for the social upheavals of the decade.

San Francisco filmmaker Mark Kitchell captures it all in his Oscar-nominated documentary "Berkeley in the Sixties," airing Tuesday, July 23, on the PBS documentary series "P.O.V." It begins with archival film of a student protest against the House Un-American Activities Committee that was broken up by police wielding fire-hoses. That led to a free-speech movement in which students lobbied for the right to publicly debate political and social issues on campus. University administrators opposed the introduction of what they called "off-campus issues," with one campus administrator referring to the student free-speech movement as a "civil-rights panty raid." The free-speech movement had barely ended when the anti-Vietnam War protests began. Next came the black power movement and, eventually, the women's movement.

Kitchell and a team of volunteers combed through countless hours of archival film to compile this fascinating, two-hour documentary.

Yet, to his credit, Kitchell also provides a warts-and-all look at the campus that was the hotbed of student protest.

1916 a good year for Motorhead...

Motorhead--1916

In a business of pretty boy posers, Motorhead is an ugly blast of heavy-metal reality, with the music to match.

The songs on 1916 are what we expect from Motorhead, a British band that was the prototype for the speed metal genre (they've been around since 1975). Singer/bassist/songwriter Lemmy and his crew play unrelenting hard rock, with the subtlety of a cannon blast.

The group's ace up the sleeve, in appealing to a broad spectrum of punk and hard rock fans, is its use of chord changes in its choruses, to provide something close to hooks. Obviously the most basic of songwriting manoeuvres, but it saves the music from becoming a tuneless roar (i.e. Slayer), except on momentary lapses into excess ("Nightmare/ The Dreamtime" is the best example here).

Expect no airy acoustic ballads from Motorhead, a la Extreme or Warrant: their amps are always up to eleven, whether it's in the hell-bent Chuck Berry riffing of "Going To Brazil," or on the sonic blast of "Ramones," a tribute to the punk legends of the same name.

ANTI-WAR

When Motorhead does turn down the volume, on the title track, it's to deliver a scathing anti-war message, complete with graphic descriptions of battlefield horror, a fitting counterpoint to events this past winter in the Persian Gulf, and the ensuing gung ho euphoria. Lemmy actually sings instead of yells, and the song's sadness is accented by a cello. In fact, "1916" is probably Lemmy's best lyrics to date: "And I marched and I fought and I bled and I died/ And I never did get any older/But I knew at the time that a year in the line/Is a long enough life for a soldier."

LIGHTER

The rest of the time though, the mood is considerably lighter, and louder. Lemmy takes a swipe at the Los Angeles rock scene in "Angel City" ("I wanna backstage pass/Drink Bon Jovi's booze for free...I'm gonna live in L.A., drinkin' all day/ Lay by the pool and let the record company pay"), and brags of his own seeming indestructability in "I'm So Bad (Baby I Don't Care)" ("Black-hearted to the bone/Older than the Rolling Stones").

Edward Scissorhands

Johnny Depp, whose work has been less impressive in such cinematic monstrosities as Cry Baby, portrays this film's tragic hero with aplomb.

Not to be confused with Freddie Krueger of Nightmare on Elm Street fame, Edward is a benevolent soul who just happens to have scissors for hands.

His unfortunate condition is more or less a birth defect; he was created by none other than horror film veteran Vincent Price, whose role here is sadly cut short by an untimely demise.

That leaves Edward all by his lonesome in the good doctor's castle, that is until he is untroduced to suburbia by a well-meaning Avon lady.

There he meets Winona Ryder (Mermaids), with whom he promptly falls in love; however, for the most part, his new life brings him nothing but grief, particularly from Ryder's redneck boyfriend, played on the mark by Anthony Michael-Hall (The Breakfast Club).

Depp is hilarious, Michael-Hall is skillfully repugnant and Ryder is, of course, resplendent.

The only criticism that can be levied against Edward Scissorhands is that director Tim Burton (Batman) uses primary colors, à la Dick Tracy, to the point of absurdity.

While suburbanites whose cars match their homes effectively broadcast their capriciousness and provide a perfect visual contrast, between Edward's world and theirs (in other words, the premise works), the effect can be somewhat distracting.

The Neverending Story II

When German author Michael Ende's novel was first committed to film, in 1984, there was no way of knowing it would indeed be a neverending story.

But sure enough, the sequel is here, offering a large dose of fantasy and oddity wrapped around some truly magnificent set designs.

The story is a simple one — evil is nigh and only love can keep it at bay. That's where the the young Bastian comes in, all full of love to save the day.

Viewers who enjoyed Legend and The Princess Bride will also enjoy this one, although it may be somewhat too cute for those who preferred Legend's often dark atmosphere.

Liken it instead to David Bowie's Labyrinth, and you get a similar story — the quest to right a wrong — as well as a more lighthearted approach to fantasia.

Not your average let's-cash-in sequel, The Neverending Story II is based on the second portion of Ende's book — which means it has a reliable guide to keep it on track.

'China Beach' led to involvement for Delany

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM

When ABC's "China Beach" ends its run with a special two-hour movie on Monday, July 22, it will close an important chapter in Dana Delany's life. Since 1988, she has been playing nurse Colleen McMurphy in the critically acclaimed series about American servicepeople during the Vietnam War.

Dana Delany

But the 35-year-old actress doesn't seem anxious to close this particular chapter. Consider what she did after she completed work on the series.

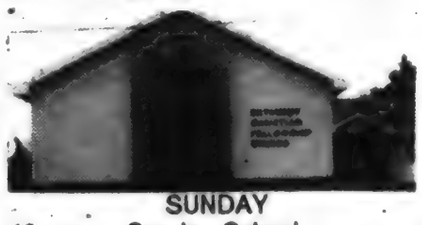
"I went on a month's vacation to Thailand and Vietnam," she says.

Delany's own memories of the Vietnam War are of TV images on the evening news. "I saw it on TV," she says. "I didn't know anybody who went. I was fortunate to come from an upper-middle-class background, and people of that strata, or whatever, did not go to the war. When I got the job, I felt, 'I have no right to play this part, because I don't have any connection to it.' "

But a connection did develop. "I haven't quite figured it out yet," she says, "but it's become such a huge part of my life. I've gotten so involved with the issues for the vets: the women's memorial project, agent orange, MIAs. So from not having known that much about Vietnam and feeling very inadequate in my knowledge, it's now become a big part of my life. There's probably not a lot of actresses who've been to Vietnam twice in three years."

The United States pulled out of Vietnam in 1973, and Saigon fell in 1975, but the war is still an emotionally charged subject.

"I think that when 'China Beach' first came out, the network was afraid we couldn't make war entertaining, and the vets were afraid that we would make war entertaining," says Delany. "And I think we managed to please both. It was political, but only in a human sense - in the cost of human lives."



During her years on "China Beach," Delany has developed a strong male following. One colleague of ours, never a gusher, even wrote that if any red-blooded male were asked who he'd like to be stranded on a desert island with, he'd answer with three names: Dana Delany, Dana Delany and Dana Delany. We risk embarrassing Delany by asking if she has any theories why.

"Oh, gosh, I don't know," she laughs. "The only thing I can think of it's the combination of wholesomeness, which is non-threatening, then just a little bit of bad girl thrown in. Everybody has both in them. If you keep the balance of it, I think it makes people more interesting."

She pauses. "But you'd have to ask him."

Lethal street set for repairs

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

A section of Bridge Street that has been the site of at least two fatal traffic accidents will soon be repaired by the Department of Transportation.

"We've been looking at it since last year (and) it's been identified as a priority," district highway engineer Michel Lacroix said, referring to paving of a 1.1 kilometre stretch of the East Bathurst Street.

The province plans to remove the top layer of asphalt on Bridge Street, from Manor Park to Carron Drive, and to apply a new coating.

"What's wrong with it is that the pavement is worn down," said Chief Lloyd Armstrong of the Bathurst City Police.

"Tracks (from vehicles) in either lane are indented."

The grooves on the road are up to three-quarters of an inch deep in some areas, Chief Armstrong said.

During times of heavy rain, water collects in the grooves, causing slippery conditions and "a very real danger of hydroplaning."

An accident in June, 1989, resulted in two deaths; a winter mishap killed one; and the latest accident in that area, on July 11, sent two people to hospital.

Although Chief Armstrong would not specifically blame the condition of the road for the accidents, he noted all three occurred while the road was wet from rain.

A report following the most recent accident, involving a single vehicle, was prepared, and Chief Armstrong said a copy would be forwarded "to the proper people."

City engineer Maris Freimanis told The Northern Light last week the situation has been known the city for about a year.

They took action at that time, asking the Department of Transportation to look into concerns that the road might be in need of repair.

"They came back and said (they) would do it," Mr. Freimanis said.

Although Mr. Lacroix could not offer a time-frame as to when the $100,000 repaving project would begin, he said tender calls close tomorrow.

The work could then start as early as next month, once a company has successfully acquired the contract to carry out the plan.

The cost of the project would be covered by the provincial Department of Transportation, under its capital works program.

Bridge to close

Motorists travelling to and from West Bathurst will have to take an alternate route, when major repairs are carried out on the Village Bridge next month.

The bridge will be closed to traffic for about three weeks, as of Aug. 6, said Michel Lacroix, district highway engineer with the Department of Transportation.

The work to be carried out consists of re-painting the entire bridge, and replacing expansion joints that have begun to show signs of age.

The expansion joints contract and expand to give the bridge the flexibility necessary to adapt to various climatic changes.

Lately, however, they have not been doing their job properly because of regular wear and tear over the years, Mr. Lacroix said.

The bridge's new coat of paint will be its first in about a decade, and will be done on a daily basis, from morning to evening, for about three weeks.

The bridge will be closed during that time, and a detour devised.

Harborview Boulevard will be opened only to local traffic, while vehicles travelling West from downtown will be diverted along Main Street, and across the Causeway Bridge.

Temporary traffic lights will be set up at the St. Anne Street/Evangeline Drive intersection, to assist the flow of traffic, Mr. Lacroix said.

While a crew of about 25 is expected to work 13-14 hours a day to complete the work, Mr. Lacroix stressed the bridge may remain closed for more than three weeks if inclement weather puts the work behind schedule.

Harassed over flags

The former Bathurst resident, who moved to Salmon Beach from California about two years ago with his American-born wife, Tomi Ryan, is experiencing something he never expected.

An American flag he was flying in front of his restaurant, Carey's By The Sea, was vandalized over the past week, along with electrical wires. And, he's fighting mad over the whole thing.

"It's terrorism, pure and simple," he told The Northern Light Tuesday.

The harrassment began July 18, when his wife received a call from a man threatening to "hold an old-fashioned barn burning," if the Acadian flag was not removed from a flagpole in front of the business. The caller stated that the American flag flying by its side was not a problem.

Not wanting any trouble, Mr. Carey took the Acadian flag down.

However, Sunday evening the American flag, along with the wires, were ripped out of their holdings.

That's when he decided he wasn't going to take it anymore.

"When they destroyed the American flag, it hurt (my wife) terribly," he said. "She's very disillusioned."

Mr. Carey has since contacted the RCMP about the problem, and they've assured him they will investigate the matter further.

"I wouldn't make a stink about it but, goddam, someone has to stand up to these bullies. I'm here, my wife is here...and they're going to have to shoot me to get me out of here," he said.

Since Monday the Canadian, New Brunswick and Acadian flags have all been flying, and an American flag will go up as soon as he can put his hands on one, because, according to him, "you can't let this thing go on."

Mr. Carey is asking the public to come forward with any information, regarding the people who perpetrated these crimes.

Scorcher was record

Record-setting temperatures have been felt this summer, but none moreso than this past weekend.

Saturday saw a high temperature of 34.5 degrees Celcius, or 94 degrees Fahrenheit, the highest temperature for that date going back more than 70 years, since such records have been kept.

The previous record was 32.8 degrees Celcius, set in 1975, said Harold Gammon, local weather observer for Environment Canada.

Last month was also a record-setter. Mr. Gammon said temperatures for June were hotter than any since 1979 and, while the first half of July was the coldest in 30 years, it has since rebounded dramatically to bring it within its normal rate.

Mr. Gammon said such high temperatures usually account for good growing days for agriculture, as long as they're accompanied by moisture in the ground. However, the lack of rain in this area, coupled with high temperatures, have produced a drastically different scenario, with many gardens and lawns in the area suffering because of it.

Irving evicting two

Two downtown businessmen have received eviction notices from Irving Oil Ltd.

Bob Hornibrook, owner of Main and King Convenience, and Aurele Frenette, owner of the Big Deal Produce Market, received letters Monday.

The letters were from Atlantic Land Dealers Ltd., an Irving-owned company based in Saint John. Both local businessmen were told to vacate their premises by Aug. 31.

"I put $18,000 into this, and it's all down the tubes," Mr. Hornibrook told The Northern Light Tuesday.

Mr. Frenette waived comment on the matter pending consultations with his lawyer. The Big Deal is something of a downtown institution, and friends of Mr. Frenette say he is shaken by the news. He has operated his establishment on the corner of St. George Street and King Avenue for the past 17 years.

Mr. Hornibrook's store is located on a leased property on the corner of Main Street and King Avenue, which includes a two-bay garage. Diamond Taxi is also located on the same premises, and under the same leasing agreement. Subsequently, the taxi company will also have to move.

A spokesman for Irving could not be reached for immediate comment on what the company's plans are for the downtown properties.

Strike looms at mill

The possibility of a strike hangs heavy over the city's pulp and paper mill this week.

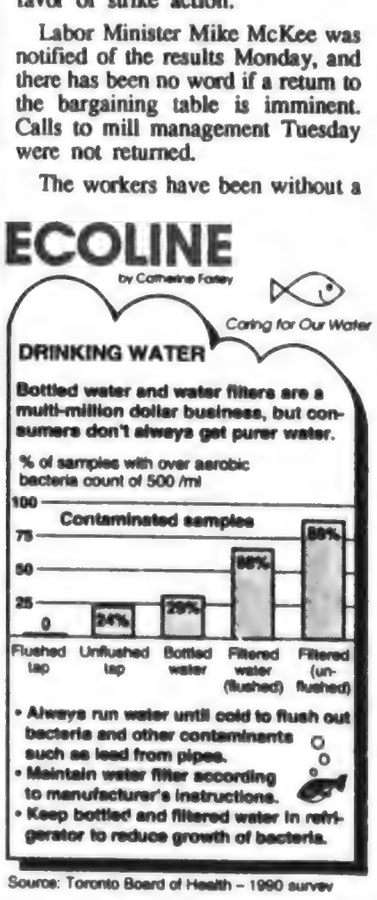
Three unions, representing about 120 workers at Stone Consolidated Inc., voted separately last weekend in favor of strike action.

Labor Minister Mike McKee was notified of the results Monday, and there has been no word if a return to the bargaining table is imminent. Calls to mill management Tuesday were not returned.

The workers have been without a contract since June 1990.

Local 1505 International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers voted 62-6 in favor of strike action.

Local 1150 International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers followed suit Saturday, with a 28-1 vote, as did Local 480 United Association of Pipefitters and Plumbers (23-2).



Twenty-four hour notice must be given before a strike occurs.

I DON'T KNOW ABOUT THIS...

Young Jason Lavigne seemed a little unsure about getting his face painted by a clown during a Penny Circus Day, held Saturday in the Upper Dawson Subdivision. About 100 children participated in the fun, which took place at the community centre on Assaff Drive. The event was organized by the community's Tenants Association, and the children were kept busy with games, clowns and treats. Jason is the four-year-old son of David and Fernande Lavigne of the Upper Dawson Subdivision.

Knights want complex for town seniors

According to Deputy Grand Knight Yvon Landry, there are only about 25 senior citizens' apartment units in the town of approximately 4,000 inhabitants. The Knights are looking to the provincial government for help to change this situation.

The K of C passed a motion during a July 14 meeting to approach Fredericton for funds to finance a feasibility study on a senior citizens' apartment complex.

"We think Beresford is neglected in that way, and a study should prove that fact," he said, adding he wasn't sure when he expects an answer.

Mr. Landry said projects such as these have been undertaken by K of C councils throughout Canada and the United States.

Junior Achiever off to U.S.

A local standout in the Junior Achievement Bathurst Inc. program is going south next month.

Stephanie Butt, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dereck Butt of North Teteagouche, is one of only two Canadians recently presented with a scholarship by Junior Achievement of Canada, to pay her way to an International Student Forum in Indianapolis, Indiana.

The forum is slated for Aug. 11 to 16, said local JA program manager Donna Eden. The forum brings together about 2,000 students from 10 countries for seminars, workshops and the chance to hear guest speakers relate their expreriences in the world of business.

Stephanie, along with a young man from Fredericton, will represent Canada at the forum, the theme of which is Spectrum of Success.

Selecting Stephanie as this branch's candidate for the scholarship was not a difficult one to make for Ms. Eden, as the 1991 Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit honors graduate is the current President of the Year for JA Bathurst.

"We decided on a student who fit the criteria and filled out an application for Stephanie and she won," Ms. Eden said.

Only two days after her return from the United States, Stephanie travels to Carleton University in Ottawa, as a delegate to the Canadian National Junior Achievement Conference (CANJAC), from Aug. 18 to 23.

Stephanie is expected to pass in a report on both experiences upon her return.

JA is a program that operates outside of the school system, teaching high school students the principles of business. The students set up and run their own companies, doing everything from manufacturing to marketing, with the help of adult advisors from the local business community.

TASTY COOL-DOWN

Jamie Lee LeBlanc cooled off Sunday evening with a cone of ice cream at the Big Scoop ice cream store. Jamie Lee, six, is the son of Maurice and Iris LeBlanc of Bathurst. Temperatures on the weekend rose as high as the 35 degree Celcius range in the Chaleur Region. (Northern Light Photo)

Charges are laid

Bathurst City Police report a private residence and seven businesses were broken into over the past several days.

Sgt. Bernie Allain said three adults were charged with break and enter with intent following an attempted robbery at a Hay Crescent residence in Parkwood Heights over the weekend.

The three--Beresford residents Sylvain Roy, Gaston Chiasson and Gordon Couture--pleaded guilty before Judge J. Frederic Arsenault in Provincial Court on Monday, and will be sentenced Aug. 2.

The three had broken a window to get into the residence, and were in the process of carrying out the theft when police scared them off.

Police expect to charge suspects soon in relation to break, enter and thefts at Big D restaurant on Teteagouche Hill, and at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Douglas Avenue, both occurring on July 15, and at Factory Tire on Teteagouche Hill July 16.

Le Spree used clothing store on King Avenue, Gardenia Florist on Main Street, Roly's Dry Cleaners on King Avenue, and Café Rosanna on King Avenue were all subjected to break, enter and thefts early Friday morning, with investigations into these ongoing.

HIS GARDEN'S FINE

The spell of hot weather experienced in recent weeks has played havoc with gardens in the Chaleur Region, but Alex Bertin's appears to be an exception to the rule. The Beresford resident is shown here Friday measuring his tomato plant, which is almost three feet in height. Mr. Bertin sympathizes with the problems his gardening neighbors are experiencing with draught, but the former farmer claims to have always had good crop production.

Program stresses value of education

Encouraging young people to stay in school is obviously a concern of major importance for School District 41.

In keeping with this, 40 young people, aged 15 years or more from throughout the school district, are involved in the summer program known as Work Orientation Workshop.

Although the name of the project seems to indicate the emphasis is on work, the purpose of the workshop is quite different, said a release.

The main objective of the program is to persuade young people that graduating and going on to post-secondary education is of major importance, if one is to attain any level of success in the workplace.

The eight-week program is made up of four weeks of workshops where those enrolled are given the opportunity to capture a deeper understanding of self, of life, of the workplace and its demands, of school life, of the world of business and of personal management. Through various activities, discussions, sessions and films as well as through personal testimonials, these young people are able to realize the importance of a good education and training.

They are also exposed to visits by members from various industries operating in our region and post-secondary institutions, such as the community college and Université de Moncton.

The second phase of the program involves a four-week period devoted to work experience. In a hands-on approach, those enrolled in the program get a chance to work as regular employees. During this time, they are encouraged to exchange and learn from the permanent employees who have a greater understanding of the workplace and the importance of a good education.

Such exposure has often resulted in a renewed interest in completing studies and remaining in school as long as possible.

Returning to school in September, those involved in the program are usually more enthusiastic and motivated than before and are better prepared to deal with the day-to-day difficulties they may encounter at school.

With the students divided into four groups, the projects are monitored by four university students and supervised by a coordinator. This summer program is offered with the financial support of Canada Employment and Immigration.

No word yet on PC candidates

The Progressive Conservative party is buckling down for its upcoming nomination convention for Nepisiguit-Chaleur.

"We want to win this riding for a change," said Leo Cormier, past-president of the Nepisiguit-Chaleur Progressive Conservative Association.

The association has been meeting once or twice a week in preparation for the Aug. 21 convention, Mr. Cormier said.

Slated for the Allardville Recreation Centre at 7 p.m., the convention will choose the PC candidate to run for Nepisiguit-Chaleur MLA in the provincial election this fall.

So far, only one candidate, Robert Hornibrook, has come forward to seek the nomination.

Mr. Hornibrook, a Janeville resident, is the recently-elected vice-president of the Nepisiguit-Chaleur Progressive Conservative Association, and a local entrepreneur.

He is seeking the Legislature seat held for the last 21 years by Liberal MLA and Speaker of the House Frank Branch.

Meanwhile, the search continues for a candidate to carry the PC banner in the provincial riding of Bathurst.

Provincial campaign coordinator Brad Green of Fredericton told The Northern Light Friday the Bathurst PC Association has identified at least three names of potential candidates; however, none have been confirmed to date.

Preparations underway for Family Week

Family Week is not until October, but the local organizing committee is already hard at work, said a release.

A meeting earlier this month saw an executive elected, comprised of Marc Rioux, president; Sonia Losier, vice-president; and Janice Slaney, treasurer.

Instituted by Family Services Canada in 1985, National Family Week is an occasion to celebrate families in the multiplicity and variety of its manifestations, and to self-actualize the major role that families play in taking charge of its members, said the release.

Family Week is Oct. 7 to 13, and the slogan is You've Got What It Takes. The theme is Building Better Family Environments.

Vanier Blvd. tender is tabled by council

By GREG MULOCK
Managing Editor

The early bird might get the worm, but the lowest bid doesn't necessarily get the tender.

So it went Monday at a special noon hour meeting of Bathurst city council.

A tendering contract for upgrading Vanier Boulevard was tabled by council, after some discussion over the fact that the firm recommended for the contract did not have the lowest bid.

The city administration recommended awarding the contract to Doucet Landscaping, for the tendered amount of $381,642. A bid from St. Isidore Asphalt was $382,187, but the bid from Bathurst Asphalt was $371,396.

Councillor Claire Wilt noted it was difficult to explain to taxpayers why the lowest bid was not being accepted, and said Doucet Landscaping was not in the asphalt business.

Maris Freimanis, director of operations for the City of Bathurst, said the administration's recommendations were based upon "careful evaluation" of all the bidders, and that these recommendations were documented in the administrative report.

This report was not part of the public package of council documents.

Councillor Ken Frenette also expressed concern, saying communication should be improved between the City and companies bidding on contracts for the municipality. He also said that perhaps the contract should have been split.

Mr. Freimanis said city tenders are advertised provincially, and he has "no pre-knowlege" of who's going to bid, nor does he have any say in sub-contracting. He explained sometimes companies that bid on tenders do not always have the skills and equipment for the entire job, and subsequently sub-contract.

In the case of Doucet Landscaping, he said they have been awarded city contracts in the past, and have engaged St. Isidore Asphalt. For the contract on Vanier Boulevard, they would be engaging Landry Asphalte Ltee.

MORE INFO

Councillor Keith Loupelle said it was difficult to award the tender, as he believed additional information was required. His motion for tabling was seconded by councillor Wilt, and approved by a majority vote.

The lone nay vote was from councillor Ross Aube.

In favor of tabling were councillors Loupelle, Wilt, Frenette, Harvey Boucher, and Gordon Kenny.

Deputy mayor Bob Anderson did not vote as he was presiding over the meeting for Mayor Kevin Mann who is on vacation. Councillor Marcelle Mersereau was also absent.

The matter of low bids versus what is actually accepted by council again came up in awarding a tender to Bertin Electric.

The firm received the nod for installing a boiler and electrical entrance at the Nepisiguit Centennial Library, for the tendered amount of $22,482.

Other bids were for $10,392 from Bathurst Electrical and Plumbing, and for $22,145 from Godin Electric.

Councillor Wilt again inquired about the difference in the bids. Mr. Freimanis said the lowest bidder had substituted a different product, and that the product in question, a boiler, was not of the same quality as the one included in the bid from Bertin.

The tender was subsequently awarded unanimously to Bertin, on a motion from councillor Aube, seconded by councillor Boucher.

NOT AWARDED

A contract for street and sidewalk upgrading was not awarded at all. The administration recommended that St. Isidore Asphalte be given the contract for the tendered amount of $237,261.

The bid from Bathurst Asphalt was for $202,871, prompting councillor Harvey Boucher to note there was too much of a variance in price.

Council unanimously defeated the motion for acceptance. Deputy mayor Bob Anderson said the resolution would be brought back to council at a later date.

The street and sidewalk upgrading involves St. Anne Street, Woodland Drive, Sunset Drive, and Bridge Street, among others.

A tender to upgrade the upper and lower reservoir was also not awarded. Only one bid was received, and it was well in excess of the cost estimated by a Fredericton consultant.

The bid, from Doucet Landscaping, was in the amount of $147,444.

Foul play not suspected in drowning

The BNPP police department is awaiting an autopsy report on a Quebec man who drowned off Beresford beach last week, although foul play is not suspected.

"He just went out too far, and I guess he couldn't make it back," said BNPP Chief Ed Huzulak, describing how he believed Jean-Paul Simon, 58, of Laval, Que. died July 18.

The man was apparently on holidays in the area.

The Beresford Nigadoo Petit Rocher Pointe Verte regional police force was called to the beach area, when the incident was reported around 5 p.m.

MORE LAYOFFS AT MINES

Union drafts job sharing proposal

Brunswick Mines plans to cut 50 more jobs than was reported by the company in April, and that has the union president irked.

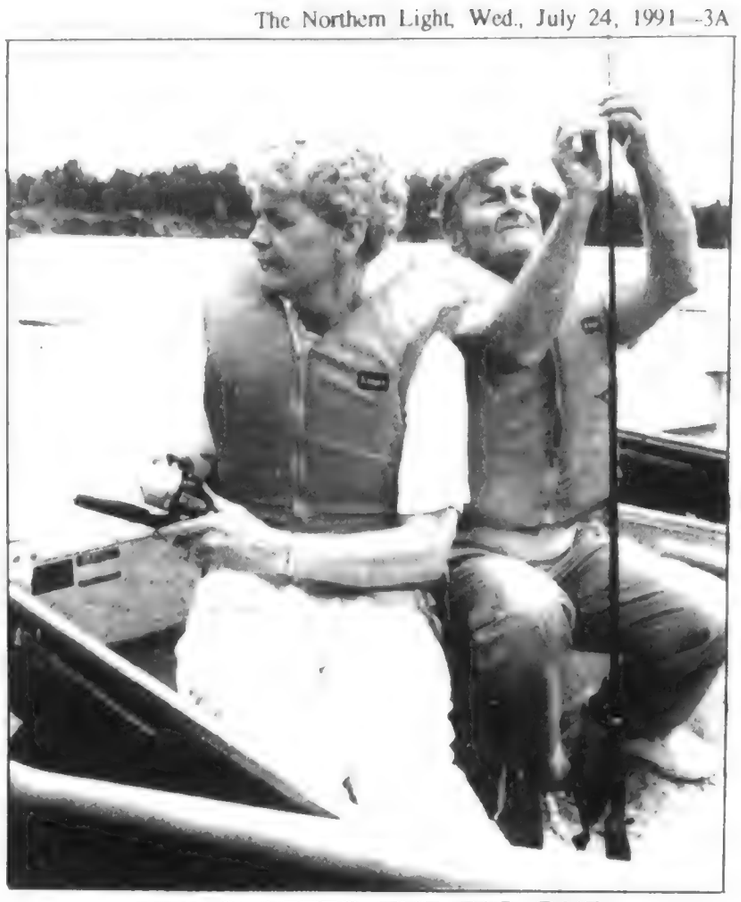
"For sure it bothers (the union)," said Blair Doucet, president of Local 5385 of the United Steelworkers of America. Local 5385 represents about 1,000 miners at Brunswick.

He added that the union predicted this would happen during the course of the 10-month strike at the mine, which ended in April.

Company spokesman Roger Clinch said about 70 to 75 workers have taken either early-retirement or voluntary severance packages, since the strike ended. He said that after job bumping and production demands on the workforce have stabilized, the mines will then look at cutting a further 50 jobs, also through early-retirement and voluntary severance packages.

"There are others who may be eligible," Mr. Clinch said. "And nobody is going out the door without anything."

He could not give a specific timeframe for the further job cuts, but said they are necessary, considering the drop in mineral prices on the global market.



Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp. Ltd. released its quarterly report July 19, in which the company reported a net loss of $10.1 million, or 26 cents per share, in the second quarter of 1991, resulting in a net loss of $14.4 million, or 37 cents per share, so far this year. This compares with earnings of $19.2 million, or 49 cents a share, in the second quarter of 1990, and $26.5 million, or 68 cents per share, for the first six months of last year.

Mr. Doucet believes the cuts in the workforce could be drastically reduced if a work-sharing program was put into place at the mine.

He described the program as a short-term alternative to layoffs, where some workers would work only four days a week rather than five, to save jobs. For example, getting five people to work four days a week rather than four people to work five days a week.

Job sharing in this manner, according to Mr. Doucet, would give the mines a chance to rebound from the low prices now troubling the industry, and save union jobs.

The union will soon put together a proposal on the job sharing prospect, to be presented to mine management.

GOING AFTER THE BIG ONE

Edith Vienneau of Bathurst and Blair Doucet of Quebec were not discouraged by the rain late Sunday afternoon. They were among the residents and tourists doing a little trout fishing at the Atlas Park scuba diving and recreation complex in Pointe Verte.

Pen-pal relationship sparked their romance

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

Business conventions and church picnics may be good places to meet people, but there are other, more adventurous ways to find one's significant other.

No one knows that more than Oscar and Gisela (Jakoby) White: in what seems like a modern fairytale, the couple were pen pals whose relationship blossomed magically into marriage.

In the early 1950s, Gisela Jakoby was a young girl living in Saanbrusken, a German town near the French border.

When she came across the name New Brunswick, she liked the Germanic ring to it, and wrote a letter to the mayor of Bathurst.

The letter was printed in The Northern Light, and Gisela received numerous responses.

"I got a lot of letters," she said in a recent interview, during the couple's stay with her husband's sister Alice and husband Guy Parker, of Parkside Drive.

In fact, the response was too much to handle, and she chose to take up correspondence with just a few of the respondents.

"She eventually had to choose just one (pen pal), and I was the lucky one."

CLEAR CHOICE

Gisela said she liked his handwriting, and the fact he wrote intelligently. So when postage began to get expensive, her choice was more or less clear.

"She eventually had to choose just one (pen pal), and I was the lucky one," he said.

Three or four letters into the relationship, Gisela sent Mr. White a photograph of herself, prompting him to decide the correspondence was well worth pursuing.

After graduating from high school, he joined the air force, and in 1955 was posted in France. His posting was just a few hours' drive from Gisela's home in Germany.

Their first meeting was a humorous one, by both party's accounts.

Gisela gave her future husband directions he assumed were easy to follow. They were not.

Taking a wrong turn at the wrong time, he found himself driving aimlessly "way out in the country."

"I was about to give up, but then I saw a cluster of houses across the hill," he said.

Spotting a home that matched the description he had been given, Mr. White approached, looking like a "typical Canadian" in a motorcycle jacket and sporting a crewcut.

Working in a garden next to the house were an older woman and a young girl, dressed in shorts.

"When she saw me, she darted into the house to change," Mr. White recalled.

"Then I knew I was at the right house."

Indeed he was. Before the year was out, Gisela Jakoby became Mrs. Gisela White.

PROTECTIVE

"It was easy for him since my family speaks English," Mrs. White said, adding her mother was receptive, but also understandably protective.

"Her family was reserved, but eventually, they saw my intentions were honorable," said Mr. White.

A few military formalities later, the couple became husband and wife on Dec. 17, 1955.

Three years later, Mr. White was posted to Chatham. The couple stayed there about eight years, moved around a bit, and settled later in Vancouver, where they now live.

To the casual observer, the couple would appear to be living a simple, ordinary life. Mr. White holds a middle-management position at B.C. Bearing Engineers, and Mrs. White works in an office at a fish-packing plant.

But every Dec. 17, there is always the chance someone will ask the inevitable question: "So, how did the two of you meet?"

And suddenly, Oscar and Gisela White are not so ordinary anymore.

Former Bathurst resident Oscar White met his wife, Gisela, in a most uncommon way. The two became pen pals when Gisela was a schoolgirl in her native Germany. They exchanged letters for several years until, on Dec. 17, 1955, they exchanged wedding vows.

What's in a word? Ask the unity cabinet

Political Scene

By STEWART MacLEOD
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

It's a pity Prime Minister Brian Mulroney put a gag on federal unity ministers because now, unfortunately, we no longer know how they're making out with finding an acceptable substitute for "distinct."

That's the word causing so much trouble as the 18-member unity cabinet committee travels across Canada trying to solve our constitutional crisis. It all boils down to whether Canadians are willing to officially recognize Quebec as a "distinct society".

It's not going well so far. Opinion polls tell us that, while a vast majority of Canadians realize Quebec is distinct, there is an equally vast majority who don't want the Constitution to realize it.

Before Mr. Mulroney told his ministers to keep quiet about their closed-door deliberations, we knew there were heated arguments over how to solve this problem. After one meeting, Constitutional Affairs Minister Joe Clark said it might be necessary to drop the "distinct society phrase".

"All I know is that some people are still concerned about the phrase and we have enough problems with the substance of constitutional change without having to fight about words."

However, Mr. Clark obviously wasn't speaking for a majority of Quebecers. In that province, the acceptance of "distinct" is part of the so-called bottom line for renewed federalism.

We do make things difficult for ourselves, don't we?

DIDN'T FLY

In the throne speech that opened the current session of Parliament, the government talked about Quebec's "unique" society. But apparently it was not a successful experiment. Said Health Minister Benoit Bouchard: "The reaction to the word 'unique' was quite lukewarm."

So where do we go from here?

We could, perhaps, suggest "dissimilar society," but then that would undoubtedly prompt someone to ask, "dissimilar from what?" And we'd have another spat on our hands.

"Different" wouldn't fly, no if "unique" was a failure.

"Novel society" would certainly not be acceptable. That sounds too quaint.

"Unusual?" No way.

There would be no point in pursuing "non-identical" society because, once again, it's a comparative term.

As for "original society," that would make the rest of us non-originals. Anyway, the native community might have something to say about this.

In the pure sense, there would be nothing wrong with "disparate society," because the dictionary tells us it means "distinct or different". But it doesn't have a very nice ring to it.

We can assume it would be rejected, if not by Quebec, then by TROC, (the rest of Canada).

A word almost certainly to be acceptable to Quebec would be "distinguished" society, but it could raise hackles in TROC, which would automatically become undistinguished.

A word like "diverse" would be a non-starter because that's really the opposite of what Quebec wants. It's the entire country that's considered diverse.

But, has anyone seriously thought of "distinctive"? Surely, that's been tossed around, if for no other reason than it's so obvious.

Come to think of it, perhaps that's why no one mentioned it.

Strikes us this is a far better word than "distinct." And with the aid of a dictionary, it's more convincing than ever.

It says here that while "distinct" and "distinctive" are related, they are not interchangeable. You see, one of the definitions of "distinct" is "separate." "Distinctive" means different.

This alone should make it an easier sell in TROC.

Here is part of Webster's explanation: "Two distinctive groups are individualistic (with respect to all others); two distinct groups are separate ones (primarily with respect to each other.)"

Now that this brilliant suggestion has been offered, surely the prime minister will lift the gag long enough to let us know how it sits with his unity cabinet. But we'd hate to be responsible for still another squabble.

A tender matter

It's a tender matter.

Council's mandate is to get the best possible value for the taxpayer's dollar, hence the careful consideration that goes into the awarding of contracts for public works.

Experience has taught that the lowest bid is not always the best value, for a variety of reasons, although this might seem unlikely to the uninitiated.

Subsequently, council and city officials have a duty to make their reasoning perfectly clear when tenders are awarded, particularly when lower bids do not win. A more specific outflow of information would keep the public informed and avoid misconceptions.

It would also allow the involved companies to see in what way their bids were lacking, and adjust accordingly the next time tenders are called.

70 YEARS AGO
July 1921

On Monday evening, Mr. Peter Leger will exhibit his new drop curtain for the Opera House, a painting in oils by a young man named F. Molane who is here studying and working up a clientele.

The curtain is of war-like design and depicts the artist's conception of a hot corner at the second battle of Ypres. Practically all the vehicles of militarism in use during the war are introduced on the canvas; not even the tank or the "sausage" being omitted.

The curtain is of considerable dimensions, occupying the whole of the stage front. Done in sombre colors, the general scheme of the picture is likely to require more than the usual number of illuminants to appear at its best from the proscenium.

Probably the most valuable bit of publicity ever given to Bathurst Beach, or Youghal Beach, to give it the name under which it has been known for years, is contained in a special illustrated feature article in the Montreal Herald of July 13.

The best part of it is that the article was written by a Montrealer, and therefore cannot be accused of the partiality or exageration that might be natural to a resident of the district, and moreover was not prepared as an advertisement. It therefore most likely marks the real beginning of general appreciation by the people of Montreal and Ottawa and other eastern cities of the natural charm of Bathurst Beach as a summer resort, a charm that heretofore has been enjoyed by a comparatively exclusive circle.

Bathurst's summer colony, which this year has stretched several more cottages nearer Kent Lodge, was the scene of other excitement last week too. Several residents report having seen the Phantom Ship, a phenomenon familiar and famous in these parts.

The impending closing of the Capitol Theatre, and the final ringing down of the curtain on July 1, were met with a general feeling of nostalgic regret in the community.

Such sentiments are understandable when it is considered that several generations were well entertained in the St. George Street auditorium, principally through motion picture presentations. But time and tide have taken their toll and TV sets have superseded the silver screen to a considerable extent.

For the past eight years the Kent interests have operated the Capitol and they are converting it into a modern bowling emporium. Previously, and for some 40 years, Peter J. Leger, who held the undisputed title of "Bathurst's Greatest Entertainer", was the proprietor, keeping pace with every new discovery in the field and booking the best in film fare. These traditions were admirably upheld by his successors.

One of the first houses built in Youghal, a 200-year-old landmark, is in the process of being razed. Most recently, it has been the home of Douglas Morrison, who succeeded his father, Nelson Morrison. Previous owners were Robert Carr-Harris and Thomas Armstrong, but its original builder is unknown.

There is an interesting bit of history connected with the Carr-Harris tenure. In addition to being a professor at Queens University in Kingston, Ont., and belonging to a prominent Canadian military family, Robert Carr-Harris had enterprising ideas. They didn't always work out, however, and he went through several fortunes.

Inventor clarifies news story

July 22

Dear Editor,

This is in reference to an article on my survival craft Esperanto which was published July 10.

I wish to clarify that I was stuck in a deep sea tug boat for two and a half days in 45-foot waves, with only as survival gears (sic), open dory and rubber liferafts, and not in a dory for two and a half days as stated in the July 10th article. This happened in 1969. The Ocean Ranger went down Feb. 15, 1982.

I just recently spent four days at sea with my survival capsule, and I will probably be on another journey when this letter is printed. This trip will prove in a positive way, that it is possible to keep people dry and warm in a tragedy at sea. I will be at sea until I get together with the Canadian Coast Guard in Ottawa. This meeting, already planned, is scheduled to take place in the next few weeks.

I wish through my efforts, that the people concerned will let me prove that with a concept like the one I propose, and with an effective launching system like the one I have designed for offshore drilling rigs, that most people who died on the Ocean Ranger would have survived that tragedy.

To all of you, thank you for your support.

Quebec visitor enjoyed concert

(Editor's Note: The following letter was written by Marianna O Gallagher. She comes from near Quebec City, and is presently in Bathurst visiting her cousin, Sister Joan Conway. Her letter describes an Irish concert that will be presented in Bathurst next week.)

July 23

Dear Editor,

Audiences in the Miramichi have already had a chance to witness the amazing blend of the traditional and the modern, the old and the new in the concert called Different Drums.

The show evokes a welter of memories, thoughts and opinions. It is in two parts: the first, sombre, stark, fast-moving and serious, is presented by a cast of very young talented actors who combine poetry, music, song and movement, into an intriguing mix of very emotional poetry and very modern music.

These young people show that they can play the traditional with real heart — excellent fiddling and a charming harp solo played by a very young member of the entourage. One senses that the younger people are secure on the stage, fostered and cherished by the older musicians.

In the first part of the show, the younger players use their knowledge of the ordinary hardships of growing up in the Nineties - social, political, religious, racial, against a background of Northern Ireland. They sing out hope, they shout out hope for themselves and for the world. The different drums are no doubt the huge hollow lambeg drums used so provocatively on July 12, and the rhythmic bodhran associated more with dance and joy then with provocation. One thinks also of Thoreau's "marching to a different drummer."

The second part of the program has the maturer folk with their mellow approach, playing the traditional music that we North Americans have come to associate with Ireland. They sing the beautiful old songs with nostalgic unconcern, and play the rollicking music with the abandon that one usually associates with youth. Anyone with teenagers around them should be impressed with what the young people are crying out here. Young people themselves will be proud of their peers' prophetic and poetic grasp of their own lived today.

The unity of the piece is the interwoven younger/older presence/absence on stage. One is incomplete without the other. One can see the interplay of respectful listening that each goves to the other. The young fiddlers and guitarists join the older musicians in a wonderful sensitive, free, powerful and modern song of hope at the end. A short concert that has an impact. Not to be missed.

Double taxation by govts. a real racket says writer

July 22

Dear Editor,

Less than a month ago, I was reading about a town in the state of New York that had declared bankruptcy. And just last week the town of Sydney Mines, N.S. was placed in trusteeship to the Minister of Municipal Affairs for the Province of Nova Scotia, the same minister being the member for that section of Cape Breton.

It makes one wonder if maybe Bathurst could be next. What gets me is that the minister of Municipal Affairs and or his bureaucrats must have known that Sydney Mines was overspending, just as the minister here in New Brunswick and his bureaucrats must know that almost every village, town and city is overspending, and nobody it seems could care less. But, as a friend of mine put it the other day, "the bubble is about to burst." Quite true.

Within the last couple of weeks, I was visited by two of the city councillors who are aspiring to become the Liberal candidate for Bathurst, in the upcoming provincial election. After what I've been writing about city council's handling of some civic affairs, these people have the gall to think that I would support them in provincial politics. No, I believe they can do enough damage right here. I'm inclined to think that both are in favor of the proposed civic centre, while we're in debt to the tune of $16 million. There's not enough years left in my lifetime to see the end of it.

Just this morning I visited a local car dealer's lot, with the intention of buying a used vehicle. The vehicle and price of $7,500 was quite reasonable I'd say, but after adding the GST and 11 per cent provincial tax, the price was $8907.75, a difference of $1,047.75. The provincial tax was paid once on this vehicle, and the manufacturer's tax of 13 per cent was also paid. What a racket our governments are running. If I tried the same type of scam, I'd be locked up.

Naturally, I didn't buy. Why should I give $1407.75 to McKenna and Mulroney? They call themselves leaders, but I've got other names for them. They couldn't lead a blind horse to a water hole.

All I can add here is that I hope the communist countries who are turning to democracy don't copy our system, because they're in for a sad awakening.

Beresford businessman released on $10,000 bail

A Beresford businessman is free on $10,000 bail.

Jean-Claude Boucher was released from police custody in Peel, Ont. Tuesday morning, after bail was posted by a business partner.

Boucher is among 13 individuals charged following a police investigation into a sophisticated theft and distribution ring.

The co-owner of the Carpet Ranch in Beresford, he has been charged with conspiracy to possess stolen property, said a release.

He was arrested last week in Beresford and flown to Ontario, where he was in police custody until his bail hearing Tuesday.

The investigation began in February, when members of the Peel Regional Police went undercover and infiltrated what the release called "a sophisticated group of persons involved in the thef and distribution of large amounts of stolen property."

As the scope of the investigation grew, it became a team effort involving the Metropolitan Toronto Police, the Montreal Urban Community Police, the Peterborough Police Force, the Bathurst detachment of the RCMP, the BNPP regional police, the Ontario Provincial Police and the Quebec Provincial Police.

A few months into the investigation, police obtained warehouse space in Mississauga, which they allowed the thieves to use to store stolen goods.

During the latter stages of the investigation, the focus of the operation expanded to include firearms, counterfeit travellers' cheques and upscale break and enters.

The investigation culminated July 16, with the seizure of $2.8 million worth of counterfeit travellers' cheques, said the release. Immediately following the seizure, numerous coordinated arrests and search warrants were executed in Peel, Toronto, Montreal and New Brunswick.

STOLEN IN ONTARIO

In Beresford, the RCMP and BNPP searched the Carpet Ranch, located at 1263 Rue Principale. They recovered a load of ceramic floor tile that was allegedly stolen May 14 from Olympia Tile in Mississauga, Ontario.

The investigation resulted in the recovery of just over $2 million worth of property, $2.9 million worth of counterfeit travellers' cheques and two firearms.

When the offences were taking place, the thieves used scanners to intercept police radio broadcasts, the release said. While using stolen tractors to commit subsequent thefts, they disguised them by repainting over the company names, switching license plates and attaching magnetic name plates to the doors with fictitious company names.

They used a device which was capable of bypassing ignition locks. They also had a device to circumvent the pin lock which is often installed on trailers to prevents thefts.

So far, 13 people have been charged, and they face a total of 84 charges. Further charges are expected to be laid in Toronto, Montreal, Peterborough and New Brunswick.

Following is a chronological description of the investigation:

——April 16 and 19, project investigators recovered 58 Cameo automatic dishwashers. They had been stolen April 5 from the Cameo facility in Montreal.

——April 19, a small sample of Belfor crystal was recovered. It was part of a trailer load of crystal stolen from the Belfor and Co. Ltd. in Ottawa on Aug. 8, 1990.

RECOVERED

——May 2, a stolen tractor and trailer, containing a load of Bacardi Rum and Orange Cooler, was recovered. It has been stolen the night before from the Bacardi plant in Brampton, Ontario.

——May 20, investigators recovered a load of stolen ceramic floor tiles. It is one of two tractor trailer loads that had been stolen from Olympia Tile, in Mississauga, Ontario, May 14.

——June 14, a search warrant was executed on a public storage unit in Mississauga. This resulted in the recovery of 365 cases of assorted spices. They were part of a trailer load that had been stolen Dec. 6, 1990, from Schwartz Inc., in Montreal.

——June 18, a stolen tractor and trailer loaded with pressure-sealed lumber was recovered. It had been stolen the night before from the Cashway Lumber Yard in Brampton.

——June 20, an undercover officer purchases a .38 calibre Smith and Wesson revolver and a .30 calibre Czechoslovakian sub-machine gun. These weapons are restricted and prohibited, respectively. To date, investigators have been unable to establish any history to the firearms, which were purchased by the officer in Montreal.

——June 20, investigators conducted surveillance on a stolen trailer load of Royal Doulton-Bunnykin china. They followed this property to a warehouse in Laval, Quebec. Three days later, they recovered the Royal Doulton china, a trailer load of Belinda dishes and a trailer load of carpet.

——July 2, an attempt was made to break into the Peter Gorman Food Distribution Centre in Peterborough. The attempt was interrupted by an employee of the company and the suspects fled. A sophisticated device was seized from the outside telephone equipment box. It was installed and capable of circumventing the company's burglar alarm.

——July 4, the undercover officer met with persons near Kingston and in Montreal, and purchased $52,000 worth of counterfeit travellers' cheques.

——July 16, the Bathurst detachment of the RCMP and the BNPP recovered the second load of ceramic floor tiles at the Carpet Ranch in Beresford.

——July 16, undercover officers met with some of the accused in the warehouse in Mississauga. Seized at the time was $2.8 million worth of counterfeit travellers' cheques.

Option is extended

Nepisiguit Co-op has taken steps to ensure a property off St. Peter Avenue is available when it's ready to start construction.

Co-op Atlantic, an organization based out of Moncton whose primary function is to assist in the development of local cooperatives, has signed an extension on its option agreement with the city, giving the group until Dec. 2, 1991 to decide on whether to purchase the land.

The former agreement with the city expired June 28. The new agreement was approved Monday afternoon at city hall during a special meeting of city council.

The land in question is situated at Victoria Avenue facing Picot Avenue in West Bathurst, explained Marc Bouffard, planning director for the City of Bathurst.

Totalling 300 feet by 550 feet, the land is mostly owned by Expert Fence (200 x 550), with the remainder owned by the City and valued at $10,500.

City council granted conditional approval in February for the land to be rezoned, in order to accomodate a Co-op supermarket and gas pumps.

Inishowen Tour is arriving next week in Bathurst

Two days of extraordinary intercultural celebration mark the 25-year old City of Bathurst next week, when the Inishowen Tour arrives.

Next Wednesday evening, July 31, the public is invited to gather with family and friends, and bring cushions or folding chairs to Coronation Park to delight in an evening of sheer fun. The Irish pipers, singers, and dancers will share the outdoor stage with local performers, making it a real "exchange of culture, said a release. The show will run from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

"Voidunor" will feature Acadian songs in French; the Holy Rosary/Jubilee Singers offer popular Canadian songs in English; Patsy Frenette will entertain in both languages; and Dennis Legere, Eric Smith, Joe Hachey, will bring their vocal and other musical talents to the show.

The atmosphere and spirit will be set into motion by John Vienneau, well-known fiddler, and his band.

Master of ceremonies for the evening, Roger Clinch, will weave together the artistic contributions which inspire an appreciation of our ancestors, who came to Bathurst from faraway lands with an enriching culture.

The park concert will wet appetites for Different Drums, the name of the show set for the following evening, Aug. 1, at Bathurst High School Theatre at 8 p.m. This is a two-hour concert featuring performers from Derry and Inishowen in the northwest of Ireland. This region, one of the most beautiful in Ireland, is rich in history and has a great tradition in music and literature.

Tickets for this concert are available from any member of the Irish Canadian Cultural Association, or from Captain's Cabin and Jean Coutu Pharmacy.

Performers on the Inishowen Tour include the Carlingford Pipe Band from Carlingford, Ireland, featuring 25 of the finest Irish pipe musicians. The band was formed during the 1920s and continues to be a focal point of entertainment for young and old alike. Also performing are the Crawley Family, a true family of musicians, ages 9 to 17, who perform traditional Irish music; and Scoil Rince Oriel (Oriel School of Dance), a group of youth trained in traditional Celtic dance.

Bathurst has always strived to promote itself

Silver Points

By SONIA-SIMARD CORMIER

News from 25 years ago.

July 28, 1966

One thing can be said about Bathurst — it has been consistent throughout the years in devoting much energy to improving both it's economic picture, and in developing a strong sense of community.

More than 200 people representing the retail trade in Bathurst welcomed the opportunity, 25 years ago, to reep the benefits of an eight-week citywide trade promotion. The purpose of the promotion was to sell Bathurst as a retail shopping district, a movement which not only persists to this day, but has expanded to promote the city as a tourist destination as well.

Of course in 1966 the city of Bathurst offered a lot more than a good sales pitch; it was also a caring place where shut-ins were not forgotten, as a perennial project by the Gloucester Chapter IODE demonstrated. For the 16th consecutive year, the Chapter sponsored a bus tour to allow those not capable of getting about on their own to see the sights. Taken on such a tour were residents from Foyer St. Camille, which many people will remember as being located on St. Peter Avenue, close to the Bathurst Mall, and from the Vallee Lourdes Sanatorium as well, as individuals who were confined and did not often have the opportunity of seeing the great outdoors.

Although I don't believe the tours have continued, we still have this and similar organizations at work in our city, and visiting shut-ins has remained part of their mandate.

What else did we enjoy in 1966, that's still around today? Well, the Farmers' Market on Munro Street for one. It would appear that this year the popular meeting place will celebrate it's 29th year, as it was opening for the fourth consecutive year in 1966. At the time, it was located in the grandstand building at Bathurst Exhibition Grounds, and was sponsored by the Bathurst Agricultural Society.

It is sad to realize that one popular activity which took place in the month of August at the Exhibition Grounds did not survive changing times — the Gloucester County Exhibition.

Being a "city" girl, the yearly extravaganza was the only opportunity I, and many others like me, had of seeing the various aspects of farm life, from animals to products as well as many wonderful rarely-viewed shows.

On the program for 1966, were an enlarged midway, an aerial trapeze act, and a roller skating show. Bathurst beauties vied for the title of Dairy Princess, while young and old alike enjoyed dancing, horse-hauling competitions and countless competitions, from baking to crafts.

Wouldn't a revival of such an exhibition have been a great project to bring back as we celebrate our Silver Jubilee?

Personal opinion from the managing editor

The Brunswick Mining "mechanical wrist," developed by Emile Christie, Roy Frenette and Roger Juliano, has added a westerner to its list of users.

The device, which has gained national recognition through the television promotions of Noranda Inc. has more than 20 people using it to play hockey.

Lyle Alspach, a technician with the federal Department of Agriculture in Saskatchewan, saw Christie, Frenette, and Juliano in a Noranda ad on television, between innings of a baseball game.

Having lost his arm below the elbow did not deter Lyle from pursuing his avid participation in hockey; however, his own device did not meet all of his needs.

After viewing the television ad, Lyle's curiosity was getting the better of him.

Recently, while attending a conference in Fredericton, Lyle stole away for a day. He rented a car, drove to Bathurst, and checked into Danny's Inn and Conference Centre.

After several phone calls, he finally tracked down Emile Christie who designed the wrist. Although on vacation at the time, Emile was able to meet with Lyle and show him the wrist.

After a few adjustments, proper fittings were put in place and Lyle was soon practising slap shots on the motel carpet.

To say that he was thrilled with his-new found wrist is an understatement. He could not believe the mobility that the "wrist" provided.

To top things off, Emile reflected the true spirit of Bathurst hospitality by whisking Lyle off to participate in the festivities of the Bathurst Silver Jubilee.

ANOTHER CELEBRATION

The hoopla that encompasses the City of Bathurst's Silver Jubilee continues, and rightly so. However, this is not the first time the city has celebrated a major anniversary.

Mrs. Pearl Pitre, a lady who sometimes graces these pages with her poetry, recently brought me in an interesting item. It's a souvenir booklet from 1962, put together by the Town of Bathurst to celebrate the community's Golden Jubilee — the 50th anniversary of Bathurst's incorporation as a town.

The booklet has a detailed profile of the town and its industries, along with photographs of various sites and people of interest. Vince Whelton was the mayor then, and the chairman of the Golden Jubilee's general committee was H.O. Schryer.

OMISSION

We inadvertently omitted a line or two from a Letter to the Editor last week, the letter from Sister Joan Conway about the Irishowen tour coming to Bathurst next week: on Wednesday (July 31), there is a buffet supper from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club. Later in the evening, there will be an outdoor concert in Coronation Park.

Elsewhere in the Corrections Department, Miss Beresford 1991, Sylvie Duguay, enters Grade 12 this September at Bathurst High School, not at Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit.

Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

The symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning (headache, nausea, chills, dizziness, tiredness) are the same as those of the flu. Carbon monoxide is given off by autos, coal, oil and gas furnaces, kerosene heaters and even cigarettes. It's odorless, colorless, tasteless and dangerous. Be careful of this danger in poor ventilated or closed spaces.

How To Write A Good Ad

1. Start your ad with the merchandise you are selling. This makes it easier for the reader to locate your advertisement.
2. Always include the price of the item you are selling. Many readers in Classified will not respond to an ad which does not include a price.
3. Place yourself in the reader's position. Ask what you would like to know about the merchandise you are selling. Include information such as brand name, colors and other specific descriptions in your ad and you will receive a quicker response from the reader.

Notice To Advertisers

If your ad appears for the first time please check carefully to see that it is correct. The Northern Light will not be liable for more than one incorrect insertion. The advertiser agrees that the publisher shall not be liable for damages arising out of errors in advertisements beyond the amount paid for the space actually occupied by the portion of the advertisement in which the error occured, whether such error is due to negligence of its servants, or otherwise and there shall be no liability for non-insertion of any advertisement beyond the amount paid for such ADVERTISEMENT. The publisher reserves the right to edit, revise, classify or reject an advertisement.

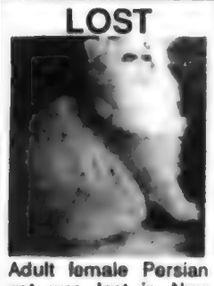
CARD OF THANKS

COMEAU - I would like to take this opportunity to thank Drs White & Sanson, the nurses & staff of 3rd & 4th East & S.I.C.U. for all the kindness & care given me while I was a patient at C.R.H. Also to friends & relatives for visits, calls, books, flowers, treats & support. You helped make the time pass faster while I was a patient locally and in the Saint John Regional Hospital. To all Thank You very much. John Comeau

GOOD- Sincere thanks to all my relatives and friends who attended my 85th Birthday Party on July 16th. Also for the flowers, gifts, cards and telephone calls which I received. Your kindness and thoughtfulness was greatly appreciated. Sincerely.
Florence Good.

Special thanks to Dr's. Hatheway, Bartelette, Sanson. All personel of day & night staff of Emergency Dept. & of 3rd floor West at Chaleur Regional Hospital. Also to the Extra Mural personel for all the special care given to me from July 8 to July 17, 1991. Sincerely. John Pitre.

PERSONALS



PRAYER
To the Holy Spirit

Holy Spirit you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideals. You who give me the divine gift to Forgive all that is done to me. You who are in all the instincts of my life with me, I want to Thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material degree may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your celestial glory. Holy Spirit we Thank You for your Gifts and Love. Pray Three Consecutive Days. Promise to publish this dialogue.

NOTICE OF TEMPORARY BRIDGE CLOSURE

The Department of Transportation wishes to advise the population that effective Tuesday, August 6, 1991, the Bathurst Village Bridge will be closed to vehicle and pedestrian traffic for a period of approximately three (3) weeks. Depending on weather conditions, this closure could be extended further. This closure is required due to major repair work to be done to the structure.

Traffic will be detoured starting at Murray Avenue onto Main Street, Queen Street (Causeway), Riverside Drive, Evangeline Drive, Ste. Anne Street and St. Peter Avenue. Harbour View Boulevard will remain open for local traffic.

During the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 9:30 p.m., shuttle bus service will be provided for pedestrians from Monday to Friday.

The Department apologizes for any inconvenience this temporary closure may cause.

NOTICE OF INTENTED ACTION UNDER THE CROWN LANDS AND FORESTS ACT

Notice is hereby given that the Minister of Natural Resources and Energy has received a request to lease a parcel of Crown Land for the purpose of constructing a rifle range.

This parcel is located at Allardville, Gloucester County, South of the intersection of Highways 8 and 360.

Any person having objection to this proposed may file that objection in writing with the Director of the Crown Lands Branch not later than August 30, 1991.

If no objection is filed on or before that date or if objections are rejected, the Minister of Natural Resources and Energy may recommend that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council approve the issuance of a lease for this purpose under the authority of Section 23 of the Crown Lands and Forests Act being Chapter C-38.1 R.S.N.B.

Further information regarding proposed site location can be obtained at the local New Brunswick Forest Service Office located at Allardville, N. B., telephone 725-2127.

AVIS D'INTENTION EN VERTU DE LA LOI SUR LES TERRES ET FORETS DE LA COURONNE

Avis est par la présente donné que le ministre des Ressources naturelles et de l'Energie a reçu une demande de concession à bail d'une parcelle de terre de la Couronne en vue de la construction d'un stand de tir.

Cette parcelle de terre est située à Allardville, comté de Gloucester, au sud de l'intersection des routes no 8 et no 360.

Toute personne désirant s'objecter à cette proposition peut le faire en envoyant un avis écrit au directeur de la Direction des terres de la Couronne, avant le 30 août, 1991.

Si aucune objection n'a été présentée à cette date, ou si les objections présentées ont été rejetées, le ministre des Ressources naturelles et de l'Energie pourra recommander au lieutenant-gouverneur en conseil l'approbation de la délivrance de la concession à bail aux fins susmentionnées, en vertu de l'article 23 de la Loi sur les terres et forêts de la Couronne, chapitre C-38.1 LRNB.

A sample of what's around for summer reading

Book Review

By VINCENT EGAN
Thomson News Service

Summertime: If the livin' is easy, the readin' should be easy, too.

Here are notes on a selection of this summer's new books — some easy, others more substantial:

--The Rituals of Dinner, by Margaret Visser (HarperCollins Publishers; 432 pages; $26.95). The author, a professor of classics at Toronto's York University, has made an avocation of the study of the culture, the customs and the history of dinner. Her earlier (and highly praised) book, Much Depends on Dinner, seemed to be the definitive work on the subject of eating together — but in The Rituals of Dinner, Dr. Visser uncovers layer after layer of fascinating information about table manners in different countries and at various epochs.

Interesting and amusing as her second book is, the author may have left the door open for a third volume: still untouched are dinner practices in Canada, for example, and in her native South Africa (how did the "brie" develop?) And the now-fading custom of dining and dancing would surely merit a few pages. "Food is the great necessity," Visser observes, and no one could remain uninterested in it for long.

--Mia: The Life of Mia Farrow, by Edward Z. Epstein and Joe Morella (Delacorte; 266 pages; $24). Maria de Lourdes Villiers Farrow was born in 1945 to prominent parents — the beautiful Hollywood actress Maureen O'Sullivan and director John Farrow, an Australian who saw combat service in the Canadian Navy (1939-41). Mia, as the couple's second child was nicknamed, found doors open to her in New York and Hollywood when, at 18, she embarked on an acting career.

Since then she has starred in a long list of major movies, and been through a not-so-short list of husbands and lovers. At 20, she married Frank Sinatra, then 49; by age 25, she was musician Andre Previn's lady; and 10 years later, it was Woody Allen's turn. Her biography isn't exactly "must" reading, but it is entertaining and eyebrow-raising.

--Waiting for Dizzy, by Gene Lees (Oxford University Press; 251 pages; $26.95). Here is an anthology of previously published essays by a Canadian-born author and lyricist about such greats of the jazz and swing worlds as trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie, violinist Joe Venuti, trombonist Spiegle Willcox, trumpeter-saxophonist-arranger Benny Carter, cornetist Bix Beiderbecke, arranger Bill Challis and many others — most of them as colorful as they are talented. Lees is knowledgeable and sympathetic, and has an easy rapport with musicians. Required reading for jazz buffs, and an ideal introduction for the uninitiated.

--Holy Faces, Secret Places, by Ian Wilson (Doubleday; 238 pages; illustrated; $33). A 50-year-old Englishman, Wilson has delved deeply into historical and religious mysteries involving representations of Christ, including the controversy over the famous shroud of Turin — the subject of Wilson's first book. Here, he relates what is known about the other "true" images of Christ, kept closely guarded in secret corners of churches and cathedrals in several countries bordering the Mediterranean.

--The Back of Beyond, by David Yeadon, (HarperCollins; 449 pages; $32.95). Yeadon, a profilic travel writer, has previously concentrated on such easily accessible destinations as New England and California. Here, he describes recent journeys to remote corners of 13 countries — from the Outer Hebrides to Inner Mongolia, from Venezuela's Gran Sabana to Spain's Gran Canaria island. Even when visiting such countries as Thailand, where tourism is a major industry, the author displays a gift for finding adventure and new friends, far from the beaten path, and for reporting his findings in a highly readable style.

Trash reduction options are many for municipalities

By GIL HARDY
Ottawa Bureau

Communities overwhelmed by mountains of garbage can turn to a collection of recycled success stories published by the federal government.

The National Waste Reduction Handbook offers an overview of trash reduction options available to municipalities both big and small. Issued by the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy, the 40-page guide emphasizes the growing importance of waste reduction at the municipal level.

"While important new policies will likely be enacted at the national and provincial level, a large share will be local," the handbook says. "Municipal decision-makers will ba called upon to develop new local waste management strategies that help divert large quantities of waste from local or regional landfills."

The publication includes examples from cities and towns across Canada that have adopted various methods of reducing waste.

In 1988, senior governments set a target of a 50-per0cent reduction in the disposal of solid wastes by the year 2000. And just this week, environmental groups criticized them for the snail-like pace in setting regulations to reduce packaging waste.

Despite the lack of progress on a larger scale, the round table is pushing soouce reduction and recycling as the best options for municipalities. Source reduction — trimming the amount of material produced in the first place — is considered the comer now that recycling programs have taken hold.

Kai Millyard, policy director of the environmental group Friends of the Earth, says there is "no question that not creating it in the first place is the best solution, obviously." But he questions the need for another handbook on waste reduction.

"Everybody else has been doing this for two or three years now, there are lots of documents like this," Millyard says. "There are consulting groups that do this and various guides and manuals."

But round table spokesman Dan Donovan says a 2,500-copy mailing to municipalities, companies and others has brought "excellent feedback." Another 1,000 copies have been printed to fill requests and a further 8,000 in a smaller format are planned.

"Municipalities are saying "this is an excellent working document on the various options of waste managemen. can you send us more copies," Donovan says. "What we're finding is that while some communities are ahead, there are basically lots of problems at both large and small communities."

Municipal governments are grappling with declining landfill capacity, rising garbage collection costs and growing public awareness of environmental problems. Waste management sites are becoming regionalized, with better economies of scale to support local recycling, the handbook says.

"All of these trends are converging at the local level, where municipalities are taking action by designing and implementing source reduction and recycling programs."

To help small-town Canada cope with these trends, the handbook offers broad guidelines to developing local programs. Municipal governments can use education and technical assistance, tax credits and surtaxes or loans and grants to encourage business and the public to cut the flow of garbage.

PUBLIC MONEY

But Millyard doubts the effectiveness of tax or loan policies enacted at the local level. he also has qualms about giving profitable firms public money to reduce packaging.

"It's ridiculous that the kind of policy should have to be introduced a zillion times at every municipality all over the country," he says.

Taxes intended to reduce waste should be applied broadly by provincial or federal governments, "when it's a generic thing where everybody benefits." Millyard says it's unlikely a major corporation is going to be influenced by "a single town council."

A waste reduction program is entering its second phase in the County of Essex in southwestern Ontario. With $63,000 in county funding and three corporate sponsors, the first phase explained the basic concept of waste reduction through billboards and ads on TV, radio and in newspapers.

Phase two, now under way, will provide specific examples of the source reduction activities that residents can undertake themselves.

The handbook includes other success stories such as a voluntary, non-deposit buy-back system for soft drink containers in Manitoba and the small Quebec town of Notre-Dame-des-Prairies that has begun a Blue Bag curbside recycling program.

On dividend reinvestment plans

Money Talk
By GARY LeROUX
Chartered Financial Planner

Dividend reinvestment plans are relatively new on the Canadian financial scene, but they're increasingly popular and worth looking into, especially for smaller investors. Upwards of 100 corporations now offer the plans in various forms and the number is growing.

Essentially, reinvestment plans enable you to roll over dividends from your shares in a corporation, to buy additional shares at a lower net cost than if you bought them in the normal way through a broker.

In many cases, there are no commission charges to pay and some corporations actually offer existing shareholders a discount on new shares purchased with dividend proceeds. Some also permit you to buy additional shares at a similar discount (often 95 per cent of current market price), all without commission.

The plans can be particularly useful to smaller scale investors, whose commission charges are proportionately high. They also provide a valuable element of "forced savings," because if you don't actually hold a dividend cheque in your hand, you don't have the opportunity to spend the money right away. One drawback, however is that you lose control as to exactly when you buy additional shares, although this is less likely to be of concern to small investors.

Can you shelter additional shares in your RRSP? The regulations say you can, although some brokers tend to discourage the practice because of the amount of unproductive paperwork involved for them. So it makes sense to determine your broker's policy in advance.

The Toronto Stock Exchange has a brochure to explain how dividend reinvestment plans work and which corporations offer them. The brochure is available at Exchange Tower, 2 First Canadian Place, Toronto, Ontario, M5X 1J2.

NEW SLATE FOR REGIONAL BOARD

Regional Board VI of the Mental Health Commission of New Brunswick, now entering its second year, has recently elected a new executive. A number of projects are under way, including a study of mental health services needs in the Bathurst area and on the Acadian Peninsula, said a release. The Board has consulted with professionals in the community about the establishment of a regional development plan for mental health services. Furthermore, in accordance with the statement made Health and Community Services Minister Ray Frenette in April, the Board will be setting up a 24-hour hot line service for psychiatric crisis intervention this year. The new executive is comprised of, front from left, Dr. Gilbert Dru, director, Chaleur Psychiatric Unit; Jeanne-Mance Chiasson; Merèle DeGrâce, chairman; Angélina Cool; Jean-Jacques Losier, director, Bathurst Community Mental Health Services; Colette Robichaud, director, Acadian Peninsula Community Mental Health Services. Back: Paul Arseneau, treasurer; Léa Chamberlain-Thériault; Robert Kenny, secretary; Edith Tribe, vice-chairperson; Father Arthur Gauvin; and Brigitte Sivret. Missing from photo are Antoinette Brideau and Richard Savoie.

Funds for airport and DBRC are announced

A total of $1,137,533 in federal funding has been awarded to the riding of Acadie-Bathurst, allowing 166 unemployed workers to retain their work skills.

These projects, announced in a release by federal Employment and Immigration Minister Bernard Valcourt, will permit 19 communities or organizations to create jobs.

The City of Bathurst will receive $73,660 to complete ongoing community projects, and create eight jobs.

The St. Anne Regional Fire Department will receive $73,480 to build a fire station in North Tetea-gouche. This project will create eight jobs.

The St. Rose Recreation Association will receive $97,640 to complete phase two of the St. Rose Community Centre, creating 10 jobs.

The St. Isidore Recreation Centre will receive $78,640 to construct an extension of the St. Isidore arena, creating 10 jobs.

The Bathurst Airport Commission will receive $51,728 to complete work on the landscape and build a fence around the Airport. This project will create seven jobs.

The Downtown Bathurst Revitalization Corporation will receive $131,379 to conunue the revitalization of the downtown core. This will provide 20 jobs to the area.

Section 25 (formerly section 38) of the UI Act allows businesses and organizations to undertake projects of benefit to the community, while helping unemployed workers use and maintain their skills while receiving unemployment insurance.

The skills the participants receive and practice will benefit workers and help in the growth of the communities as well, said the release.

Realtor group says RRSPs could help homebuyers

Affordable housing continues to be a prime concern for the New Brunswick Real Estate Association.

That was the word from president Gerard Daly of Fredericton, following the Association's quarterly meeting in Bathurst last week.

The NBREA has a proposal involving Registered Retirement Saving Plans, that would help first-time homebuyers, Mr. Daly said in a telephone interview.

"Most people can't afford to contribute money to an RRSP and buy a home," he said.

The NBREA is proposing the government amend the tax law, to allow first-time homebuyers to use monies from an RRSP as equity in purchasing a house.

Mr. Daly said the NBREA has been lobbying for such a change to the tax law for a few years, through its affiliation with the Canadian Real Estate Association.

However, he indicated there are signs the new federal finance minister, Dan Mazankowski, "is wavering to the idea."

Mr. Mazankowski took over the finance minister's job from Michael Wilson in a cabinet shuffle this past winter.

Mr. Daly said 15 directors attended last week's quarterly meeting here, the first time the group has met in Bathurst "in about a year."

The next meeting is in Sussex in September.

SCHOLARSHIP

Krista Pettigrew has been awarded three scholarships, totalling $2,100. A 1991 graduate of Bathurst High School, she has received a Harper J. Kent scholarship, valued at $1,000; a John and Elizabeth Miller scholarship, also $1,000; and a $100 scholarship from the Ladies Auxiliary of the Herman J. Good V.C. Branch No. 18 Royal Canadian Legion. Miss Pettigrew plans to attend Dalhousie University in Halifax in the fall, to study towards a bachelor of science degree. She is the daughter of Gerald and Donna Pettigrew of Rough Waters Drive.

Sisters lead province to Atlantic hoop crown

Two local girls figured prominently in New Brunswick's victory this weekend at the Atlantic Midget Girls Basketball Championship.

And it was made all the more sweeter by the fact that the victory was against a team both had failed to make the year before, and that feeling was described in one word.

"Excellent," replied Velma Cann, 15, who, along with her sister Virginia, 14, were key ingredients in the weekend's championship run at Fredericton High School.

Velma (left) and Virginia Cann of Bathurst contributed greatly this past weekend in helping New Brunswick claim the Eastern Canadian Midget Girls Basketball Championship in Fredericton. Velma, 15, was one of the top scorers in the final game against Nova Scotia, while Virginia, 14, was selected to the tournament's first all-star team. They are the daughters of Don and Margaret-Ann Cann.

Velma scored 10 points in the final game against Nova Scotia to lead her team to a 61-48 triumph, while sister Virginia was chosen to the tournament's first all-star team.

Team New Brunswick defeated Newfoundland, 106-48; Prince Edward Island, 69-63; and Nova Scotia in the preliminary phase of the tournament.

The girls are the daughters of Don and Margaret-Ann Cann of Bathurst, who only recently moved here from Cape Breton, Nova Scotia.

Velma recounted how both her and her sister tried out for the Nova Scotia team last year, and both failed to make the grade, along with about four or five of their close friends. This year, however, both the Cann sisters and all their friends from their former neighborhood made their respective teams, which made the victory all the more satisfying.

"It's funny, at the end of the (final) game they were fouling us left and right, and that's when we got a lot of points," she said, adding that the fouling was all part of the game and was taken in stride by all concerned.

"We had a ball."

Callaghan rink, Whalen Keddie to enter shrine

The Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame will swell to 19 inductees this fall, when the seventh annual induction ceremonies get underway at Keddy's Hotel and Convention Centre.

Being honored as Builders this year are Lorne Whalen and James Keddie Sr., while the Callaghan curling rink will enter the shrine in the Team category.

The Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame selection committee went public with their selections Friday at city hall, during a press conference. The press release was read at the conference by chairman Jack O'Neil, while members of the selection committee present for the reading included Barb Huard, Marc Boudreau, Don MacLaggan and Joe Hachey.

The Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame is located on the top floor of city hall, and consists of a wall with portraits of all past inductees.

The induction ceremony is slated for Nov. 5 beginning at 7 p.m. at the Downtown hotel, where more than 200 people gathered for last year's event--the most ever. Tickets will go on sale in October.

LORNE WHALEN

He was the very best at basketball, baseball, rugby, and track and field.

His exploits are too numerous to list, however they are highlighted by his induction into the St. Francis Xavier University Hall of Fame and his selection as the greatest basketball player in the university's history during the first half of the 20th century. He was second in the balloting for the greatest all-around athlete during that same half-century.

He was captain of the university basketball, rugby, and track and field teams, as well as an all-star in the reknowned Cape Breton Baseball League.

His athletic prowess would be more than enough to recognize him for this honor, however his greatest accomplishments are in the teaching and coaching of young people over a 35-year career. Young people viewed him not only as a top-notch athlete but also as an excellent role model on whom they could pattern their lives.

He is being honored by the Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame for his years of concern and toil, for his never-ending dedication to the goals of his profession, and for his tireless efforts on behalf of the youth of this community.

CALLAGHAN RINK

A Bathurst Curling Club ladies rink skipped by Mrs. Joan Callaghan brought recognition and honors to Bathurst--as well as the entire province--26 and 27 years ago.

The Callaghan foursome--which included mate Mrs. W.B. Orser (Anne), second Mrs. A.E. Pilson (Shirley), and lead Mrs. J.F. Lenihan (Gerry)--won the provincial ladies curling championship in 1964 and 1965.

The back-to-back victories saw the team compete in the nationals at Edmonton, Alta. in 1964, and at Halifax, N.S. in 1965.

Mrs. Callaghan's first New Brunswick title, in her sixth year of curling experience, began when her rink ousted all home club competitors, took the Northeast Zones held that year in Bathurst, and then followed that up with the New Brunswick Silver D Championships held in Saint John.

The N.B. representatives posted a 4-5 won-lost record in Edmonton that first year at the nationals. It was noted that the British Columbia rink, Canada's championship winners with eight wins in nine outings, suffered its only loss at the hands of the Bathurst rink.

A Northeast Zone triumph in 1965 in Dalhousie, followed by winning the Silver D Provincial Championship in Bathurst, gave the Callaghan rink its second attempt at the 1965 nationals, this time held in Halifax.

Though there were several other Bathurst rinks winning provincial curling honors in the ladies division in other years, it wasn't until 1960 that the first national event took place. And that year, and for the following two years, New Brunswick Ladies Curling Championship titles were held by curling clubs in Moncton.

Lorne Whalen

The commendable achievements by the Bathurst club's representatives marks the four ladies as the fifth and sixth representatives in provincial and national ladies curling archives from Bathurst. A worthy honor, to be sure.

JAMES KEDDIE

His effort in maintaining and promoting the games he loved is unparalleled in the annals of sport in the Bathurst area.

Bowling as a participant for the past 62 years has not only made him a great competitor but has helped him promote the sport of bowling, serving as an organizer and builder of many bowling leagues and tournaments.

A great all-around athlete, James Keddie developed both girls and boys softball leagues in the city.

He was a very proficient dart player, who participated in and promoted the sport for many years.

He was a valuable member of the Bathurst Junior Papermakers who won the New Brunswick Junior Hockey Championship in 1933-34.

This amazing sportsman has another aspect to add to his achievements, in that he is an avid outdoor fish and game enthusiast. His game trophies may even outnumber his bowling, softball and dart trophies.

He is recognized and honored by the Bathurst Sports Hall of Fame for his dedication and love for the development of sport.

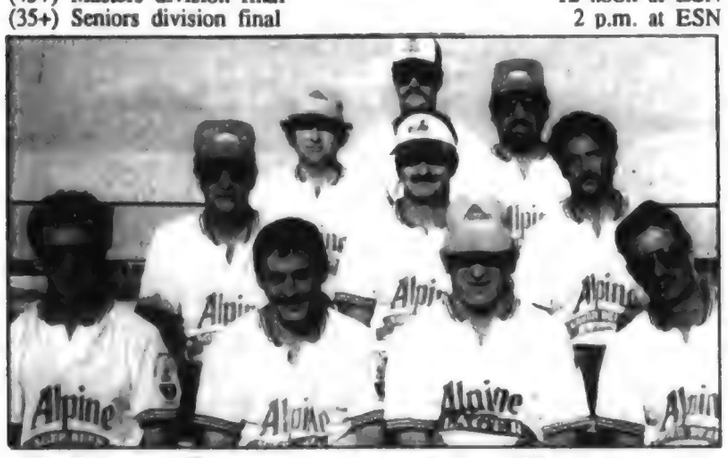
Legion softball teams converge on Bathurst

Bathurst is ready to host the Fourth Annual Eastern Canadian Legion Oldtimers Softball Invitational, with nine teams set to hit area fields this weekend.

The event will be staged at both the Ecole Secondaire Nepisiguit field and the Centennial Park field in Parkwood Heights, and is expected to attract more than 200 people to the area.

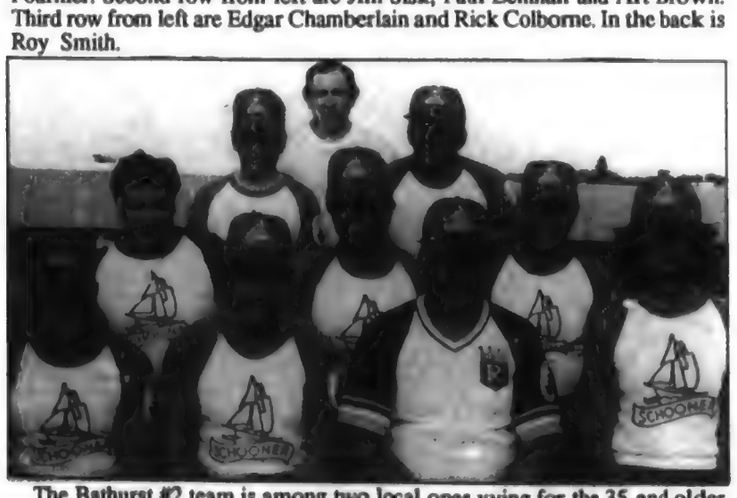
The tournament is sponsored by the Herman J. Good V.C. Branch No. 18 of the Royal Canadian Legion in Bathurst, and guests of honor will include the presidents of the Quebec and New Brunswick Provincial Commands.

Attending will be three teams from Phillipsburg, Que., two in the 35 and older Senior category and one in the 45 and older Masters division; three teams from Bathurst, two in the Senior ranks and one in the Masters; one Senior team from Summerside, P.E.I.; a Senior team from Shediac, N.B.; and one Masters entry from Kensington, P.E.I.



While the tournament itself runs from Friday to Sunday, the social aspect of the week commences tomorrow Thursday with tours of Brunswick Mines and the Stone-Consolidated Inc. pulp and paper mill, and a deep-sea fishing expedition in the Bay of Chaleur. A number of other social activities will be interspersed between games, including a breakfast Saturday morning at the legion, and a dance that night in the legion hall.

The closing banquet will take place Sunday at the Bathurst Marina, highlighted by a pig roast and dance, with entertainment provided by the Good Ol' Boys.



After all is said and done, more deep-sea fishing will take place Monday, July 29.

Off to Pan Am Games

Ken Frenette, 26, son of Bathurst natives Raymond and Laura (Hussey) Frenette, and nephew of Greg Frenette and Edgar Frenette, who both reside in the city, is the sole male marathon runner selected from throughout Canada.

Presently head track and field coach at Campbell University in North Carolina, the Belleville, Ont. native recently finished a marathon in a time of 2:25.45, far from his best mark of about two hours and 15 minutes, but good enough to make the national squad.

The young track and field star was in Bathurst earlier this month for a two-week visit, where he stayed with his uncle Edgar at his 680 King Ave. home.

It has come to my attention that world Heavyweight boxing champion Evander Holyfield has agreed to a Nov. 8 title bout against (Iron) Mike Tyson at Ceasar's Palace in Las Vegas.

If you read this column a few weeks back you'll recall how interested I was in knowing what tennis players earned at Wimbledon. Same here, except now that I do know it just makes me sick.

According to initial figures, Holyfield will get $30 million and Tyson $15 million, and that's not even counting the other fringe benefits these guys will most certainly receive before the bell tolls. I think Tyson's take will be at least $20 million by the time everything falls into place, and Holyfield will undoubtedly get less than $30 million, but pretty close to it.

The way I look at it, Tyson is the draw here, not Holyfield; but that's beside the point. Where is this going to end? I mean, $30 million is a ludicrous amount to be paid to a boxer--any boxer.

The recent fight between Donovan (Razor) Ruddock and Tyson clearly displayed a lack of enthusiasm by either fighter, something all too prevalent is other Heavyweight bouts as well. I think these fellows were so tired running around looking for investment opportunities that they forgot to train.

Anyway, getting back to my point. The money being paid out today is crazy, but I'm sure if we knew exactly how much the promoters were making we'd sing a different tune. Guys like Don King and "Dive" Duva are most certainly not hurting when it comes to making the mortgage payment at the end of the month, because if they were they wouldn't be dolling out these exorbitant amounts. They must be making close to what the fighters are making, and probably more.

What it comes down to is greed, which is probably why Holyfield has decided to give up his crown. Hey, $30 million is enough to retire on, which is most likely what Holyfield will do after this bout. He probably won't have much of a choice after Tyson gets through with him.

In Holyfield's mind, he probably figured that even if he avoided Tyson a few more times, he wouldn't even make $10 million. Why not get it over with, instead of going the safe route?

And getting it over with as quickly as possible is probably what Holyfield is thinking about. He could go down faster than Michael Spinks did, which was about a minute and a half into the fight.

But it'll be the most profitable minute and a half he's ever spent. A million bucks every three seconds is good money; doesn't matter how you go about earning it.

Bushpigs rock rugby's top team

Pig Press
By JOHN BUTLER
Bathurst Bushpigs Rugby Club

On July 13 the Bathurst Bushpigs descended on the capital city to take part in the Fredericton Loyalist Tournament. This was a continuation of the tournament schedule amongst New Brunswick Rugby Union teams, and followed the Bathurst Bushpigs Squeeler Cup the weekend before.

Elated by their success in their home tournament, the Bathurst team faced extremely strong competition from Oromocto, Woodstock, St. Stephen, a Loyalist team anxious to make up for their defeat by the Bushpigs in the Squeeler Cup, and two teams from the provincial champion Saint John Trojans.

In game one, the host team Loyalists fell 12-0 to the side from Oromocto.

Game two featured the Bushpigs against Woodstock. The Woodstock side was markedly stronger than that which had such misfortunes at the Squeeler Cup. They too had come with something to prove.

Early in the first half, the Bushpigs opened the scoring with a four-point try, which Jeff Bellen converted to increase the lead to six points. Woodstock attempted to come back with a three-point penalty kick, but failed to put it between the uprights.

The Bushpigs closed the half with a fine try by player-coach Derrick Snow, which Jeff Bellen lofted between the posts to make it 12-0.

Although the Woodstock team pressed hard into the Bathurst half, the Bushpigs defended well for most of the 20 minutes. Pressure, though, often brings its reward, and the Woodstock side reaped a fine try which was converted to cut the Bushpigs lead to a slim 12-6.

After what felt like a very long 20-minute half, the final whistle marked another tournament victory for the Bathurst squad.

Game three featured the Saint John Trojans "B" side against Oromocto. This was really fine rugby and was only decided by a Trojan penalty kick. The Trojans held on to hand Oromocto a 3-0 defeat.

Constant pressure marked game five with almost all of it being directed onto the St. Stephen side by the Loyalists. The result was a vindication of the host side as they ran up 17 points to St. Stephen's 3.

All of this set the scene for the undeniably best game of the tournament. The upstart Bathurst Bushpigs were squared off against the provincial champion team, the Saint John Trojans "A" side.

This was the most important match the Bathurst side had ever played. Teams less formidable than this have used the Bushpigs for virtual target practice in the past, a stepping stone to set up an interesting final.

Coach Snow and the team decided that the only way to play would be to keep the ball near the powerful Bathurst forwards, and away from the Trojan backfield.

In the first half, the Trojans pressed into the Bathurst end. The Bushpigs were having difficulty getting in good clearing kicks. Kicks to the touch-line must--most often--bounce before crossing the line. Too often the Bushpigs' kicks went straight, which brings the ball back to where the kick took place. Flatter trajectories ended up blocked, and in the hands of the dreaded Saint John backs.

It was about then that a simple fact became evident--the Trojan backs were not able to run through the Bushpigs. They tried, but the Bushpigs simply shut them down.

What really hurt was the experienced Trojans luring the Bushpigs into offside errors, which led to a penalty goal putting the Bathurst side in a 3-0 deficit.

The Bushpigs replied with a penalty of their own, but fell victim to yet another penalty to stand three points down in a 6-3 game. In the second half, the Bushpigs supporters, and that included a lot of Loyalist and Woodstock players, screamed themselves hoarse. The Bathurst Bushpigs owned the field: They literally camped on the Saint John 25-yard line and could not be evicted.

Marc Santerre was stripped of the ball within feet of the goal-line. The ball came out of the Trojan scrum on the far side from the referee, putting it in play, but when the Bathurst forward plunged for the line with it, it was called back for offside. Bathurst tried everything except a drop goal but could not get past the skilled and experienced Saint John side. It ended with the Trojans hanging on to a two-penalty to one-penalty advantage.

In all, it was a wonderful game for Bathurst--their best ever. The provincial champions were pinned in their end of the field and had to defend desperately. The Bushpig players were inconsolable--they knew they had field advantage and possession, but it did not pay off. Perhaps Derrick can produce a drop goal play.

Pins from Yellowknife make Wild Bill's day

On The Ropes
By "Wild" BILL HUDON

There is a fever going around these days, and its catching.

I could be wrong, but I say its pin collector's fever.

Just last week I got a phone call from Greg Mulock, The Northern Light's managing editor, who told me there was a package there for me and it was from Yellowknife, N.W.T. So I went to The Northern Light office to pick it up, opened it when I got home, and could not believe my eyes. So I said to the Mouse: "I got to go back to see Greg and show him what was in my package."

Yes, you are right, it was 15 beautiful pins. You will not belive this, but a lady from Yellowknife sent me these pins in care of the newspaper. Mr. Mulock also told me that my column was making a lot of noise these days. This lady also sent me a beautiful letter with the pins and, like I said, it just made my day.

Oh yes, I almost forgot, the lady's name is Mrs. Maryse Good, who left Bathurst in 1985. Her husband, Ralph, worked in Lounsbury's automotive parts department from 1978 to 1985. She also told me that her husband has a brother in Bathurst, George Good; a sister, Joyce Good; and also a friend, Roger D'Entremont, who also has a pin collection.

Who is this guy anyway? Have a good day Roger. Don't leave too many foot prints on my street.

Mrs. Maryse Good started to collect pins two years ago and the man at the top sent her seven pins so far. Like I said, I have some from the four corners of the world and, as you can see, more coming in all the time.

I will say like the guy at the office: "It's My Paper Too....". Get back to work Jimmy; you hung around home long enough.

Back to boxing next week.

Local mall again wins challenge

Bowling Update
By EDWARD CHAMBERLAIN

The local team was captained by Edward Chamberlain, and consisted of Marie Chamberlain, Rachelle Roy and Louis Comeau. They finished with a 104.2 team average.

High singles for the tournament were rolled by Edward Chamberlain, 134; and Terrey Chamberlain and Alleen Searle, each with a 120.

The next such tournament is scheduled for August.

The winners of Friday night's Moonlight Bowling promotion at Chaleur Family Lanes were Alma Couture, $10; Therese Lavigne, Junior Lavigne, Pat Duguay and Monique Arseneault, $5; Joanne Roy and Laurence Couture, six-pack of Coca Cola; and Therese Chabot, a Bowling Nut trophie and free entry in the fall draw.

On Saturday night Sharron Godin won a hat, and Stephane Godin won three free strings of bowling and a meal at Bistro de la Terrasse.

A reminder that the deadline to register for the Men's Money League at Chaleur Family Lanes is Aug. 11. Just come by Chaleur Family Lanes and sign up on the board.

Scoring high in minor ball

It's not football, but the scores could easily be construed as being assciated with the sport.

In actuality, it's Bathurst Minor Baseball Association results, where up to 43 runs were pushed across the plate in no less than two encounters, and double-digit scores abounded throughout the past week.

Offence was the name of the game in a Squirt division matchup July 18, when the Expert Fence Pirates edged Jim Walter's Yankees 23-20. Leading the Pirates' attack was Joel Albert, with a home run, a double and three runs scored. Ryan Wilbur led the Yankess with a home run and two runs scored.

The other 43-run game was also one amongst the Squirt division teams, this one a 33-10 victory for the Horizon Carpet Phillies over the Massé Hardwood Cubs on July 17. Jean-Michel Thériault stroked a home run and a double to pace the winning attack, while Chris McLean stroked a single and scored twice for the Cubs.

The West End Alignment Dodgers scored a 12-8 decision over the SGD Concrete A's in Squirt division play July 15, with Joshua Power leading the way with a double and one run scored. Philippe Bourque paced the A's with a double and a single.

A Beaver division game that same day had the White Sox beat the Twins by a score of 11-5, with Jason Taggart and Jean-Lou Roy teaming up for the mound victory. Marc Doucet and Scott Petrie were handed the loss.

Leading the winners with a single each were Steven Duguay, Marc-André Chamberlain, Bruno Doucet, Jean-Lou Roy and Quentin McGrath. David Couture was the top twins batter with a single.

The Giants hammered the Expos 23-11 in the first of two games played July 16, this one a Mosquito division contest. Jennifer Vienneau stroked a triple and a single to pace the winning attack, while Eric Denton hit a triple and a single, and provided fine defensive plays for the Expos.

The other game, a Beaver division matchup, saw the Blue Jays clip the Angels 9-6, with Kirk Doucet and Jamie Doucet combining for the win. Neil Daigle and Timothy Basque teamed up in defeat.

Brad Cavanaugh led the winners with a pair of singles, with Denis Theriault, Justin Kane, Kirk Doucet amd Marc-André Pinet adding a single each. Timothy Basque stroked a couple of singles, and René Mazerolle and David Bergeron a single each for the losing side.

The Twins edged the White Sox in the only Beaver division encounter played July 17, with Scott Petrie and Marc Doucet going the distance from the mound. Lloyd Lavigne and Jean-Lou Roy took the loss.

Leading the Twins' attack were Marc Doucet and Scott Petrie, with a pair of singles each; Raymond Boucher, with a triple; and Paul Clement, David Couture and Derek Gray, with a single apiece. Pacing the White Sox' attack were Jason Taggart, with a double and a single; Lloyd Lavigne, with two singles; and Greg Alain, with a double.

A Beaver division contest played July 18 saw the Blue Jays clip the Angels 6-4 behind the pitching of Jamie Doucet and Kirk Doucet. René Mazerolle was tagged with the loss.

Top hitters for the winning side were Justin Kane, with a pair of singles; Kevin Glazier, with a triple; and Marc-André Pinet and Kirk Doucet, with a single each. Replying for the Angels were Keith Landry and Neil Daigle, each with a double; and René Mazerolle, Todd Pitre and Scott Donnelly, with a single each.

The Cardinals edged the Indians 22-19 in the final game of the week, a Mosquito division encounter. Andy Brown was the top Cards' batter with two triples, a single and three runs scored, while the Indians' Jean-Francois Wait stroked a pair of doubles and a single and scored three times.

CLINCHS "CLINCH" FAMILY GOLF TOURNAMENT

The Clinch family won its third Bryan Keehn Memorial Trophy Sunday with five under par, nine-hole total of 31, edging the Jessop family on the first extra hole. The event was dubbed the Ninth Annual Bryan Keehn Memorial Family Scramble, held at Gowan Brae Golf and Country Club, in which 21 families from the Bathurst area took part. Shown from left are Bill Keehn, presenting the trophy on behalf of the Keehn family to Tracy, Robbie, Roger, Donna, and Jonathan Clinch. (Northern Light Photo)

Gowan Brae Ladies Club

Congratulations to Gowan Brae's Kerry Maher, who last week captured her second Provincial Junior Ladies Golf Championship in three years.

Kerry will also be a member of the New Brunswick Junior Ladies Team that will represent the province at the Atlantic Provinces Championship later this month, as well as at the national tournament in August.

Kerry won her title on her home course, which was host to the Junior Men's Championship as well. Close to 150 of the province's finest young golfers participated in the tournament, which was held last Monday and Tuesday under warm and sunny skies.

Many complimentary comments were made by the players, and the parents who accompanied them, about the excellent condition of the Gowan Brae course. In this dry, hot weather, members and guests alike certainly appreciate the full irrigation system, the only one in the province that keeps not only the greens and tees in lush condition but also the fairways.

Congratulations are also extended to Yannick Lang, who came in second in the Junior Men's Championship behind 15 year-old Jason Snow of Hampton. Yannick won a spot on the New Brunswick Junior Men's Team, placing first in the junior team trials following the final two rounds held this past weekend at the Edmundston Golf and Country Club.

In the men's team trials, Gowan Brae's Rick Coulombe, after six rounds, came in fourth with a 446 total, earning him a spot on the provincial team. Congratulations, Rick.

The Bryan Keehn Memorial Family Scramble was played this past Sunday at Gowan Brae. Following nine holes, the Jessop and Clinch families were tied. The Clinches grabbed the tournament trophy by winning on the first playoff hole.

The Gowan Brae ladies will be holding their July meeting next Monday, July 29, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

Brasserie O'St. Pierre clean up

Brasserie O'St. Pierre won three games and lost none during action this past week in the Parkwood Schooner-Pizza Delight Softball League.

Pat Murphy got things rolling in the right direction July 15, pitching his team to an 8-5 victory over Alan Furlotte and his Jim Walters teammates.

Brasserie O'St. Pierre then finished off the week the same way they started it, although this time with a pair of wins in a doubleheader July 18.

Murphy was again on the mound in a 10-8 win over the Uptown Club in the first game, with Michel Vienneau taking the loss. Jamie Melanson led the winners at the plate with a home run and a pair of singles.

Paul Aucoin took over mound duties from Murphy in the late game, a 7-6 win over the Right Spot Classics. Leslie Smith was tagged with the loss.

Jackie Roy led O'St. Pierre offensively with a home run, a double and a single, while Ed Theriault stroked a triple and a single to pace the Classics' attack.

In other league play, Jim Walters won by default over the Big D Blues in the first game July 16, while the Wild Goose Guzzlers edged the Uptown Club 7-6 in the late game.

Herbie Scott was the winning hurler in this one, with Michel Vienneau credited with the loss. Dan Ouellette stroked a double to lead all Guzzlers' batters, with Wayne Furlotte stroking a triple to pace the the Uptown Club's attack.

Christian Doiron was on the mound in Techno 90's 16-12 victory over the Right Spot Classics July 17, with Leslie Smith going down to defeat.

Jean Marc Finn poked three doubles to pace the winning attack, while Kevin Duguay lined a pair of triples to lead the Classics.

Softball tourney planned

The Third Annual Moosehead Softball Tournament will be held Aug. 16 to 18 in Bathurst.

Organizers are looking for 16 teams.

Entry fee will be $150 per team, with each team guaranteed three seven-inning games and Moosehead products before their first game.

The ball fields being used will be Centennial Park, South Bathurst, Bosca Buraglia, and E.S.N.

Money prizes will be awarded to the championship team and the runner-up, as well as the two semi-finalists.

For more information, please contact Greg MacDonald at 548-8524, Don MacLaggan at 548-3519, or Brian Chamberlain at 548-8326.

Ball teams play catch up to top two

The top two teams in the Fabrication of Plaques City Softball League were dormant this week, leaving the bottom four teams trying to gain some ground.

B.J. Furs and Penguin Club, with 13-1 and 11-2 won-lost records respectively, were not involved in any league games this week. Rounding out the league standings are Bistro, 7-7; Brasserie O'St. Pierre, 6-9; C&G Smith Trucking, 4-11; and the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters, 2-13.

The Firefighters won for only the second time this season July 15, an 11-5 win over C&G Smith Trucking.

Jean Claude Rioux was on the mound to collect the victory, with Bruce Smith taking the loss. Danny Boucher led the Firefighters with a pair of singles and a double, while Kevin Peters did likewise for C&G Smith Trucking, with a couple of singles.

Robbie Arseneau was on the mound for Bistro in the late game, an 8-7 victory over Marc-André Comeau and his Brasserie O'St. Pierre teammates.

The same pitchers duelled again the following night, with this game again ending in favor of Bistro by a score of 2-1.

C&G Smith Trucking avenged its earlier loss to the Bathurst Moosehead Dry Firefighters July 17, edging their opponents 5-4 behind Carl Smith's pitching prowess. Jean-Claude Rioux was handed the loss.

Kevin Peters was the top hitter for the winners, with a pair of doubles to his credit, while for the losing side it was Steve LeBreton, with a pair of singles.

After defeating an all-star team from the South Bathurst Alpine Softball League earlier this summer, the Parkwood Schooner-Pizza Delight Softball League did the same to a team from the Fabrication of Plaques City Softball League Sunday night.

Played at Bosca-Buraglia Field in East Bathurst, the Parkwood squad edged the home team 13-7. Glen Morrison was the winning pitcher in the contest, with Carl Smith the loser.

Mixed ball tourney set for Janeville

The New Bandon Mixed Softball Tournament will be held in Janeville Aug. 8 to 11, and organizers are looking for 16 teams to make up the field.

The event will cost $125 per team, with $500 going to the winning entry and $300 to the runner-up.

Rules stipulate that five women must be on the field at all times, and lob pitches are the norm.

For more information, or to register a team, contact either Peter Knowles at 548-9122 or Coleen Ellis at 546-2041.

NURSING REFRESHER PROGRAM

Congratulations to these nurses from the Bathurst, Campbellton and Newcastle areas, who successfully completed a modularized nursing refresher program. Graduates are: Janice Burh, Shirley Gallant, Mary Hachey, Muriel Hachey, Joan Kane, Mona Laforge, Raymonde LeBlanc, Kathryn McIver, Francine Powney, Wanda Preston and Dorilda Veniot. Liette Clément-Gallien was the assigned tutor of this group.

This program permits them to reintegrate the nursing practice after being absent for a period of time. It is available in both official languages. The theory portion is provided in a self-study mode allowing participants to progress in their home surroundings with the help of an assigned tutor. The clinical experience takes place in an accredited hospital near your area.

The Provincial Board of New Brunswick Diploma Schools of Nursing will be offering another program in October 1991. For more information, please communicate with:

Tight New Bandon race

Hornibrook Construction and G.N. Trucking are neck-and-neck heading into the stretch in the New Bandon Men's Softball League.

Both teams sit tied for first place with identical 12-4 won-lost records, with only four games remaining in the 20-game regular season schedule.

Both teams hold a significant advantage over the remaining four teams in the Downshore league. Sealy Enterprises holds down third spot with a 7-8 slate, followed by Knowles Brothers, 6-8; Jay's Place, 4-10; and C.J. Sharks, 4-11.

Hornibrook Construction earned its first win of the week on July 15, a 22-12 decision over Knowles Brothers. Kirk Knowles was the winning hurler, with Kirby Daley handed the loss.

Knowles stroked a pair of doubles and a single, and Ryan Jagoe tagged a pair of triples, in leading the winners from the plate, while Vaughan Daley stroked a double to lead the losing side.

Benny Murphy was on the mound for G.N. Trucking when it defeated Sealy Enterprises 13-6 on July 17, with Blair Scott tagged with the loss.

Nathan Ellis had a fine offensive night to the benefit of G.N. Trucking, with a triple, double and two singles to his credit. Scott was the top hitter for Sealy Enterprises with a double and a single.

Jay's Place upset Hornibrook Construction July 19 by a 16-7 count, with Matthew Daley recording the win and Rick Ellis the loss.

Leading the winners from the batter's box were Charles Scott, with a grand slam home run, and Steve Martin, with a homer. Shawn Wiseman stroked a home run and a double to lead the losing side.

Jay's Place earned its second consecutive win July 21, edging the C.J. Sharks 14-13 in eight innings. Matthew Daley was again the winning pitcher, with the loss handed to Darrin Sullivan.

Leading Jay's attack was Dwayne Scott, with a home run, a triple and a double, while for the Sharks it was Donnie Scott, with a triple, a double and two singles.

The late game was a battle of the top teams, one which Hornibrook Construction won by a narrow 12-11 margin over G.N. Trucking. John Morrison earned the mound victory, with Peter Knowles tagged with the loss.

Stroking a double and a single each for the winners were Barclay Knowles and Ryan Jagoe, while Todd Scott did likewise for the losing offence.

Sylvie Morais

Black Belt level rises

A 1.-year-old martial artist from Bathurst has received her second-degree black belt.

Sylvie Morais, a member of the Bathurst Toe Kwon Do club, was tested for her belt July 3 by Master Won Kap Chung of Moncton, a sixth-degree black belt.

This difficult testing consisted of an oral examination about all the movements and information about tae kwon do. She had to perform several forms, kicking techniques, program sparring, and also numerous breaking techniques, to demonstrate power and speed in her kicks and punches.

She was also required to do several rounds of full contact sparring against men who were black belts.

Sylvie has been studying tae kwon do, the Korean form of karate, since Sept., 1987. On Nov. 5, 1989 she received her first-degree black belt.

Sylvie graduated from Bathurst High School in June, and will attend college in Chatham this fall, to study correctional techniques. She hopes to join the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in the future.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michel Morais of Bathurst.

YOU MAKE THE CALL

No one's perfect, proof being in this shot taken by local amateur photographer Haines Scott. The shot is of a recent South Bathurst Alpine Softball League game between ATS Convenience and Pitcher's Pub and Eatery, and shows the umpire calling an ATS player out at home when the ball is clearly laying on the ground near the catcher's feet. The call was appealed, but to no avail.

Of unknown origin

VON In The 90's

By VERONICA RATCHFORD
Executive Director
of the Bathurst VON

What is fibromyalgia?

It is a musculoskeletal condition of unknown origin, most common in women between the ages of 35 and 60.

The symptoms include generalized aching, pain or stiffness that lasts longer than three months; tenderness at characteristic locations; sleep problems; chronic fatique; tension headaches; diffuse numbness and irritable bowel syndrome. These symptoms may be aggravated by cold weather, humidity, anxiety and stress.

These patients are usually looked after in a Rheumalotogy Clinic. Some need psychological counselling because they are depressed or have high anxiety and stress levels. Ninety per cent of the patients report sleep problems. They must be informed that this condition is benign.

Treatment: most physicians prescribe Elovil at bedtime to help restore sleep. Patients are advised not to take naps during the day and not to drink liquids two hours before bedtime.

Warm baths, gentle massage and supervised fitness exercise helps in the management of fibromyalgia. Patients are advised to eat well balanced meals three times a day with plenty of water, fruits, vegetables and fiber.

Therefore, the physician, nurses, and family members help these patients to minimize the pain and regain control over their own lives.

VON's new slogan is Caring for Life; therefore, if you need professional support or asistance, please call the office of the Bathurst branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses at 548-2448.

Making a sculpture from a mold for fun

Art Talk

With Bathurst artist JEAN-FRANCES

Let's look at sculpture.

Today we'll make a sculpture from a mold. Materials required: sand, plaster of paris, water.

Sculpture can be made in different ways, and take three-dimensional form in a free-standing object. Or it may be a two-dimensional relief attached to a wall.

It may be carved, often from wood or stome; built up with layers of soft material that hardens, such as clay or paper maché; or it may be created from a mold, which can be created by the artist or pre-existing. such as the rubber molds often used with plaster of paris.

Often a mold is created by an artist to fill with liquid material, which hardens and then the mold is removed. A mold may be used over and over again, or used just once and destroyed.

Let's take a walk to the beach and look at molds made from sand. When children fill a bucket with damp sand and then turn it out to create a form, the pail is acting as a mold form the sand.

To create a sculpture by using a sand mold, dig a shape in the sand the reverse of what you want in your sculpture. Start with small shapes to experiment. Fill your mold with plaster of paris, wait for it to harden and remove. Voila!

Wax may also be used in a sand mold. Candles have been made using this method of making molds. Animal prints can also be obtained by using plaster of paris and damp sand.

Violent robber is sought

Crime Stoppers

On April 30 of this year, Jean Guy Roy reported that while on his way to Pointe Verte, at about 9 a.m., he was flagged down on the entrance ramp by a male who appeared to have car problems.

Mr. Roy left his vehicle to see what was going on. The male asked if Mr. Roy had a jack, and Mr. Roy proceeded to the back of his vehicle. As he was opening the trunk, the male approched and hit him over the head.

When the victim came to, his wallet and all his money was missing. He found his wallet near his vehicle. All the money was gone: six $100 bills and one $50 bill in his wallet, and between $64 and $66 dollars in his pockets.

The suspect is described as 5' 7". to 5'9", 170 lbs., brown hair. full beard (lighter brown than his hair), wearing blue jeans and and a light colored shirt.

He was driving a small gray vehicle, the make and plate number unknown.

Any individual(s) with information regarding this crime or any other offences, please call Crime Stoppers and you may qualify for a cash award.

The number is 1-800-222-8477.

JUBILEE CAKE

Pet of the Week

Although you can't tell from this black and white photograph, I have the most beautiful blue eyes you'll ever see in a cat, and I also have a purrfect coat; beige body and grey ears, paws and tail.

I'm not your ordinary tom cat either. I'm part blue point siamese and part Himalayan, and only four months old, so you have all the time in the world to train me to be the most precious pet you've ever owned.

I also love kids, especially when they scratch my tummy and let me sleep on their bed. The only problem with sleeping on their beds is that I like playing with toes the most.

Chalmers family reunion held

Over The Back Fence

By ELEANOR A. SCOTT
Call 548-5680 after 6 p.m.

Descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Chalmers returned earlier this month for a family reunion.

Here for the occasion were their sons Ken and Gordon J. Chalmers and daughters Mrs. Edith Fletcher and Mrs. Margaret Howard and their families. They came from all parts of Canada Knoxville, Tenn., St. Agustine and other parts of Florida.

The festivities included a beach party with fireworks, a family dinner and family church attendance.

At the church service three great-grandchildren, Claudia, Haley and Olivia Lutes, were christened in the church their father attended as a child. Two of the three children were born in Hong Kong. Their father Ralph and mother Martha are now residing in Vancouver.

Ralph's brother Ian and sister Diane and their families also attended the reunion. Their mother, the late Mrs. Eric (Jean) Lutes, was also a daughter of the Chalmers.

Sidney (Snooker) Jarratt, Red Deer, Alta., and his brother David Jarratt, Calgary, Alta., are presently in Bathurst visiting their parents Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Jarrett. They will be here for two weeks and invite friends for a visit while they are here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Johnston, their daughter Jillian and son Evan, Hope, B.C. are visiting her parents Fred and Edrie Hornibrook and family.

Terry and Jolene Lizotte and son Nicolas and daughter Julia, Timmins, Ont., are visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Norman Doucet, Bathurst.

Hugh and Peggy Pryce-Jones have returned to their home in St. Thomas, Ont. following a visit with her daughter Leslie Childs, her husband Ed and children Jason and Vanessa

The highlight of the visit was a visit to the Baroque Music Festival at Lameque. They look forward to a return visit to the festival again next year.

Apparently the Art Gallery in Pokemouche is becoming quite a tourist attraction with visitors from many parts of Canada, Georgia, North Carolina, Tenn., New York and Maine.

Friday, June 7 Donald McGraw, local artist, appeared on the television program Eye on Ottawa. The interview, based on an environmental theme of wildlife preservation, showed many of his original and limited edition paintings.

Donald, who is negotiating with one of the larger galleries in Ottawa to handle his limited editions exclusively, held a private exhibit at the home of Mrs. Gisele O'Conner, Rockcliffe Park. The select guest list was comprised of many ex-Martimers.

As a result of the television program, many people drove from Montreal to attend an open exhibit at Easy Frame on Bank Street.

BACK FROM FLORIDA

Claudia McCarthy and her granddaughter Janie Lynn McCarthy have recently returned from a two-week visit in Florida. They travelled with Mrs. Gordon McCarthy (Nancy) who was in Bathurst from Ormond Beach, Fla. with her granddaughter Lauren Hopson, visiting relatives.

After visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCarthy returned home via Montreal where they spent a few days visiting relatives. They returned to Bathurst by car with Mrs. McCarthy's sister Lucy Anne, who is visiting relatives in the area as well as in Inkerman and Moncton.

Ms. Susan Fortune, accompanied by Mr. Loftus Benjamin, Fredericton, recently attended the wedding of Susan's niece Karen Hebert to David Swol, held in St. Catherine's, Ont. on July 6.

They also visited Niagara Falls, Montreal and Quebec City.

WED 50 YEARS

On July 12, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Haché of Petit Rocher celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

More than 200 friends and relatives gathered to celebrate the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Haché are former owners of Motel and Camping Haché of Nigadoo.

Lt. Jeffrey D. Bujold

MILITARY GRADUATE

Conferring of a degree in electrical engineering and the commission of Second Lieutenant from the Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, Ont. to Jeffrey D. Bujold took place on May 17, 1991.

Address to convocation was given by Ray Hnatyshyn, Governor General of Canada. Lt. Bujold is a 1985 honors graduate of Bathurst High School. He studied three years at the College Militaire Royale de St. Jean, Que. before completing his final years at RMC, Kingston.

Lt. Bujold is temporarily posted at Canadian Forces Base Shearwater for practical phase training. In September, he will undergo further training at Canadian Forces School of Aerospace Technology and Engineering in Borden, Ont.

He is the son of Mrs. Anne Bujold and the late J. Roger Bujold.

Skit set for beach promotes safety

To help promote safe boating habits, the Canadian Red Cross has put together a theatre group which will be travelling to summer events throughout the province.

A skit will be presented near the lifeguard station at Youghal beach at 1 p.m. next Wednesday, July 31, said a release.

The skits introduce you to an absent-minded father who wants to spend quality time with his daughter by taking her on a canoe trip. This simple task is complicated by Dad's unpreparedness, and brings them to meet the owner of a sporting goods store, whose main concern is to unload a huge amount of lifejackets at an incredibly low price.

You will also meet Grandpa, a sea captain suffering from the inquisitiveness of his granddaughter who is curious about his multiple injuries.

The goal of this summer project is to help the general public and avoid boaters become more aware of safe boating practice.

The humorous show focuses on two themes: the importance of wearing of a lifejacket or proper floatation device, and the issue of alcohol and boating.

Last year in New Brunswick a total of 19 accidental drownings occurred. Eleven of those were boating related and out of the 11, eight involved alcohol.

These numbers are frustrating considering the majority of these lives could have been saved with a little preparation and by applying safe habits, said the release.

Man is jailed

A Bathurst man arrested on the Village Bridge last week was sentenced to seven months in jail for assaulting a police officer and possession of stolen property.

Real Rousselle, 29, was arrested by members of the Bathurst City Police July 10. Police had received a complaint that Rousselle had been seen acting strangely.

Police found him on the bridge carrying a knife, and in possession of stolen property that included a stethoscope.

Rouselle was sentenced in provincial court July 18, to four months for assaulting a police officer, and to three months for possessing the stolen property.

Ninetieth year for Christ Church in Clifton observed

By CATHY WESTGATE
Special to The Northern Light

The 90th anniversary of the consecration of Christ Church, Clifton was celebrated July 18.

On July 18, 1901 Bishop Hollingsworth Tully Kingdon consecrated Christ Church to the glory of God. However, the Anglican missionary work began in the area in 1814. During the year 1825, the beginnings of a church building in Bathurst, stirred up the hearts and minds of the Downshore community.

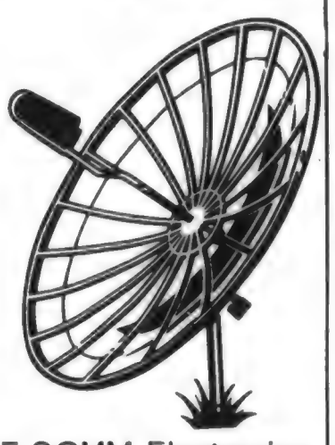
A Church was finally completed in 1841 on the north side of the present highway in the middle of Christ Church Cemetery, on land donated by William Knowles. That church, also called Christ Church, was consecrated in August 1843 by Bishop Inglis of Nova Scotia. In the late 1800's, work was begun on the present Christ Church.

After the consecration on July 18, 1901 the old Church was used for Sunday School until 1917 when it was torn down. The "new" Church has many interesting features. The "dimension shingles," scalloped on the bottom end were hand carved by Mrs. Gertie Ellis. The bell, for the church, was obtained from Reid's quarry (Stonehaven Wharf), and was the bell used at the quarry to signal the men to work.

The Bishop's chair and part of a railing near the pulpit were obtained from the first Christ Church.

The anniversary service on July 18 was a community celebration. The guest speaker at the service of evening prayer was the Reverend Thomas Facey-Crowther. He began by saing that truly the Church should be speaking and not him. Thus, he set the scene for a very interesting talk.

During 90 years in the community the Church witnessed many changes, many joys and sorrows, hard times and good times and yet the people remained faithful and took great care of the Church.



Following the service, a reception was held at Christ Church Hall. Thanks to Helen Chamberlain, a very interesting historical display with working demonstrations told those present about home, community and church life at the turn of the century. There were people,in period costume, demonstrating biscuit-making, knitting, crocheting, sewing, washing and workshop activities of 90 years ago.

Christ Church has been a part of the Clifton community and a place of worship for the Anglican community for 90 years. Indeed, a time to celebrate.

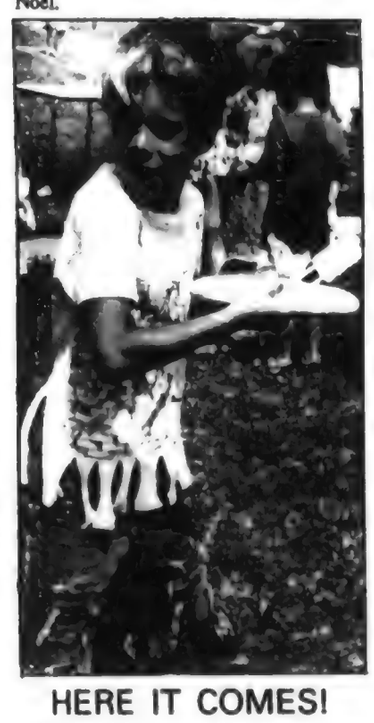
CLUB MEETINGS



Big River Happy Ages

The Big River Happy Ages Club celebrated Bathurst's 25th Silver Anniversary by inviting several clubs to its card party held at the Big River Hall, decorated with baloons and streamers for the occasion.

After welcoming all those in attendance, the president, Mrs. Opal Melanson, introduced Mrs. Florence Roussy, chairman of the Senior Silver Jubilee Committee, who thanked Mrs. Melanson and her committee for their part in the 25th anniversary celebrations. A cake was donated by the Silver Jubilee Committee as well as literature about other activities for seniors in 1991.

Cards were enjoyed by all. Winners were, in first place, Phyllis Paquet and Corinne Lavigne, both awarded two lawn chairs donated by Zellers Inc.; second place, Josie Power and Lorraine Power, winners of chocolates donated by Shoppers' Drug Mart of Chaleur Centre; and third place, Lila Doucet and Cecelia Glendenning, both receiving towels donated individuals. Many door prizes were also won, all donations made by Miti Mart, Chaleur Centre.

As well, throughout the afternoon, members enjoyed juice provided by McDonald's Family Restaurant. And of course, no Silver Jubilee celebration would be complete without hearing the tape of the anniversary song by Linda Noël.

HERE IT COMES!

Denis Lavigne was among about 100 children from the Upper Dawson Subdivision participating in Penny Circus Day, held at the community centre on Assaff Drive Saturday. The event was organized by the community's Tenants Association. Denis, 7, is the son of David and Fernande Lavigne of the Upper Dawson Subdivision.

Baby birds amusing

From my Window

A bird watcher's observations
By MARY GAUTHIER

Ron and I nearly drove over a baby blue jay. He was hopping across the raod and we stopped to watch him.

What a funny sight! His tail feathers had not grown in yet and he looked off balance. He was as big as his parents, minus a tail. The mother blue jay scolded us and flew over our heads, all the while calling to her young one. She encouraged him across the lawn up the steps, across the patio and into the safety of the hedge.

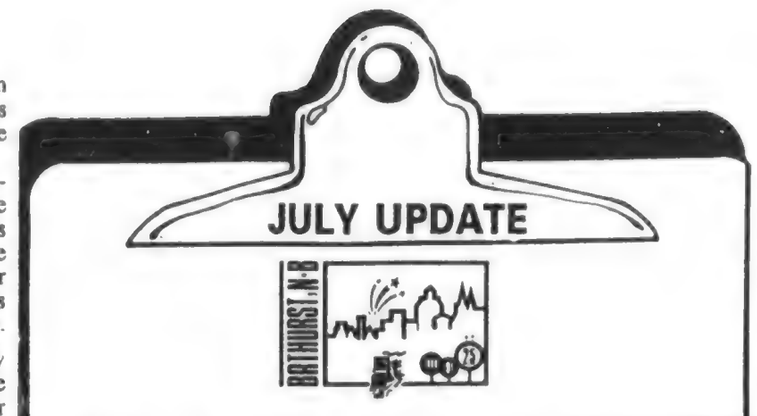
There are two young evening grosbeaks being fed by their fathers here in my yard. Again, they have no tails and are quite comical. I watched one take two minutes to shell a sunflower seed — rather slow compared to his dad, who can shell 30 to 40 a minute.

Mockingbirds have successfully nested at Susan Kierstead's. We watched mom and dad feeding their young. As far as our records show, this a a first for our area.

Broadcasting festival Aug. 2

During the Festival les Villageois of Pointe Verte, Aug. 2 through 4, Radio Chaleur will be on the air.

This broadcast will give the population of the Chaleur Region a sample of their future community radio station, CKUI-FM stereo, said a release.



CKUI-FM will cover the various activities of the festival as well as reporting news, weather, sports, and community affairs. On top of this CKUI will provide musical entertainment.

CKUI will be located on the frequency of 99.9 FM stereo and will operate by the means of mobile radio station.

The public is invited to visit the temporary studio between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. nightly during the festival.

Ms. Chamberlain was recently elected to the National Council of Girl Guides, said a release.

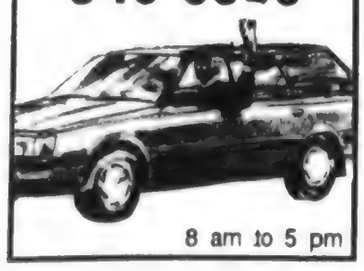
Gloucester Gourmet

This week's gourmet is Bryanna White, who will be entering her second year of music studies at Mount Allison University this fall.

Bryanna is better known as the driver of the Phantom Tourist Tracker for the city's Parks, Recreation and Tourism Department.

As such, she welcomes tourists to the area on a daily basis, ensuring a lasting impression of the Home of the Phantom Ship and its renowned hospitality.

Equally welcoming is, and sure to be a hit at your next dinner party, is this tasty dessert.



LEMON DELIGHT
2 cups flour
¾ cup white sugar
1 tsp baking powder
1 tsp salt
1 cup coconut
1 cup butter or margarine
1 pkg lemon pie filling

Mix all ingredients except filling, and form into a crumbly mixture. Divide into two equal parts; spread half of mixture into a 9x3-inch pan.

Cook lemon pie filling as per directions, and pour over base mixture. Spread remaining mixture over filling. Bake at 350 degrees until brown (about 35-40 minutes).

Every month, a draw will be held, with one of our Gloucester Gourmets for that month winning a cake from Jamieson's Save-Easy in the Place Bathurst Mall. To enter, simply submit a recipe along with your name and telephone number and The Northern Light will make arrangements to get you into the Gloucester Gourmet column for your chance to win!

Fighting noise with noise

NC) -- At Lotus Engineering in Britain, researchers are learning to "fight fire with fire." Or, more accurately, they're fighting automobile noise with noise -- well, actually anti-noise.

Group Lotus, which is owned by General Motors, has come up with a way to quiet -- if not silence -- the interior noise in cars produced by amplified engine vibration.

The new technology uses microchips and microphones to monitor unwanted interior noise and reproduce an "acoustic mirror image" of the sound. The anti-noise signal is then sent out through the car's stereo sound system.

While this system effectively dampens unwanted noise, the signal itself is inaudible, and does not interfere with music being played on the stereo system.

The concept itself, however, is hardly new. It's been around since the mid-1930s. What is new is the applied use of specialized computer chips, called digital signal processors, that make it possible for Lotus to develop a lightweight noise-muffling gear that would only add several hundred dollars to a car's price.

Group Lotus officials in England say it will begin to produce the system commercially within the next several years, with selected GM passenger cars to receive the new anti-noise system.

Aiding motorists

(NC)--For senior citizens, driving can be a demanding chore which presents some special problems. But, says General Motors engineer Anthony Yanik, emerging technologies, "may further enhance the driving capabilities of older adults."

Speaking at a recent Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) convention, Yanik cited features, already appearing on automobiles such as the 1991 Chevrolet Caprice, that help counteract older motorists' declining vision. Electrochromic rearview minors, for instance, automatically compensate for glare. "Sensitivity to glare increases with age," he said, "usually after we begin wearing eyeglasses."

"Reading vehicle displays is often a problem or older adults who wear bifocals," he added. Head-up displays can help by projecting the images of important dashboard information so they can be seen through the upper bifocal lens.

Other devices, such as remote-entry systems, tire-pressure sensors and heated windshields are also becoming available to make things more convenient for elderly drivers.

Yanik noted that technologies still under development include obstacle-detection sensors and infrared systems designed to improve night vision of older drivers. "It's important," he concluded, "that engineers and designers keep drivers over the age of 50 in mind when considering the potential benefit of a new technology."

FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE FLEXIBILITY -- The Multi-Mode four-wheel drive system in the 1991 Mazda MPV 4WD makes it easier to get to that favorite fishing spot, ski area or cabin in the woods. The sleek styling, spacious interior and car-like comfort of the 4WD MPV provide an alternative to conventional, truck-like four-wheel drive vehicles.

REFINED OFF-ROADER —— Mazda's 1991 B2600i 4x4 features a new Mazda designed 12-valve, fuel-injected 2.6 liter engine that uses dual counter-rotating balance shafts for improved smoothness. This engine delivers 121 brake horsepower and 149 foot-pounds of hill-climbing torque. Automatic locking hubs wit remote free wheel system is now standard on all B2600i 4x4 models eliminating the need to get out of the cab to lock or unlock the front hubs.

THE AWARD WINNERS FROM MAZDA

Underscoring Mazda's successful approach to engineering, Mazda vehicles have received an unprecedent number of awards and accolades during the past year.

Kansei engineering is Mazda's product development philosophy, which holds that every car and truck Mazda makes should provide strong emotional satisfaction to its driver. This direction has produced both better vehicles and the resulting record breaking sales increases for Mazda Canada.

Mazda's Miata, the lightweight affordable sports car has garnered many awards:

MPV, the number one selling Import van, has also received numerous awards, including the following:

CAR & DRIVER ... The "best buy in its class", CAR DRIVER ... One of the "ten best for 1990", MOTOR TREND ... one of the "top ten import vehicle buys for 1991", POPULAR MECHANICS ... named "best mini van", CONSUMER'S DIGEST ... named a "best buy", MOTORWEEK MAGAZINE ... the driver's choice award for "best minivan", Ajac ... named "best vehicle in its class" for 1990, J.D. Rower & Assoc. ... "Most trouble-free minivan" in initial quality survey.

Both the 323 Hatchback and Protege continue as smart buys for the nineties with the following accolades:

MOTORWEEK MAGAZINE ... The drivers choice award for "best small car", MOTOR TREND ... The "best econocar for 1991", MOTOR TREND ... Protege in "top ten import car buys", USA Today ... one of the "12 best car values under $12,000", AUTO BILD ... "Golden steering wheel award", CAR AUSTRALIA ... "best small car for 1990".

Mazda's B-Series Trucks, the number one selling Import Trucks have been ranked highly for years:

J.D. POWERS & ASSOC. ... "number 1 in light-duty truck customer satisfaction index", three times in the last 4 years. J.D. POWERS & ASSOC. ... named "most trouble-free" in the initial quality survey in the last 2 years.

During the past year, every vehicle Mazda produced, from the 323 to the 929 to the Trucks, has won at least one major award. The award winners have combined to produce 4 record-breaking sales years for Mazda Canada and bode well for the nineties.

BATHURST INTERNATIONAL
BERESFORD
Ph.: 548-4515

The Ford commitment to quality and continuous improvement means that even our most successful models must continue to evolve. As new technologies and innovations appear, they must be made available to our customers as soon as possible. That's the way we keep going forward. That's "customer driven."

The 1992 Crown Victoria is a striking example of what this philosophy produces. It's sleeker, with the unmistakable mark of Ford design leadership. The 6-passenger interior is still luxurious, still inviting and still stretch-out comfortable. In fact, it's even roomier than it was before. And the space for luggage is unequaled in Crown Victoria's class.

The new 4.6 litre overhead cam V-8 is both more powerful and more efficient than the engine it replaces, a delightfully beneficial combination made possible by advanced technology.

But perhaps the biggest difference involves the way Crown Victoria reacts on the road. The ride is firmer. Still very comfortable and still very smooth. But firmer. The handling is more precise, more responsive. The sense of control is more pronounced. Speed-sensitive variable-assist power steering and four-wheel power disc brakes enhance performance. The optional anti-lock brakes include a sophisticated new electronic Traction Assist system which helps the driver negotiate slippery road surfaces. And for extra protection, a driver's side air bag supplemental restraint system is standard equipment.

The tremendous success of Crown Victoria over the years is indeed a great source of pride at Ford. Knowing this Crown Victoria could very well redefine the full-size sedan is another.

The 4.6L is a powerful and efficient V-8, the most advanced engine in Crown Victoria's class.

Engineered for capability and control as well as comfort.

The traditional benefits of the full-size car (room, comfort and riding smoothness) are just as desirable as they've always been. The challenge for this Crown Victoria was to retain these benefits and at the same time make advancements in performance through skillful engineering and advanced technology.

The extent to which this challenge has been met can be dramatically demonstrated on the road. The comfort and smoothness are undeniably there.

But for those who appreciate the sense of command and confidence that more deliberate suspension and steering systems provide, this Crown Victoria offers a new level of performance for a full-size car. Its suspension has been redesigned, redeveloped and fitted with new front and rear stabilizer bars to effect handling that's more precise and controlled while retaining a smooth and comfortable ride.

In addition, the variable-assist power steering is electronically "speed sensitive." This speed-sensitive steering system delivers full power assist to facilitate low-speed manoeuvering and progressively decreases its power assist for a better feel of the road at cruising speeds.

More power with better efficiency is what today's engineering is all about. Crown Victoria's new 4.6 litre V-8 overhead cam engine incorporte a number of significant design elements that enhance performance as well as efficiency.

An overhead cam design and advanced engineering enable the 4.6 litre to get over 25% more horsepower than its predecessor—190 H.P. at 4,200 rpm. Yet it's designed for better fuel efficiency, thanks to fast-burn combustion chambers and a number of components that are designed to help reduce power-wasting friction.

Dual exhausts, included with the optional trailer towing package and handling package, help the engine develop an additional 20 horsepower. And since Crown Victoria can tow up to 2,268 kgs (5,000 pounds) with the optional trailer towing package, the extra power can be put to good use indeed.

The 4.6 litre V8 is also quieter. A deep-skirt block design and deep-mounted head bolt attachment points are among many features which reduce engine noise and vibration. These measures work in concert with others which help isolate the engine from the frame. The extensive acoustical insulation throughout the vehicle helps keep normal vehicle operating sounds out of the interior compartment.

Crown Victoria's suspension system has been extensively revamped to provide for a more controlled ride. The front end, for example, has been redesigned and redeveloped for better directional stability and reduced tire wear. New stabilizer bars produce better vehicle roll control. And the nitrogen-gas-pressurized shocks are new and have been tuned to optimize ride comfort and control.

For those who frequently have occasion to take a full entourage and/or a lot of luggage along, the optional rear air suspension automatically adjusts its air springs based on load. The result is enhanced ride smoothness whether it's just the driver or six adults and a generous collection of baggage. It's a system not available on any other automobile in Crown Victoria's class.

Peace of Mind: In a Grand Marquis, you won't leave home without it.

Whether you're miles from home or just around the corner, changing weather and unpredictable circumstances can threaten at any time. Which is why Grand Marquis includes many safety features designed to treat you and your passengers with the greatest of care.

The new Grand Marquis still offers the reassuring weight and solid feel of its body-on-frame construction. You're further protected by "crumple" zones in the front and rear that will absorb much of a collision's impact before it reaches the passenger compartment, and roof and front pillars built to meet a static force test equal to 2268 kg (5,000 pounds) for added rollover protection.

The best way to protect yourself and your passengers is to wear your safety belts. Grand Marquis is equipped with lap/shoulder safety belts for front and rear outboard passengers, while lap belts are provided for passengers in the centre seating positions. Grand Marquis even includes a standard air bag Supplemental Restraint System for the driver. This system, working together with a properly worn safety belt, provides an added measure of protection for the driver's head and chest in the unfortunate event of a moderate to severe frontal collision.

We hope you'll never be in the position to need these important safety features. And one way to help avoid using them is to make good use of the optional Anti-lock Brake System (ABS). ABS helps the driver maintain steering control, even in extreme braking situations, by inhibiting wheel lockup as a result of brake pressure, no matter how hard the driver presses on the brake pedal.

The ABS-equipped Grand Marquis also includes electronic traction assist. This innovative feature is particularly useful in helping the driver maintain control while starting out on slippery surfaces, sharp curves or steep grades and can even help maintain traction while pulling a boat up a slick boat ramp.

Engineering: The Power To Conquer Mountains

There's no substitute for power. Whether you're towing a trailer, pulling out to pass or climbing a steep incline, power isn't just a convenience—it's a necessity.

Now, more than ever, Grand Marquis delivers the power you need with the most advanced engine in its class-an all-new overheadcam V-8 that produces 26% more horsepower than the engine it replaces. And in these days of concerns for the environment and rising gas prices, you'll be glad to know that this power is efficiently delivered to you with reduced emissions and no increase in fuel consumption.

Of course, the sophistication behind Grand Marquis is not limited to its engine. You'll find four-wheel disc brakes for smooth stops. And speed-sensitive variable-assist power steering that can actually distinguish the difference between parking and traveling at highway speeds to provide the proper amount of steering assist for each, as well as everything in between.

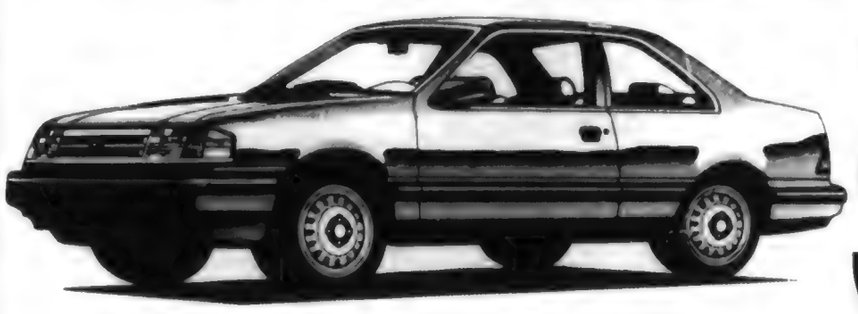
Equally important in Grand Marquis engineering are some factors that were too good to change, such as body-on-frame construction for a smooth ride. Now the ride is even smoother and the handling more precise, thanks to improvements such as the addition of a rear stabilizer bar and new front suspension geometry.

If you plan to use your Grand Marquis for towing, order the optional Trailer Towing Package. It has several features that improve power and ride under load conditions. The package also includes an optional micro-processor-controlled air spring rear suspension which not only maintains a level ride under varying loads, but also provides a smooth ride whether you're pulling a heavy trailer or carrying nothing at all.

Introducing the new 1992 Grand Marquis.

If you want the true measure of a car's worth, take a trip down an endless highway.

The new 1992 Mercury Grand Marquis is a full-sized sedan that's made for the open road. It offers all the room, ride and comfort in the classic Grand Marquis tradition, coupled with a dramatic new design and advanced technology that makes this the grandest Grand Marquis ever.



Outside, its sleek new shape is both elegant in appearance and intelligent in application. Inside, this uncompromising sedan is generously spacious, more quiet, more comfortable and even smoother riding. Both driver and passengers will appreciate these features whether traveling around the corner or across the country.

This Grand Marquis includes a number of new features that make it the perfect car for people who want to get the most out of spending their time, and their vacations, behind the wheel of a great automobile. It has a new, more powerful V-8 engine. Safety features like a standard driver-side air bag Supplemental Restraint System, standard four-wheel disc brakes, and an optional Anti-lock Brake System (ABS) with electronic traction assist. And it's available in two stylish sedans for 1992: a GS model and top-of-the-line LS model.

Get a sense of how comfortable you'll feel traveling the scenic route. Take a trip in a new Grand Marquis.

FLORIDA LEMON TALLY FINDS, HYUNDAI HAD MOST, VW HAD.... NONE!

Hyundai fared worst and Volkswagen scored best in Florida's 1990 lemon index.

The scale is based on 230 cases that were decided in consumers' favor under Florida's Lemon Law Arbitration Program. It compares the number of lemon awards to the Florida market share of each make that sold more than 4,000 units.

In Hyundai's case, 18 owners or 7.8 percent of the 230 cases, prevailed in arbitration. But Hyundai sales accounted for less than 1 percent of the market, giving Hyundai a score of 10.45 on the index.

Subaru (3.12) and BMW (2.86) were the only other makes that had twice as many lemons as would be expected with their market share. The General Motors makes, Honda/Acura, Toyota/Lexus and Mitsubishi had fewer. And Volkswagen/Audi had none.

The report notes that manufacturers can avoid generating lemons by prevailing in arbitration, entering into prehearing settlements or taking other measures to prevent cases from being submitted to arbitration.

Attorney General Robert A. Butterworth's report says: "In both 1989 and 1990. BMW. Chrysler, Ford and Mercedes-Benz generated more than their expected share of lemons. Conversely, General Motors, Honda and Toyota were the only three manufacturers in 1989 and 1990 to generate fewer lemons than their expected share."

1990 FLA. LEMON INDEX
Expected index score, based on registrations, would be 1.00.

The annual report on Florida's lemon law — one of the toughest in the nation — says that consumers received more than $11 million in awards and settlements for their "lemons" last year, compared to $2.9 million recovered by consumers in 1989.

In 1990, the second year of the state-run arbitration program, 726 cases were approved for arbitration compared with 206 in 1989. Of those 726 cases, 302 were settled by manufacturers before arbitration and 346 went to arbitration. Consumers won 230 of those; 116 were dismissed.

Of the remaining 78 cases, 36 were withdrawn, 41 were settled for less value than provided by the lemon law, and one was pending at the time of the report.

In 1990 prehearing settlements with vehicle makers, consumers recovered more than $6 million.

Last year, 41.6 percent of consumers received full relief under the lemon law — either a refund or a replacement vehicle. That was up from 27.2 percent over 1989.

The marked increase in the number of requests for arbitration led the state to open a regional office in Tampa, add two arbitration boards and appoint 12 additional arbitrators. that notes they are not for sale.

Tasca said he is trying to settle with the FTC. The commission is seeking a $60,000 penalty, he said.

NADA survey says warranty repairs cost dealers $63,000

The average auto dealership loses about $63,000 annually on warranty repairs because of limited markup on parts, according to a survey commissioned by the National Automobile Dealers Association.

That figure could grow to almost $90,000 annually as warranty coverage is extended, forecasts the study, conducted by consulting firm Booz Allen and Hamilton Inc.

As such, warranty policy has changed from a tactical issue to a strategie one for dealers and manufacturers, the study concludes.

NADA is using the results to urge automakers to increase dealers markup allowance for parts used in warranty repairs.

NADA officials are touring the manufacturers to discuss the results. President Frank Anderson Jr. said the reaction of automakers visited so far has been "reception, but we know this comes at a difficult time."

The association said it will publish the results of the survey in the September issue of its magazine.

A random sample of 293 dealerships' service and parts operations, covering 39,470 repairs, was used for the survey. Findings in an executive summary of the survey:

- Expanded warranties already in effect will cost the dealership body $2.2 billion per year by the middle of this decade.
- Those warranties will shift 20 to 35 percent of the current retail repair business to warranty by 1994.
- Such a shift will cost the average dealership $62,700 annually compared to all service work beging performed at retail margins and expenses, growing to $88,700 by the mid-1990s.
- An annual loss of $1.5 billion for the industry at today's warranty levels, rising to $2.2 billion by the mid-1990s.

The warranty reimbursement issue has become more prominent as dealers rely more on profits generated by service business to survive as sales of new vehicles have plummeted.

The survey noted that parts and service have become the profit core of dealerships, accounting for 85 percent of operating profits in 1990 versus just 19.2 percent in 1987. And the group's Project 2000 Committee forecasts that profits on new vehicle sales will continue to erode, increasing the reliance on parts and service business.

But gross margins on warranty parts are half that of retail parts, while expenses for warranty work are 4.5 percent of sales higher.

"With the severe downtown in new vehicle profits, dealers can no longer afford to subsidize manufacturer warranty programs," Anderson said.

Given the shaky profit outlook for dealers in the 1990s, a fair warranty policy is needed for greater customer satisfaction while protecting the dealership system the study says.

Capturing more of a customer's expenditures over the life cycle of the vehicle is necessary to keep both dealers and manufacturers in business, the study notes, calling for joint programs to accomplish that goal.

Anderson called for both manufacturers and dealers to change their way of thinking about warranty repairs.

"Manufacturers don't like warranty work because it costs them money and reflects poorly on what they didn't do right the first time," Anderson said. "Dealers don't like it because the factory sets the terms, limits their compensation and often second-guesses their customer satisfaction efforts.

"The fact is, warranty repairs are one of the best tools we have for improving product quality and customer satisfaction," Anderson said. "They allow manufacturers to accurately track and quickly react to quality control problems. And, when properly administered, they allow dealers to sastisfy today's more demanding buyers. But good warranty service cannot be provided in the absence of profits."

Putting old values in a new body style

As well as a classic new 3-box style for 1991. Toyota has upgraded the content and performance of its Tercel line of front-wheel drive 2 and 4-door models.

"What hasn't changed," says Hector Dupuis, Toyota Canada Inc.'s Executive Vice President. "is our commitment to providing a competitively priced car while retaining Tercel's reputation for value and reliability."

The package containing these values is different, however. The 3 and 5-door hatchback body style, which has characterized Tercel since its inception in 1980, has been replaced by the stylish and classic 3-box (engine-passenger compartment-trunk) body. Available in three trim levels of 2-door sedan and two trim levels of 2-door sedan and two trim levels of 4-door. This change is in direct response to customer requests for an economical entry level vehicle wrapped in a stylish package.

Avoid overheating

(NC)—A common situation with summer driving is engine overheating. If your engine coolant temperature light or gauge shows an overheat condition or you see, smell or hear escaping steam, the engine is in an overheat condition. Continued operation of the engine, even for a short time, could result in a fire or severe engine damage.

According to automotive specialists at General Motors of Canada, don't take chances with an overheated engine. If you have reason to suspect a serious overheat condition, stop and park the car as soon as possible, turn off the engine and, when it's safe to do so, get out of the car.

"The cooling system may overheat if the coolant level is too low, if there's a sudden loss of coolant (such as when a hose splits) or if other related problems occur. Overheating, however, may only be a temporary condition caused during severe conditions such as climbing a long hill on a hot day, stopping after highway-speed driving, idling for long periods in traffic or towing a trailer.

If you think your engine is starting to overheat, turn off the air conditioning (if your car is so equipped). If you're stopped in traffic, shift to neutral. However, if the condition doesn't improve within a few minutes, pull over, stop and park the car. Let the engine run at normal idle speed for several minutes. If the overheating continues, turn off the engine and get out of the car, then consult your car owner's manual for proper steps to take or seek professional service assistance.

The ears have it!

(NC)—The old saying, "Blow your doors off," used to have more to do with a car's muscle and performance than its radio (which consisted of an AM radio connected to a single, small speaker in many cars). Recent trends, however, suggest that an increasing number of motorists are looking to their car's sound system, as well as its engine, for high-tech performance.

According to audio system experts at General Motors' Delco Electronics division, the current market demand is for high-quality, factory-installed sound systems that are specially designed and developed for specific car models.

This is a trend that GM has been on top of since 1979, when Delco Electronics teamed with Bose Corporation to produce a premium, high-quality factory-installed sound system, now available on nearly a dozen GM models.

GM is now making that kind of quality even more widely available, with its less-expensive Delco,Bose Silver sound system, which is being offered as an option on the 1991 Chevrolet Caprice Classic. "It has two or three modifications that take some cost out," says a Delco manager, "but it still sounds remarkably close to the full-blown system."

Delco experts in the car audio field foresee a growing market for high-quality auto sound systems, including new technologies such as compact disc (CD) players and digital audio tape. The latter combines the quality of CDs with the recordability of cassettes. And because North Americans spend an increasing number of hours in their vehicles, they want their music, recorded books, motivational tapes and language lessons wherever they go.

Recycling plastic car parts

(NC)—In recent years, industry has found numerous ways to reuse a wide variety of materials, from soft drink cans and newspapers to steel and used engine oil. And now, General Motors engineers are working to add plastic composite auto parts to that list.

GM is the largest user of such composites in the automotive industry. One type, called sheet molding compound (SMC), is used to make large exterior panels in the Chevrolet Lumina APV, Pontiac Trans Sport, Oldsmobile Silhouette (not sold in Canada) and the Chevrolet Corvette.

To recycle SMC, GM's Advanced Engineering Staff is exploring the use of "pyrolysis", a process also being evaluated by the tire and rubber industry for reuse of scrap tires. In the GM process, materials are heated to 1400°F in the absence of oxygen. Rather than burn, they break down into materials that could be reused in new body panels, adhesives or products such as concrete or roofing shingles.

"The process may provide an attractive alternative for SMC write management, compared with landfill and other disposal methods, such a incineration," according to a composites manager for the Advanced Engineering Staff.

He says the results of GM's pyrolysis tests are encouraging, but that more evaluation is needed before the technology can be considered use. GM's goal is to solve the question of SMC waste management before it becomes a problem.

Computer technology helps the driver maintain control.

In addition to suspension and steering systems designed for control, Crown Victoria now provides the reassuring stopping power of standard 4-wheel power disc brakes. New all-season steel-belted radial tires, developed specifically for Crown Victoria, are more responsive. More capability for the car translates to more confidence for the driver.

Computer technology also provides help with control. The optional anti-lock brake system shortens stopping distance on wet and slippery surfaces by inhibiting brake-induced wheel lockup under most operating conditions. It also helps facilitate steering while braking and includes a sophisticated electronic traction assist feature. Traction Assist, unique in its class, helps keep the rear wheels from spinning at lower speeds, providing greater driver control and less likelihood of getting stuck. It improves traction on slippery roads, improves traction on grades when ice or snow is present, and generally improves stability under adverse conditions.

As an extra protection includes a driver's-side air bag supplemental restraint system as standard equipment. This system, of course, is intended to be used in conjunction with properly worn safety belts. When used together, air bags and safety belts comprise one of the best occupant restraint systems available today.

Lexus debuts in Canada

After perhaps the most successful introduction of any automobile in history, Lexus is here!

Introduced in the United States over a year ago, Lexus made its Canadian debut October 3, 1990 with 23 dealers from Victoria to Halifax, either ready for business or preparing to open new Lexus facilities in the near future.

The Lexus presence in Canada started well over a year ago as selected members of the automotive press sampled Toyota's new luxury market contender. In fact, some Canadians were so taken by the LS 400 luxury performance sedan that they bought US models and imported them, a practice that is frowned upon by Transport Canada due to differing safety and certification requirements between Canadian and US models.

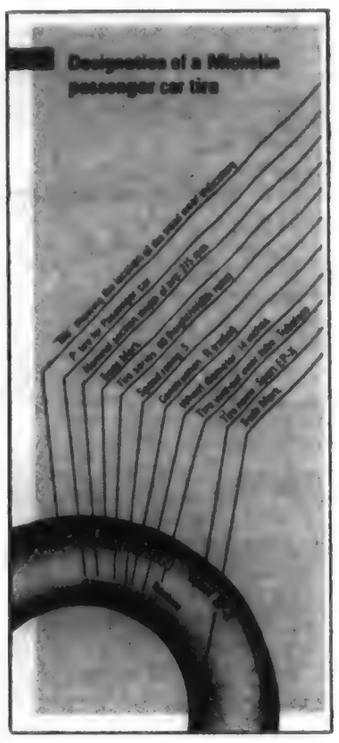
Canadians got their first look at what Chairman Eiji Toyoda meant when he called for Lexus engineers to produce "the best sedan in the world" when Lexus models were displayed at major auto shows across Canada. The Lexus theme, The Relentless Pursuit of Perfection was more than just words as the crowds thronged to see the V-8, quad camshaft 4.0 litre LS 400 and the V-6, quad camshaft 2.5 litre ES 250. They saw what made Lexus the Car of the Year in Japan, the winner of the Edison Award given to the best new products of 1989 by the American Marketing Association, Popular Science Magazine's Grand Award for Cars, and the Best Imported Car of the Year by the Motoring Press Association as well as being placed on Car & Driver magazine's 10 Best list for 1990.

AUTO FACTS

GM to expand in the Orient

(NC)—While most North Americans see the influx of Japanese technology and products exported to our market, few perhaps realize the demand in the Orient for North American technology and expertise.

General Motors recently announced it will open a technology centre in Tokyo, Japan, by late 1991 that company officials say will make inroads into the growing Asian market for electronics systems and other automotive components.



Elsewhere in the Far East, GM is establishing a regional headquarters in Hong Kong and new offices in Indonesia and Thailand. The GMOC (General Motors Overseas Corporation) office in Hong Kong will be expanded to accommodate the regional headquarters that will coordinate vehicle-related business activities throughout Southeast Asia, Taiwan and the People's Republic of China.

General Motors is also currently involved in assistance and technology support in the European market.

Are you tire literate?

(NC)—A tire can tell you a lot about itself. Its size, load characteristics, construction type and naturally its brand name all appear on its sidewall. This information is there to help you when the time comes to find a new tire.

The labelling system which presently denotes the tire size will be modified to include the service description (the maximum speed capability and load index of the tire), as part of a tire industry commitment to standardize the tire size and service description in accordance with international standards. This procedure should be completed by 1991.

NC

Let's consider the example of a Michelin Sport EP-X performance tire. In the current coding system it would be labelled P215/60SR14 (as shown on the illustration). In the new system, this marking would change to P215/60R14 91S. In each case, this code gives you its complete pedigree.

The "P" simply stands for "passenger" and indicates it was designed for your automobile. That code could also be found on some tires used for various light trucks.

The figure "215" gives the tire section width, the actual width of the tire from sidewall to sidewall, in millimeters.

Next, the "60" refers to the tire series, or aspect ratio. This is the ratio between the section height of the tire and its section width, or if you prefer, the percentage of the tire's height from bead to tread in relation to its width. Here, the tire's section height would be 60% of its width.

The "S" indicates the speed rating which is further explained below. The "R" stands for radial and finally "14" indicates the rim diameter of the wheel on which the tire is to be mounted.

The service description, which follows the tire size in the new tire designation, consists of two separate codes—the load index and speed rating, which must be read together. For instance, "91S" refers to code tables where the numbers (91) correspond to the load index and the letter (S) to a given speed rating (as you can note, the speed rating is shown beside the aspect ratio in the current system). In the case of our example, 91S means the tire can withstand a maximum load per tire of 610 kg (1345 lbs.) at sustained speeds up to 180 km/h (112 mph). Your Michelin tire specialist can provide you with all the necessary information about the load index. As for the various speed rating codes, they are grouped into the following categories:

Tire Tips

Speed Code	Maximum Speed
S	up to 180 km/h (112 mph)
T	up to 190 km/h (118 mph)
H	up to 210 km/h (130 mph)
V*	above 210 km/h (130 mph)
V	up to 240 km/h (149 mph)
Z	above 240 km/h (149 mph)

*codification without the service description

codification with the service description

All this data could come in handy if you are, for instance thinking of changing the tire size on your car. It could also represent greater driving efficiency and safety.

Your Michelin tire specialist can assist you in deciding what tire is best suited to your needs. But he can also help you to learn how to read your tires and get to know more about them!

Van conversions: Car market's best value

Imagine the ultimate driving experience: leg-stretching comfort, abundant space for passengers and extra cargo, high-tech entertainment features and refreshments close at hand. Sounds ideal, but is it out of your price range? Maybe not. Van conversions offer savvy car buyers limousine comforts and roominess at popular passenger sedan prices.

Today's active families want more than the traditional station wagon. In the past decade, the percentage of vehicle-owning households in the U.S. that own a van conversion has doubled while station wagon sales declined significantly.

Van conversions are vans originally manufactured by automakers and then modified by specialized companies. Custom windows, luxurious carpeting, designer wall treatments, plush seats, sofas that convert to beds and roomy closets are some of the most popular added amenities. For extra enjoyment, TVs, videocassette players, high-tech stereos, cellular phones and video games are also available. Even with all the space and special features, the cost of a van conversion is comparable to that of a luxury car, with prices ranging from $16,500–$40,000, or $22,100 on the average.

Van conversions deliver more for the dollar, owners find. Whether transporting the kids to Little League, carpooling, grocery shopping, going on family outings or vacationing, these vehicles offer comfort, convenience and flexibility. For hauling bulky items or towing camping trailers, boats or snowmobiles, van conversions have the power to get the job done.

LUXURIOUS INTERIORS complete with plush seats, custom window and wall treatments, luxurious carpeting, fine woodwork and high-tech entertainment systems make van conversions today's best automotive value.

When deciding to purchase a van conversion, there are a few rules of thumb:

• Decide how the van will be used. For outdoor recreation or traveling with young children, you'll want rugged carpeting, durable upholstery, sofabeds and large, sliding doors. If used by adults for business or pleasure travel, opt for more luxurious fabrics and plush carpeting. High-tech extras like TVs, videocassette players and separate stereo headphones make the ride more fun for anyone.

• Do your homework. For buyer information, check out Hanley's Buyers Guide to Van Conversions, and Trailer Life's and Woodall's RV buyers guides. Visit an auto, RV, outdoor, camping or sports show. Read automotive or van magazines or talk to van conversion owners.

• Visit your local automotive dealers. Here you'll get specific information, a first-hand look and an opportunity to see how well van conversions handle by taking a test drive.

• Look for the Recreation Vehicle Industry Association (RVIA) seal. When choosing a van conversion, look for the black and silver seal displayed on products made by members of the RVIA. The seal indicates that the van converter has pledged compliance with national safety codes and standards. RVIA members are subject to periodic unannounced inspections to monitor their pledge.

Whether it's a trip to the store or a mini-vacation, van conversions can make the ride so relaxing, comfortable and pleasurable that mom and dad will never again have to hear, "Are we there yet?"

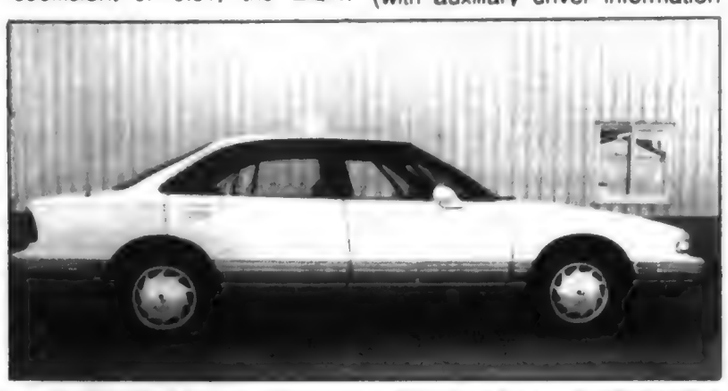
OLDSMOBILE INTRODUCES '92 EIGHTY EIGHT

Detroit, MI ... With the unveiling of the 1992 Eighty Eight Royale LS at the North American International Auto Show, Oldsmobile adds another entry in its lineup of smart, contemporary vehicles that are a step ahead of the competition in design, value, and total customer satisfaction. Scheduled for sale at dealerships across the nation later this year, this newest Oldsmobile artfully blends contemporary design with refined engineering to provide large family sedan customers with the best available combination of roominess and comfort, step-up features, performance, and value throughout the ownership experience.

Like the successful Eighty Eight it replaces, the Royal LS is a full-size four-door sedan with V-6 power, front-wheel drive, and six-passenger interior room. While the Olsmobile Eighty Eight Royale LS is an all new design, certain key dimensions, such as the 110.8-inch wheelbase, have been saved from its predecessor. As is the case with all Oldsmobiles, complete customer satisfaction is the driving force, so there are major improvements throughout.

Power is supplied by the most up-to-date version of GM's dependable 3800 tuned port injection V-6 engine. Rated at 170 horsepower and 220 lb-ft of torque, this powerplant has proven to be one of the industry's most durable and reliable designs. A long list of advanced features—a balance shaft, sequential port fuel injection, distributorless ignition, tuned-runner intake manifold, and roller-type valve lifters to name a few-are designed to help make this engine smooth, fuel efficient,and trouble free.

GM's most advanced automatic transmission—a four-speed electronically-controlled Turbo-Hydramatic—is standard equipment in the 1992 Eighty Eight line. Introduced during the 1991 model year, this transmission uses computer-controlled solenoids to activate shifts for smoothness and consistency.



A host of engineering improvements have been incorporated to improve over-the-road performance. State-of-the-art anti-lock brakes are standard in the Royale LS. Front brake components are larger to reduce noise, improve pedal feel, and increase the service life of brake linings. Fifteen-inch wheels and tires are also new as standard equipment. Except for the roof, all exterior sheet metal is galvanized on both sides for corrosion resistance. Various structural improvements introduced in the upmarket 1991 Oldsmobile Ninety Eight have also been incorporated in the new Eighty Eight.

To appeal to the discerning tastes of today's Oldsmobile customer, the Eighty Eight Royale LS's styling is refined and contemporary. Overall length is slightly increased. (A secondary benefit is more trunk room: 17.7 cubic feet versus 16.3 cubic feet in the 1991 Eighty Eight.) Side window glass is flush with the surrounding bodywork, the windshield wraps smoothly into the forward pillar, and the backlight is rakishly angled in the interests of both visual appeal and aerodynamic performance. Headlamps, door handles, rear-view mirrors, and bumper fascias are all designed as integral elements of the gracefully sculpted whole. The new exterior design is not only pleasing to the eye, it also scores well in wind tunnel testing, contributing to estimated EPA fuel economy of 19 and 28 miles per gallon for city and highway driving, respectively, which keeps the Eighty Eight at the top of the list in the large vehicle segment. With a drag coefficient of 0.31, the Eighty Eight Royal LS will be one of the most aerodynamically efficient sedans on the road in 1992.

The interior decor has been crafted to provide a safe, comfortable, and functional habitat for the contemporary family. The front seat is a 55/45 split bench design with a central storage armrest, dual cupholders, reclining seat backs, and individual adjustment controls. A driver's-side inflatable restraint system (air bag) available as an Oldsmobile Eighty Eight option since 1988, is now standard equipment. In addition, three-point belts are fitted to all outboard seating positions and feature an adjustable guide loop mounted to each B-pillar for improved comfort.

Several features are aimed at making this model particularly appropriate for young families. Since power windows are now standard equipment, a lock-out button is included so that the driver can disable their operation when small children are on board. In addition, rear doors have child-security lock mechanisms.

An extensive array of optional equipment is offered so that customers can tailor the new Eighty Eight Royale LS to their particular needs: digital instrumentation (with auxiliary driver information center); leather upholstery; compact disc player; an auto-dimming inside rear-view mirror; an electrically heated windshield; steering-wheel-mounted radio and air conditioning controls, and electronic traction control.

Refined design, innovative engineering, responsive performance, and a balance of step-up features with great value are the character traits that Oldsmobile designers and engineers had in mind during the development of the 1992 Eight Eight models. With this new lease on life, the new Eighty Eights will certainly appeal to a broader target audience. Market research reveals that the typical customers will be of two groups -- the mid- to upper-40's, well educated with children living at home and a strong interest in community affairs, and more mature couples in their 50's and early 60's with active lifestyles. Value and practicality are important purchase considerations in this segment of the market. Most are open minded about choosing between domestic-made products and import models. Many are interested in moving up from a compact or mid-size model into a roomier full-size sedan. Olsmobile customers who have already enjoyed the expansive comfort of prior Eighty Eight models will find this new 1992 model a contemporary choice for their full-size driving needs.

Engineering with attention to the details and steeped in contemporary features, the 1992 Eighty Eight sedan represents not only a focal point of the North American International Auto Show but also a major addition to the New Generation of Oldsmobile.

NEW LUMINA Z34 IS PRODUCED IN CANADA

A performance-oriented Lumina Z34 coupe joins the Chevrolet Lumina coupe and sedan mid-size car lineup for 1991. All Lumina coupes and sedans, including the new Z34, are produced by GM of Canada at its Autoplex vehicle assembly facility in Oshawa, Ontario.

All Lumina models, which can carry up to six passengers in comfort, sport a new front appearance and feature a number of engine refinements.

The Z34 performance version of the Lumina Euro coupe will be available near the beginning of 1991, featuring an all-new Twin Dual Cam V6 engine, produced by GM of Canada at its St. Catharines, Ontario, engine plant. The Z34 also features a redesigned 5-speed manual transmission as well as a new electronically controlled 4T60-E four-speed automatic transmission.

The Lumina Z34 coupe also features a special front fascia and grille work, hood louvers, ground effects with a spoiler, and chrome exhaust outlets.

The new Twin Dual Cam is a 24-value (four-valves-per-cylinder) engine. The 60-degree V6 engine is rated at 200 horsepowr at 5,000 rpm and features electronic multipoint fuel injection. It has a compression ratio of 9.25:1, and features a fast-burn combustion chamber design. Each chamber has centrally located spark plug to assure an equidistant flame travel to prevent detonation from hotspots.

The new-for-1991 Lumina Z34 shows its performance lineage with an exterior freshening that includes a unique front and rear fascia treatment, louvered hood, ground effects, a special graphics package and dual remotely-operated black sport mirrors.

Styled 16-inch aluminum rims with Goodyear P225/60R16 Eagle GT blackwall tires are part of a road handling sport suspension package that is standard on the Z34 along with dual exhausts and chrome extensions.

Black wheel opening and body side moldings, an extended rear spoiler and revised license plates location complete the Z34 exterior.

Inside, a dash-mounted Lumina Z34 nameplate highlights a complete instrument cluster; special sport steering wheel; a centre console; special Z34-only 40/40 sport bucket seats; and black trimplates on the instrument panel, doors and console.

For the balance of the lumina lineup, the list of standard equipment includes 4-wheel, power-assisted disc brakes; rack-and-pinion steering; wet-arm windshield wipers; dual sport rear view mirrors; reading lamps; and an AM/FM radio with a digital clock.

The Lumina coupe and sedan are also available in optional Euro trim with a new FE2 ride and handling suspension package, which features P205/70R15 touring tires on 15-inch steel or cast-aluminum wheels.

Cast-aluminum 16-inch wheels and P225/60R16 touring tires (with FE3 sport suspension package); power door locks; reclining bucket seats and a console are Euro options.

The standard engine for both sedan and coupe is a 2.5-litre 4-cylinder. A 3.1-litre V6 is available as an option in Lumina coupe and sedan, and is standard in the Lumina Euro.

Rated at 140 horsepower at 4400 rpm and 185 ft. lbs. of torque at 3200 rpm, the 3.1-litre V6 is mated to a 3-speed automatic transmission.

MOVING THE TARGET

Chrysler's inside-out redesign of the vehicle ensures that its minivan will remain one step ahead of the competition

This is the one that started it all, and the one the competition has been gunning for the past seven years or more.

And still, since Chrysler created the minivan market in 1984, no one has yet to match the Dodge Caravan/Plymouth Voyager success story.

A measure of these vehicles' success is that they're generically referred to as Chrysler minivans—most people don't know (and less likely care)—if they own the Dodge or Plymouth variants (though they might know by the $25,000 sticker that they have the luxo Chrysler Town & Country).

Others have tried to compete—GM and Ford with their respective truck-based entries: the M-van (Chevy Astro and GMC Safari) and Aerostar, as well as imports, with various cab-over-engine minivans that were already in production in Japan, and of course, VW, with its long-running Vanagon entry. None seemed to capture the melding of a car-like ride and truck-like utility of the Chrysler, which has replaced the Ford Country Squire as the gold standard of the suburban set.

In the seven-plus years that Chrysler has been building the minivan, we're just now seeing second-generation attempts to compete, most notably GM's front-drive APV, Mazda's rear-drive MPV (which despite its rear-drive layout most closely approximates the Chrysler package) and Toyota's all-new Previa. While MPV and Previa are credible competitors—neither will sell in the volume that the Chrysler has enjoyed.

Others have tried and failed to cash in on a market that has grown from nothing to more than 850,000 units per year—with Chrysler taking upward of 400,000 sales. Nissan's Axxess, introduced only two years ago on the Stanza platform, was axed at the end of the 1990 model year. Mitsubishi's van/wagon, introduced four years ago, sells at a rate of just under 4000 annually.

Still, when Chrysler sat down in 1986 to develop its minivan replacement, it didn't know what the competition was preparing. And in Detroit, where the motto "If it ain't broke, don't fix it" reigns supreme, the keepers of the Pentastar faced a tough decision: Should they make a radical change to keep ahead of the competition, or play it safe?

They did a combination of both that, in light of the latest entries, will keep Chrysler ahead of the pack for the foreseeable future.

From the exterior, the new minivans are entirely new, though they retain a strong resemblence to their predecessors. The only piece of exterior sheet metal carried over is the roof, and that was reworked slightly to accommodate the new, more rounded side panels. The nose is lower and more rounded while the rear hatch features a larger window. Glass area is larger all around.

The changes are subtle and draw mixed reactions from onlookers. While driving prototypes during a press introduction in Maine, drivers in civilian Chrysler minivans didn't seem to notice. Still, at several stops along the way, others came up to inquire whether the vehicles were the new minivans. In motion, it's just another minivan; only when parked, it seems, do people appreciate the difference.

But no one is going to mistake the Chrysler minivan for a GM APV. In fact, the approaches taken by Chrysler and GM underscore the fundamental differences between the two vehicles and may dictate how well each will fare in the market.

While appearing more conservative than the APV, Chrysler's minivan is an "inside-out" design. The company started with the interior design first, using a crew headed by interior stylist Trevor Creed. The exterior followed, penned by John Herlitz's team.

"We weren't about to make a radical change just for the sake of change," Herlitz said. "Still, the body sheet metal is entirely new. We set out to make the minivans more car-like in outward appearance."

Creed notes "the vehicle was designed from the inside-out. Of all the suggestions from previous minivan owners, it was the interior they wanted to see change most."

The resulting combination is an all-new body and interior mated to the same platform, incorporating the traditional look of the previous-generation vehicle. Wheelbase is identical—112.3 inches on short wheelbase models, 119.3 on the extended models—as is overall length at 175.9 and 190.5 inches, respectively. By retaining the same platform—including firewall—the driver's seating position is virtually identical to the old minivan. Consequently, previous owners will feel right at home in the '91 model.

Which isn't a bad place to be, considering the minivan's mission in life is that of domestic conveyance through convenience.

GM, on the other hand, took a more daring approach with what can be best described as an "outside-in" design. The APV's space-age styling is a head-turner, but the long nose, combined with the flying buttress A-pillars, can be unsettling to those new to the vehicle.

Such a radical departure will take some getting used to by buyers in this segment, who are a conservative lot to begin with. That, and the complexity of the space frame and plastic body construction has resulted in a planned volume of only 200,000 APVs per year, half of Chrysler's volume.

Another principal difference between the two is the fact that APV is a clean sheet of paper design, while Chrysler had the benefit of refining a vehicle that is already owned by some two million motorists. Chrysler turned to this owner body for suggestions used in the finished product.

In addition to the interior, customer suggestions also fueled changes in suspension and steering feel, noise suppression and more convenience features such as strategically-placed grab handles and door pulls, a captain's chair option for the second-row seating position and additional cup holders—some configured to accept juice boxes—for rear seat passengers.

Beneath the skin, hardware upgrades include the availability of antilock brakes and a new, all-wheel-drive option (see sidebar).

The most noticeable changes, though, are in dash layout and controls.

On the passenger side, the dash has been moved outward, allowing for a parcel shelf on top and, for the first time on these minivans, a conventional glove box. The sliding storage bins under the right-front seat is retained on some models. The change results in a smooth front panel, eliminating the lower protruding box that formerly housed the radio and heating/air conditioning controls. Those controls have been repositioned higher on the new dash, within easier reach of the driver.

Also mounted on this center console is a new remote hatch release that can be activated with the ignition turned off. Another nit we've picked in the past is the outside rearview mirror control placement. It's now on the door so you're not out of position when adjusting the mirrors.

The instrument cluster also has been redesigned and now an "eyebrow" above the main nacelle houses the turn signal indicators and warning lights.

Window wiper/washer and lighting controls are mounted in two pods on either side of the instrument panel.

Switch feel has been greatly improved over previous models. Rather than use switches and controls common to other Chrysler products, the company has begun a program to improve the tactile operation of these components. The result is switches and controls designed for specific vehicles. The switches operate with satisfying clicks that let you know they are positively engaged. It does much to take the edge of cheapness off previous models.

The minivans also benefit from a corporate-wide program to refine suspensions and improve on-center steering feel.

Roll center has been raised three inches to reduce body lean in corners, while revised steering geometry and an increase in caster have improved steering returnability and straight-line stability. Wheel toe-in also has been revised to reduce the amount of change, especially toe-out, during suspension movement and cornering.

Steering feel is more positive, the result of revised power-steering gear valving.

Those changes are most evident in back-to-back drives of the old and new minivans. As advertised, the new van feels more taut all the way around.

That tautness makes the infusion of more horsepower from the 3.3-liter V6, introduced last year, more welcome than on like-equipped minivans of a year ago.

The 141 hp, 3.0-liter V6 built by Mitsubishi will be offered as an option on the short-wheelbase versions, while the base engine on the entry level short-wheelbase Mini Wagon is a 100 horsepower 2.5-liter four-cylinder.

Changes made to the minivan were designed with making this vehicle even more user-friendly. A new grab handle on the inside of the sliding door makes closing a breeze. Another grab handle on the inside of the hatch, along with a latch on the outside—rather than relying on the key to release it—improves rear access.

A large share of that user-friendly philosophy is comfort and safety, which means the driving experience is not what you'd call inspiring. Still, there is grace and beauty in its predictability, excellent visibility fore and aft (enhanced by windows even larger than last year's) and a seating position that imparts a sense of command of the road.

Despite its strong resemblence to previous Chrysler minivans, the sheet metal on 1991 models is all-new

AUTOWEEK

While minivans and other light trucks used to haul people inspire a sense of safety because of their good visibility, the reality is that they don't have to meet the same safety standards as passenger cars because of their commercial vehicle roots.

In anticipation of tighter standards on these vehicles, Chrysler already is moving in the direction of improved passenger safety. It has added a center high-mounted stop light, provided three-point belt and shoulder harnesses for all outboard passengers and is working on offering airbags, possibly before the 1991 model year is out.

With all these improvements, which includes making a $565 three-speed automatic transmission standard on base models, Chrysler has bumped the base Mini Wagon with four-cylinder engine from $11,995 to $13,195. Grand Voyager starts at $16,175.

Chrysler has kept its target moving, but not so much as to lose sight of a market that has made the minivan the company's best-selling product. Still, the company realizes that someday the competition may catch on.

But until a more serious challenge is raised, Chrysler will remain at the head of the class. ■

Young Saints appearing here

Polygram Recording Artists Young Saints open for Glass Tiger on the Eastern leg of the Toronto band's national tour. The Bathurst concert starts at 8 p.m., and advance tickets are still on sale at local outlets, including J and L Convenience on Teteagouche Hill.

Young Saints are originally from Newfoundland, but now work out of Vancouver. Their self-titled debut has just leaped from No. 19 to No. 9, on the rock chart in the Canadian trade publication, The Record.

The band was signed through a connection with singer-songwriter Sue Medley, and the debut is produced by Corky Lang, now an A&R man for Polygram, but best remembered as the drummer in Mountain. Helping out with some guitar on one of the tracks, "Live For Today," is Canadian rock legend Randy Bachman.

A straight ahead rock band with a strong guitar sound, the Young Saints' music comes from a variety of influences, and is described in a record company press release as "quite mainstream and accessible, but with enough quirks and curveballs thrown in to keep it pleasantly just left of centre."

The group is comprised of Robin Cook, lead vocals and rhythm guitar; Darren (Dirt) Churchill, bass; Ian Roe, lead guitar; and Alex MacFarlane, drums.

Polygram Recording Artists Young Saints will play the Bathurst Arena Monday night at 8 p.m. The Vancouver-based band is the opening act on the Eastern leg of the current national tour by Capitol Recording Artists Glass Tiger.

IN FOCUS

In a stroke of warped genius, CBS is airing episodes of "Police Squad!," the 1982 series that was the basis for the 1988 film "Naked Gun" and the current "Naked Gun 2-1/2." The series, like the "Naked Gun" and "Airplane!" films, was created by Jim Abrahams and David and Jerry Zucker. Leslie Nielsen stars as the invincibly stupid Det. Frank Drebin. In the Wednesday, July 31, episode, Drebin goes undercover as a boxing manager.

Ray Stevens--No. 1 With A Bullet

Stevens has been a legend in the business for over 30 years, and he's still more in tune with trends, concepts, political events and pop culture than anybody else in the industry. His recordings display on-target comedic timing, and they consistently reflect top-notch production, with attention to the most minute studio details.

The songs he chooses to record not only touch the listeners' funny bones, they hit a societal nerve, for they are all rooted in the lives of everyday people and wide-ranging issues.

No. 1 With A Bullet has it all. On "Working For The Japanese," Ray takes a jab at foreign buyouts, and the hialarious lyrics on "You Gotta Have A Hat" take aim at the trendiness of contemporary country music. He pokes good-natured fun at slow moving cars on the freeway with "A Little Blue Haired Lady," and at current film television kid-crazes with "Teenage Mutant Kung Fu Chicken," which was featured on a recent CBS special salute to the Desert Storm Troops.

In "The Sheik of R&B," rhythm 'n' blues finds a fanatical fan in the Middle East, and "Back In The Dog House Again" takes a sly poke at insensitive husbands who always seem to wind up in hot water and can't figure out why.

And if those songs don't cover every base, Ray adds a song called "Juanita And The Kids" about a man trying to convince the IRS to allow him to deduct a blow-up plastic doll as his wife, and Cabbage Patch kids as his children. Home repairs get a jab with "Power Tools," about a fellow who cuts himself down to size in his workshop, and "Tabloid News" immortalizes supermarket rags, and then there's "The Pirate Song" — what if the most evil pirate in the world's only son would really prefer to be a Broadway song and dance man? You get the picture. Ray Stevens is indeed in rare form.

Acadian festival

La Fê des Acadiens et Acadiennes, Aug. 15, will bring with it music, drawing contests, and general revelry over the next three weeks.

L'Acadie au Nouveau-Brunswick is the theme of a drawing contest that has already gotten underway, in conjunction with the Défi '91 de Beresford project, the Beresford public library, and la Société Culturelle Re 'gionale Népisiguit.

The contest winners will be posted at the SCRN offices next Monday until Aug. 2, and at the Beresford library Aug. 6-9.

A Seniors' Festival today Wednesday at 1 p.m., at Foyer Notre-Dame de Lourdes, will feature an open-air concert with Prudent Arseneau, while a group from Ile St-Pierre and Miquelon, Les Musiciens du Bon Vieux Temps, will perform July 30 in the Ecole Secondaire Népisiguit cafeteria. Joining them will be John Vienneau and his musicians.

The latter concert, slated to begin at 2:30 p.m., is being organized by la SCRN, in collaboration with the Bathurst Silver Jubilee Committee and Défi '91 de Beresford.

Meanwhile, Zariko terrasse plans to host a version of the popular television game show Win, Lose or Draw, tentatively scheduled for Aug. 7 at 6:30 p.m.; and on Aug. 15, the festival will draw to a close with a tintamarre, leaving the Holy Family Church parking lot at 6 p.m., and ending with a barbecue at Coronation Park.

A tintamarre is a boisterous, celebratory march; it is being organized this year by les Dames d'Acadie de Bathurst, along with la SCRN.

MR. BATHURST WINNERS

Mr. Bathurst 1991 is Alain Gallant, crowned July 16 at a local nightclub. A total of seven local men competed in the annual fun event before a packed house. Alain, 21, is the son of Auguste and Simmone Gallant of Madran. Currently unemployed, he is planning to study social work at the University of Moncton. Marc Allaire, a self-employed businessman, was the first prince. Marc, 21, is the son of Alexandre and Colette Allaire of Bathurst. Ken Duffy, 21, was named second prince. The son of Romuald and Cora Duffy of North Teteagouche, he is an assistant manager at a local fast food restaurant. Roger Daigle was Mr. Personality, and is the 21-year-old son of Frank and Germaine Daigle of Bathurst. He is finishing Grade 12 upgrading at the New Brunswick Community College Bathurst. Shown from left are Roger, Marc, Alain, and Ken.

Your Week Ahead Horoscope

Forecast Period: July 28 - August 3, 1991

ARIES Mar. 21-Apr. 19	Magazine article will have outlandish advise but it should not be ignored. You will have to overcome your stubborn nature to appreciate its counsel.
TAURUS Apr. 20-May 20	Travel plans are a go. Take off even if you think you can't. There will not always be time for doing what you can much less what you want.
GEMINI May 21-June 20	Emphasize teamwork. Reward those who have come to play. Be aggressive with those who show signs of indolence. Strive for success and you will achieve it.
CANCER June 21-July 22	Take the opportunity afforded you to voice your concerns to one who can make a difference. Do not be shy, but be concise and to the point.
LEO July 23-Aug. 22	Generosity toward newcomer will make him feel at home and will set an example for others to follow. Serious romantic involvement is out of the picture.
VIRGO Aug. 23-Sept. 22	Finances are put to the test. Sit down and carefully budget your spending for the remainder of the year. Check addition.
LIBRA Sept. 23-Oct. 23	You come closer to reaching those long-term goals. Good friend is important ally in achieving a vital victory over adversary.
SCORPIO Oct. 23-Nov. 21	Reverse the negative attitude that is holding you back. Expand your horizons; read; set travel plans in motion.
SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 21	There are those who expect you to fail. Surprise them. You will need nothing more than you already have.
CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 19	Consideration is the key. Elderly family members strains relationships; young one exploits it. You may be in the middle.
AQUARIUS Jan. 20-Feb. 18	Your wry sense of humor will be misconstrued. Do not allow it to dampen your spirits. Strong undercurrents may try to drag you down but your natural strength will prevail.
PISCES Feb. 19-Mar. 20	Candid talk with chosen partner is long overdue. Fortuitious development with business contact allows you to come out a winner. Do not be speculative with finances.

New discs show metal's diversity

In the Eighties, heavy-metal fragmented like a grenade. Whereas the genre was easily defined in its early years, in the person of acts like Deep Purple, Judas Priest, and the mighty Zeppelin, it has since mutated into a number of styles.

New releases from three American bands illustrate this point in typically loud fashion.

First off the block is Van Halen, a group that refused to roll over and die when singer David Lee Roth left (although some fans wish they had). Found Under Carnal Knowledge (on Warner Brothers Records)is as subtle as its title, but vocalist Sammy Hagar was never known for being tasteful. Songs like "Poundcake" and "Spanked" are smirking bits of high-gloss metal, polished to a commercial sheen.

As smooth as a new tire iron, Van Halen explode from track to track under the guidance of co-producer Ted Templeman, who made his rep with the original Van Halen. It is guitar whiz Edward Van Halen who, as usual, holds it all together — his tuneful riffs, thrown in among the bombast, elevate even the most mediocre material, of which there is plenty here (i.e. "Judgement Day" and the obvious attempt at a hit single, "Right Now."

FURY

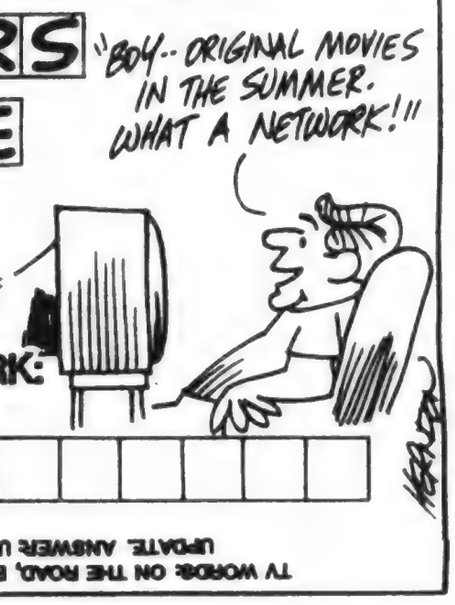
Still, there are moments: Eddie's acoustic playing on the instrumental "316"; the fury of the aforementioned "Poundcake;" and "The Dream Is Over," a semi-intelligent piece about the fading American Dream.

Anthrax isn't really louder than Van Halen, they're just noisier — which is what you want, when you're hammering out the punk/metal hybrid known as thrash.

Attack Of The Killer B's (on Island Records) is one for the fans, a collection of hard to find Anthrax material. There are songs here from guitarist Scott Ian's side project, Stormtroopers of Death. You can headbang to live versions of two cuts from the 1990 release, Persistence Of Time. Other diamonds in the rough include an updated version of the band's raunchy 1987 rap piece, "I'm The Man," and a reworking of Public Enemy's "Bring The Noise," featuring Public Enemy's Chuck D.

SURF COVER

My personal favorite is a version of the surf instrumental classic, "Pipeline," last covered by Dick Dale and the late Stevie Ray Vaughan on the soundtrack to Back To The Beach. I say favorite because it's the only track I can repeatedly listen to — the rest of Killer B's is, shall we say, most amelodic. But then, I'm not 16, fed up with school, and mad at my parents. My roots are in Sixties music, the blues-derived sound of the Stones and The Yardbirds.



That's probably why of these three new discs, I like Heartbreak Station (on Mercury/ Polygram Records) by Cinderella best of all. It's the group's third venture, and more than ever they are leaning towards a blues influence. Singer-guitarist Tom Keifer and band shake it down on clichéd but killer rockers like "The More Things Change" and "Make Your Own Way." (The latter number features no less than Ken Hensley, keyboardist with one of the most ridiculed hard rock bands of the Seventies, Uriah Heep.)

Keifer's lyrics are shopworn odes to The Road and Bad Women, but he sings from the heart, and the music is hard driving Lite Metal — it won't appease the Anthrax thrash crowd, but it crunches along better than anything by Bon Jovi, and has more guts to boot.

Obviously then, metal still rules — with or without the support of radio and video. It's just a little harder to nail down into comfortable categories.

J. L. CONVENIENCE VIDEO REVIEW

By GREG MULOCK
Managing Editor

Marked For Death

Steven Seagal is a bad dude, no question. Trouble is, I have a hard time taking this tough-guy movie star seriously, since reading a recent editorial in Gentleman's Quarterly magazine.

The editorial, prompted by Seagal's response to a recent GQ cover story about him, was unflattering but believable.

Seagal's movies, meanwhile, continue to be very unbelievable, but most flattering to their star. Marked For Death finds Seagal playing Hatcher, a retired member of the Drug Enforcement Agency. Hatcher returns to his old Chicago neighborhood to find it overrun by a gang of Jamaican drug dealers. Bet you can't guess who stands up to them (Hatcher, he be plenty bad, mon).

While better than the pathetic Hard To Kill, Marked For Death is still poor pickings, compared to Seagal's first movie, Above The Law. Seagal has a definite presence, but the story unfolds with the predictability of a TV-movie, and the fight scenes lack realism. You can also forget about characters with any credibility, in terms of being anything more than walking, talking cardboard cutouts: most exist as props to interact with the star.

Strictly for non-discriminating tastes.

The Pit And The Pendulum

Based on the Edgar Allan Poe story of the same name, and loosely so.

Set during the days of the infamous Spanish Inquisition, a young baker's wife is taken prisoner by Torquemada, the Grand Inquisitor, and charged with heresy. Torquemada wishes to have the woman tortured, to confess that she is a witch, but falls in love with her. Meanwhile, the baker breaks into the Inquisitor's fortress to free his wife.

Supposedly a horror movie, the only horror here is the script and the wooden acting. A complete joke, that even the usually fine Lance Henriksen can't save, in his role of the Inquisitor. (Henriksen played the android Bishop in Aliens, and is Brian Bosworth's nemesis in the excellent biker movie of this past spring, Stone Cold).

Yes, some of The Pit And The Pendulum is meant to be campy, but no, it doesn't work, on any level.

New season looks much like last one on CBC

BY BOB REMINGTON

CBC's new fall season can be summed up in three words: no news here.

The network has not one new comedy, drama or children's series in its recently announced fall lineup. It will, however, air a number of new TV movies and unveil an early-evening news program titled "CBC Newsmagazine." But CBC is so short of new shows for fall that it lists "the return of many successful Canadian dramas and comedies" as a "hallmark" of the coming season.

"CBC TV is the only broadcaster that truly allows Canadians to see themselves and hear the news and stories and comedies and songs that reflect this country's history and culture, problems and triumphs – not those of another nation," says Denis Harvey, vice president of English television for the CBC.

CBC programming director Ivan Fecan echoes Harvey, calling the CBC Canada's "home network."

Among the more notable movies on CBC's schedule are "Conspiracy of Silence," a film about a sensational Manitoba murder case that comes from the makers of the hit TV movie "Love and Hate," and "Bethune," starring Donald Sutherland as the famed Canadian doctor revered by the Chinese. Also coming is "Grand Larceny," a sequel to "Love and Larceny," and "Golden Fiddles," a Canada-Australia co-production starring Kate Nelligan and John Bach, who is currently seen as media baron Phillip Cromwell in CTV's "The Paper Man." Proving that there's no limit to the number of ways you can milk a hit series, CBC will also air "School's Out," a look at the gang from "Degrassi High" after graduation.

Returning series include last season's newcomers "Urban Angel" and "Northwood," as well as "Mom P.I.," "Road to Avonlea," "Max Glick," "Material World," "Kids in the Hall" and "CODCO."

CBC will return five U.S. series: "Fresh Prince of Bel Air," "The Golden Girls," "The Wonder Years," "Empty Nest" and a new-look "Designing Women" that has been recast with Jan Hooks and Julia Duffy in the wake of departures by Delta Burke and Jean Smart.

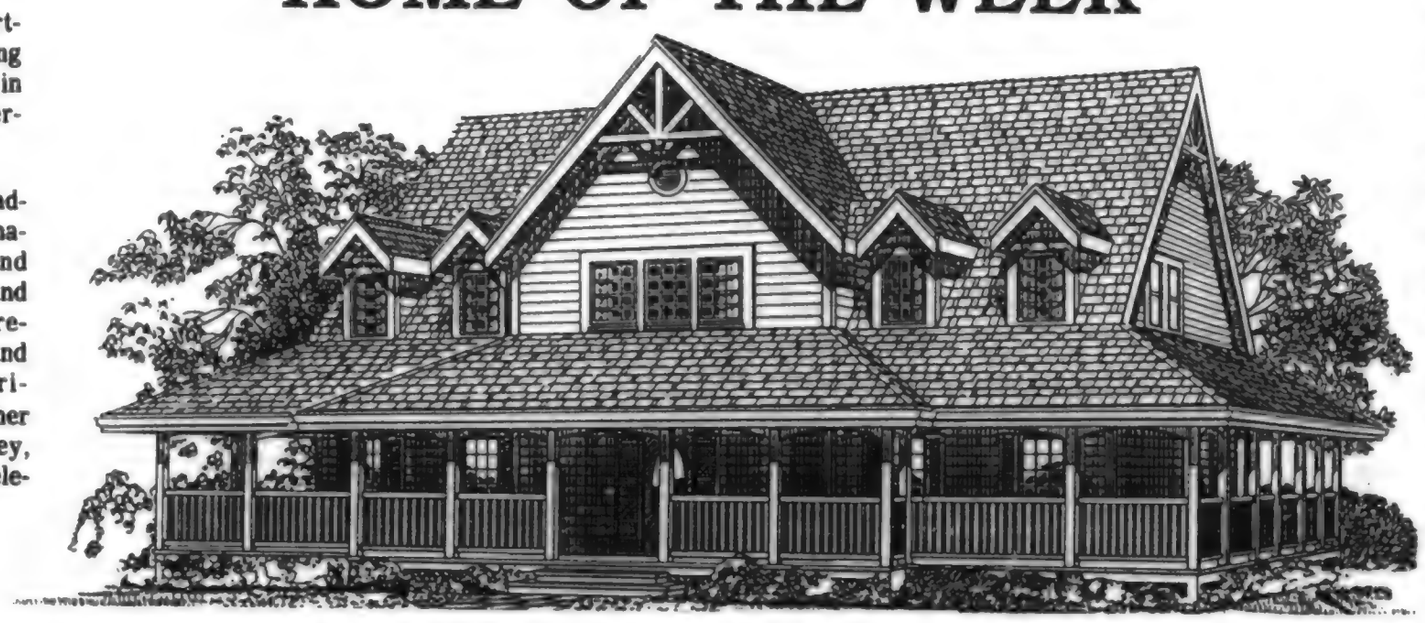
IN FOCUS

Sarah Vaughan, affectionately referred to as "Sass" by fellow jazz musicians, was an unusually private person, so there are few personal tidbits to liven up "Sarah Vaughan: The Divine One." But there are extensive full-length clips that amply demonstrate Vaughan's innate musical sense and her extraordinary voice control. This "American Masters" presentation airs Monday, July 29, on PBS.

Bakker film is repeated

BY BOB REMINGTON

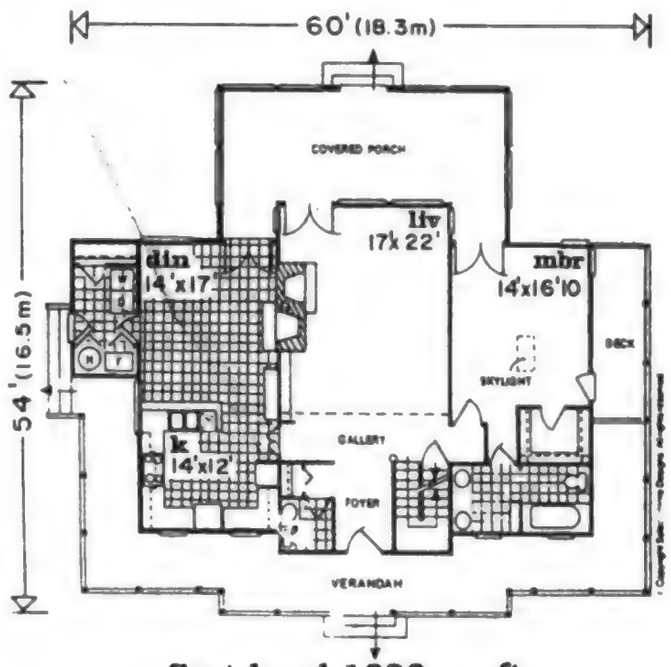
There's a great moment in "Fall From Grace" in which Kevin Spacey as Jim Bakker becomes distraught when Jerry Falwell condemns him on television.



Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye (played by Bernadette Peters), consoles him by saying, "Nobody's going to believe that."

"Yes they will," says Bakker, banging his hand on the TV screen. "People believe anything they see on that."

Considering how many people shelled out plenty to support Bakker's now-tainted TV ministry, the line has an enormous ring of truth. Yet, a bigger question when "Fall From Grace" first aired last year was whether audiences would believe Spacey and Peters as the notorious Jim and Tammy. The Bakkers were so well-known that the two actors were brave to even take on the assignment.



The movie, airing on CTV Sunday night, July 28, does not portray the Bakkers as cartoon characters, and the tendency to laugh at the TV preaching duo evaporates after about 10 minutes. Peters is especially strong as Tammy Faye in what could have turned out more like a role in a skit on "Saturday Night Live" than a serious portrayal.

Tough times have cost region $80 million, says new report

Hard times have drained the Chaleur Region's collective pockets of some $80 million in the past year.

That was the finding of a recent Chaleur Regional Development Commission report, outlining the loss of jobs and corresponding wages attributed to the recent 10-month strikes at Brunswick Mining and Smelting, and to the recession.

The report was sent to Commerce and Technology Minister Allen Maher, CRDC manager Don Bishop said.

"We expect him to be aware of the situation," he said, adding the commission hopes the economic outlook in the Chaleur region will lead Mr. Maher to accord the area "extra consideration."

The report, which Mr. Bishop noted "shows the big picture of the economy in the last 10 months," was done in response to questioning from CRDC directors and members.

Based on information gathered mainly from news reports and press releases, the report indicates that 514 jobs in mining, retail, beverages, distribution and manufacturing were lost as a result of Brunswick's labor troubles.

Using a figure of $19,132, which is the Chaleur Region's 1990 average income reported by Taxation Canada, the CRDC report lists total wages lost as $49,833,848.

Suppliers lost $30,200,000 during the same period, the CRDC report stated.

According to the report, a poor lobster season in the Chaleur Region further compounded the economic slump.

Many fishermen stopped fishing two full weeks before the end of the season because of poor markets, the report stated, adding the situation led to even less money circulating in the local economy.

Mr. Bishop pointed out the report does not take in all local business closures and job losses of the past year.

Three local companies that had purchased land in the Beresford Municipal Industrial Park changed their 1991 building plans because of the poor economic outlook, said the report.

One project in the Bathurst Regional Industrial Park has also been postponed for similar reasons.

These situations are not included in the figures reported by the CR[illegible]

Mr. Bishop no[illegible] nomic climate has led to further hardship in the community.

As mentioned in the report, volunteer organizations have not been receiving "the traditional open-ended support," and some residents have been forced to refinance their personal debt load.

Traffic was bustling on the Village Bridge Tuesday. The bridge is slated to close next Tuesday to allow Department of Transportation work crews to carry out repairs. However, the closure could be delayed or postponed because of lobbying by the City of Bathurst. (Northern Light Photo)

Bridge not closing?

The Village Bridge may not close next week for repairs after all.

City manager Bob Bouchard told The Northern Light this morning Wednesday that he was in Fredericton Tuesday, meeting with Department of Transportation officials. He was there to ask for a delay or postponement in repairs to the Village Bridge in Bathurst, in view of concerns expressed by the local business community.

Merchants fear a severe negative impact on their business, from the bridge's closure.

As of press time, Mr. Bouchard said Transportation Minister Sheldon Lee was still in meetings, discussing the request from the City of Bathurst. However, Mr. Bouchard expressed optimism that the bridge would not close.

Traffic is scheduled to be rerouted while Department of Transportation work crews carry out repairs on the bridge. The repairs are scheduled to begin next Tuesday, and to take three weeks to complete.

According to figures collected by the Downtown Bathurst Revitalization Corporation, 60 per cent of merchants surveyed would prefer to see the closure take place at a later date.

Executive director Mal Rogers said some suggested the work could be done in September, while others felt a new bridge should be built alongside the existing one, without closing it.

The DBRC would most like to see the work delayed until next year, to allow time for the economic climate to change for the better.

"You look at other economic indicators, and you see business has been suffering terribly," Mr. Rogers said.

There has been much talk about expanding the village bridge to four lanes, for which soil testing has already been done.

However, Mr. Rogers feels time is wasting.

"We've been talking about (the expansion) for a long time, but now it's crucial," he said.

Mr. Rogers is further concerned that a temporary closure of the bridge could lead to a change in consumers' shopping habits. Once they become accustomed to doing their shopping in areas other than downtown, the possibility of their continuing the pattern is high, he reasoned.

The Bathurst Chamber of Commerce is also opposed to the timing of the closure, but again, president Hugh Young feels very little can be done.

Talks with Department of Transportation officials have led the Chamber to realize the work is necessary; and Mr. Young said they were told by the department that increased traffic once school opens in September would make a closure at that time difficult.

However, merchants remain unconvinced, and unhappy with the situation.

"I'm very disappointed," said Bob Comeau, manager of Lounsbury's, on King Avenue.

"The city has suffered enough anguish over the last year (and) I think the government should take a little sympathy."

Mr. Comeau anticipates a "devastating" effect on downtown business while the bridge is closed, working an already difficult situation caused by the recession and the recent 10-month strikes at Brunswick Mining and Smelting.

Some will wait and see

Bathurst Car Wash and Convenience Store operator Jim Kinsman will wait until the Village Bridge closes before considering a plan of action.

"I'm waiting to see how this is going to affect me," he said, adding, "It's not going to help my business for sure."

The car wash and convenience outlet is situated at the end of the Village Bridge, on the corner of Main Street and St. Peter Avenue.

While Mr. Kinsman feels steady customers will probably continue to visit the store if the bridge closes for three weeks of repairs next week, he is concerned the "impulse shoppers" and tourists will bypass his store, in favor of a more convenient location.

"We depend on our summer trade," he said, adding he also feels the work should be put off for a few months.

At the other end of the bridge, Procare manager Daniel DeGrace is also playing a waiting game, preferring to see how the closure will affect him.

But he is not optimistic.

"I don't know what I'm going to do for three weeks."

Downtown merchants are not the only ones who fear the likely effects of the closure.

"It is understandable that construction repairs and maintenance are important and imperative," said Supermall manager Gwen Williston.

"However, timing would have been better suited to the retail trades on St. Peter Avenue, if this project had been slated for early spring instead of the peak of the tourist season."

"It would also be advantageous to all retailers if they could be consulted prior to any major shutdown decision of the main traffic artery."

Alternate routes laid out

The Village Bridge will sport a bright new look, if scheduled repair work goes ahead next Tuesday.

If the repairs do proceed however,, motorists travelling to and from West Bathurst will have to find an alternate route for more than three weeks.

The work to be carried out consists of re-painting the entire bridge, and replacing expansion joints that have begun to show signs of age.

The expansion joints contract and expand to give the bridge the flexibility necessary to adapt to various climatic changes. Lately, however, they have not been doing their job properly due to regular wear and tear over the years.

The bridge's new coat of paint will be its first in about a decade, and will be done on a daily basis, from morning to evening, for about three weeks.

The bridge will be closed during that time, and a detour devised.

Harborview Boulevard will be opened only to local traffic, while vehicles travelling west from downtown will be diverted along Main Street and across the Causeway Bridge.

Temporary traffic lights will be set up at the St. Anne Street and Evangeline Drive intersection, to assist the flow of traffic.

Mill talks continue with mediator

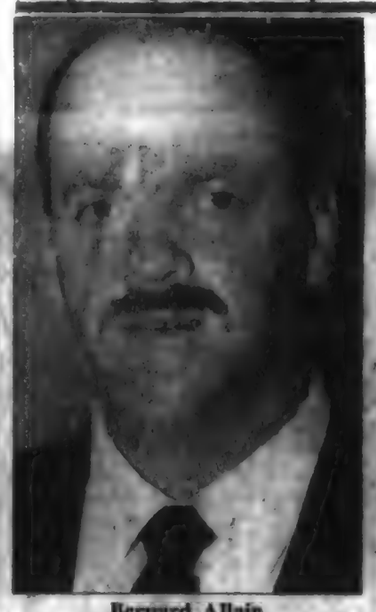
Talks continue today between Stone-Consolidated Inc. and three of its unions.

Provincial mediator Lyon Mackie told The Northern Light late Tuesday evening that the meetings will resume at Danny's Inn and Conference Centre this morning, after having begun Tuesday afternoon.

He would not divulge how the talks are progressing, he said, "we're talking; as long as we're talking it's positive."

Mr. Mackie was appointed by the provincial Department of Labor to try to bring management and the three trade unions--representing 125 workers--together in the contract disputes at the pulp and paper mill.

The unions involved are Local 1150 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 480 of the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of Pipefitters and Plumbers U.S. and Canada, and Local 1505 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.



Strike votes were taken by the unions the weekend of July 20. Local 1150 of the IBEW voted 92 per cent in favor of strike action, Local 480 of the UAJAPP voted 93 per cent in favor, and Local 1505 of the IAMAW voted 90 per cent in favor.

Mr. Mackie is here to speak with all sides involved in the dispute, to decide whether or not there is any commong ground.

Both the unions and management have been keeping mum on what the specific issues are in the contract disputes.

All three unions had voted unanimously to reject the company's contract offer on June 25.

The workers have been without a contract since June of 1990.

Bernard Allain

Allain new deputy chief

Sgt. Bernard (Bernie) Allain is the new deputy chief of the Bathurst Police Department.

The 22-year veteran of the force was officially named to the post in a release from Chief Lloyd Armstrong.

Deputy chief Allain, 45, assumes his duties immediately. He is responsible for the operational side of the Bathurst Police Department, dealing with day to day reports and activities.

He takes over from Etienne Noel, who retired in May after 31 years service as an officer with the department.

Deputy chief Allain is well known in local sporting circles as an avid softball player. He is married with two children, and lives with his family in West Bathurst.

NATURAL PEST CONTROL

Chemicals used in the garden end up as residue in home-grown vegetables. Try natural ways of controlling pests:

- Slugs and snails gather under boards at night – remove by hand in the morning.
- Stale beer in flat dish also attracts slugs and snails – they drown themselves.
- Insecticidal soap kills small soft-bodied insects such as aphids, whitefly, and spider mites.
- Garlic and cayenne sprays deter leaf-munching insects and keep larger animals away.

Irving gives its side of story

The uproar over eviction notices received by two area businessmen last week has been attributed to a lack of communication.

According to Steven Carson, property manager with Atlantic Land Dealers Ltd., which administers Irving Oil Ltd.-owned properties, someone from his office should have been available to answer questions regarding the notices.

Mr. Carson, who was in Bathurst Tuesday to meet with the disgruntled businessmen, was away on holidays when the owners of Main and King Convenience and Big Deal Produce Market received the notices, which ordered them to vacate their premises by Aug. 31.

Main and King Convenience is located on the corner of Main Street and King Avenue, a property leased by Bob Hornibrook. Big Deal Produce Market is situated on the corner of King Avenue and St. George Street, on a piece of property leased for the past 17 years by Aurele Frenette.

Mr. Carson told The Northern Light that his company wishes to level both buildings, clean up the properties, then offer them for sale. Irving gas bars were located on the sites many years ago.

He added that the plan is in accordance with Irving policies of cleaning up its old gas bar sites.

"We're not here to put small businesses out of business," he said.

Mr. Carson met with Mr. Hornibrook early Tuesday morning, and had a meeting planned with Mr. Frenette and representatives of the Downtown Bathurst Revitalization Corporation later in the day.

Mr. Hornibrook said Mr. Carson was "apologetic and more than helpful" when the two met.

"I have to say I'm quite satisfied."

Irate federal employees "fire" the P.M.

About 100 Public Service Alliance of Canada members, from the Nicolas-Denys building on Harbourview Boulevard, converged on the corner of Main Street and St. Peter Avenue at noon.

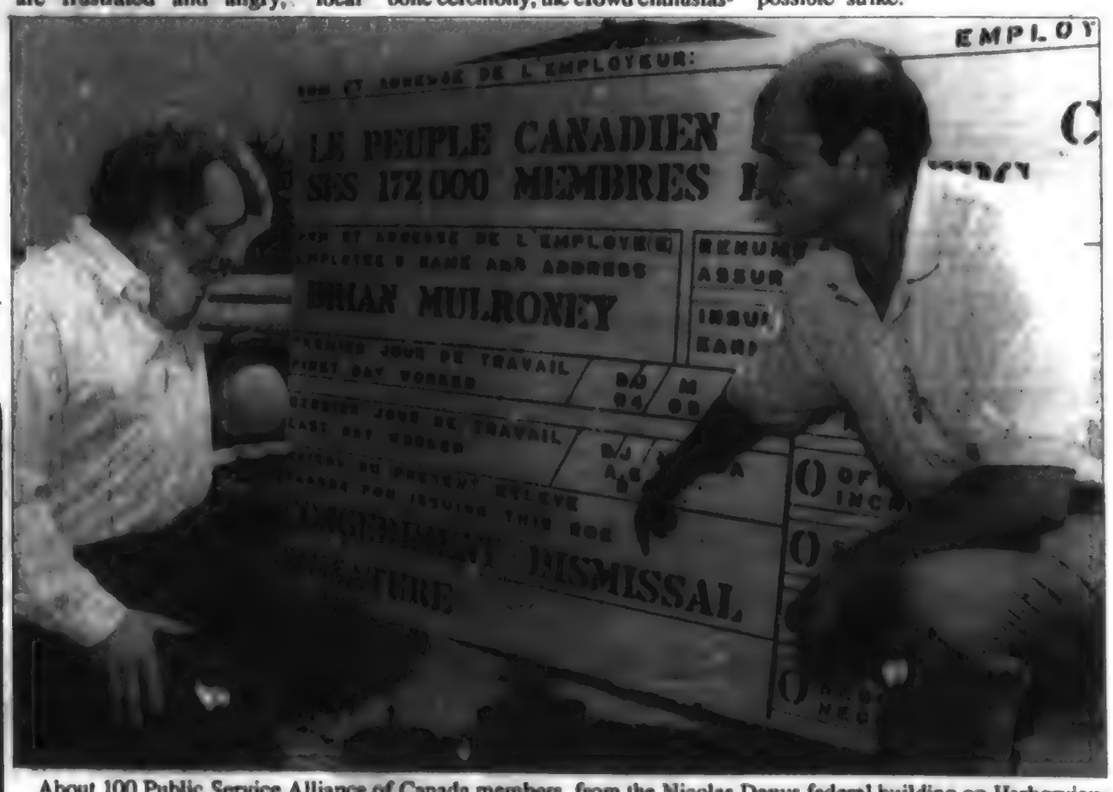
They were there to show their support of the PSAC's threat to hold a national strike that could take place later this summer.

At issue are wages; job security, including protection against contracting out of work; and equal pay for work of equal value.

"Federal public service employees are frustrated and angry," local PSAC Area Strike Coordinator Julien Pitre said in a release.

Currently, the 300 local federal employees, members of PSAC Local 60269, face a three-year wage freeze that provides zero per cent salary increases this year, and a maximum of three per cent per year for the subsequent two years.

"They're tired of a government that piles up the taxes while providing fewer and poorer services to the public."



The noon-hour demonstration was highlighted by a skit in which a union member, wearing a rubber mask to resemble Brian Mulroney, was presented with an eight-foot employment termination notice.

Getting into the spirit of the symbolic ceremony, the crowd enthusiastically booed "the Prime Minister" as a loud speaker boomed anti-Mulroney and pro-solidarity songs.

Meanwhile, the first of seven PSAC negotiating teams, representing 155,000 federal public service workers, was expected to meet with conciliation boards in Ottawa this week. A report to the union will follow the talks, Mr. Pitre told The Northern Light, adding a decision as to whether the PSAC will launch a strike could come in mid-August.

Tuesday's protest, dubbed National Day of Solidarity, was mirrored by thousands of union members across Canada, who participated in similar activities in support of a possible strike.

Postal workers fed up, still no contract

Local postal workers are not backing down in their efforts to secure a new collective agreement.

"We have been working now for two years without a new collective agreement, and three years without a wage increase," Bob Dunn, president of Local 12 of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said in a release.

"We have to get a real increase in pay for those years."

Local 12 represents 34 Canada Post employees in Bathurst.

On the national front, the 46,000-member union could be in a strike position within two weeks, national union leader Darrell Tingley said in a published news report.

A strike was expected nine months ago, when 84 per cent of the national union membership voted in favor of such action.

However, the federal government appointed a conciliation board at that time, to try to bridge the gap between Canada Post and its unionized employees. A conciliator's report is expected in the near future.

Despite conciliation efforts, however, the union feels Canada Post has yet to negotiate in good faith.

"They've never negotiated until we're down to the crunch, when we're ready to strike," Mr. Dunn said.

Among the major issues that may lead the union to strike are service to the community, proper staffing and job security.

"Cutbacks in jobs and service is another government attack on the fabric of Canadian society," Mr. Dunn said in the release.

"The protection of our jobs is closely linked with the privatization of Canada, not just the post office. The selling off of Canadian work to the corporate friends of government is simply (Prime Minister) Brian Mulroney's cheap labor strategy."

Mr. Dunn said the Bathurst union members are still upset about the 1990 opening of a privatized postal outlet at a local shopping mall. Should a strike take place, that outlet will be a focus of picketing efforts.

Development possible for monument site

Details have yet to be finalized, but the area where the Nicolas Denys Monument sits may become a Silver Jubilee project.

According to Mal Rogers, executive director of the Downtown Bathurst Revitalization Corporation, the site area could make the ideal project to commemorate the city's 25th anniversary.

About 60 years ago, the area located at the corner of Main and St. George Streets, where the momnument now stands, was equipped with a watering trough for horses, and recent work around the site has unearthed old water pipes used to fill those troughs.

The DBRC, through its summer works program, was in the process of digging up the area to install brick sidewalks all around when the discovery was made, and a few phone calls confirmed the watering trough theory.

Mr. Rogers said preliminary plans are to enlarge the area, add granite curbs, a seating area, lighting, possibly a drinking fountain, and maybe even another monument or area to display old photographs of the site. The Nicolas Denys Monument will not be disrupted.

The DBRC is presently searching for old photographs of the site, and anyone with any knowledge of same is asked to contact him at 548-8000.

Bathurst Farmers' Market celebrates its 30th year

In honor of the occasion, birthday cake will be served during regular market hours, from 8 a.m. until noon, said a release.

The Bathurst Farmers' Market, located off Munro Street, opened for the 1991 season in May. It has been a favorite meeting spot for local residents and tourists since 1961, with its ample supply of fresh vegetables, home baking, crafts, European eat, and fresh fish. The market even has its own cookbook for sale, comprised of favorite recipes from past and present vendors, and a detailed history of the market.

The current executive of the Bathurst Farmers' Market is comprised of Don MacMinn, president; Dorothy Knowles, vice-president; Lois Archibald, secretary; Vivian Howatt, trasurer; Robert Branch, table coordinator; and Linda Monette, advertising.

Bryanna White acts as an ambassador for the city's many tourist attractions while at the helm of the Phantom Tourist Tracker. The Tracker's flashing lights may be a surprise to some unsuspecting tourists, but once they pull over, the warm welcome they receive is well worth it.

Phantom Tourist Tracker is back

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

Every weekday in Bathurst, an unassuming tourist is chased through the city streets.

No one likes to see the glare of flashing lights while driving along, looking for the next tourist attraction or a place to stop and rest.

But the flashing lights that target only out-of-province visitors are of a different kind.

They're the ones atop the Phantom Tourist Tracker van, part of a promotion spearheaded by the city's Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism.

At the wheel is city summer tourist coordinator Bryanna White, a personable young lady whose last thought is to hand out parking tickets; she's too busy handing out gift packages and a warm, welcoming smile to the city's Tourist of the Day.

"A lot of people think I'm an official; they think they did something wrong," Bryanna said last Friday, when The Northern Light accompanied her on her regular morning tourist hunt.

She is also a second-year tourist tracker, having hooked into the program when it was first implemented last summer.

The objective of the promotion is to give tourists a taste of Bathurst hospitality, enticing them to stay longer in the area, and to hopefully tell their friends all about the Home of the Phantom Ship.

It seems no one could do so more effectively than Bryanna does.

"I enjoy it," she said, driving along St. Peter Avenue Friday morning, scanning license plates for a potential target.

It's difficult to imagine her not enjoying her work, which starts shortly before 9 a.m.

Her first daily task is to organize the package of goodies provided by more than 20 local sponsors; everything from baseball caps and T-shirts to soda pop and gift certificates, with a weekly grand prize of a night's accomodation at a local establishment.

She also has to pack a log sheet to record exactly whom she stops and where they're from. That information is then passed on to the public via local AM radio station CKBC, which provides the van.

Once she hits the road, she has about a half hour to find her Tourist of the Day, but it generally doesn't take that long.

"They're everywhere," she said, adding visitors from neighboring provinces such as Quebec and Nova Scotia are the most prevalent.

She has also stopped a few tourists from the Unites States and, earlier this summer, tracked down visitors from South Africa and Switzerland.

POSTCARD

Some offer to return the favor by inviting Bryanna to visit them if she ever happens to find herself in their area; and at least one has sent her a postcard after having been the Tourist of the Day.

Generally, the feedback has been positive, meaning Bryanna has accomplished her ambassadorial task.

"They're actually very impressed with the existence of such a program," she said.

They're usually surprised as well, as was proven Friday morning, after just a few minutes on the road.

Driving along St. Peter Avenue, a license plate is spotted in the next lane. Ontario. Bryanna allows the vehicle to pass hers, and then springs into action.

The flashing lights are switched on, the speed increases slightly, and the chase is on.

"I just follow them until they stop," she said with a laugh, as the vehicle continued along its way, its occupants seemingly oblivious to the commotion behind them.

Bryanna pulls in alongside her Tourist of the Day, hopping out of the Phantom Tourist Tracker with a beaming smile and an armload of gifts.

Friday, she stopped Dawson and Lorraine Sealy of Elliot Lake, Ont., in Bathurst for a month to take in the sights and take part in a family reunion for the descendants of Mr. Sealy's great-grandfather, Robert Sealy.

Bryanna discovers the couple is originally from Bathurst, and plans to move back here next year.

"That's how much we like it," Mrs. Sealy said.

"There's no place like home, you know."

As expected, they and their 13-year-old daughter, Sasha, and 5-year-old son, Scott, were not quite sure who was chasing them, and why.

"Our daughter said, 'The lights are flashing back there, pull over,'" said Mrs. Sealy.

As for her husband, he felt fairly certain he hadn't done anything wrong, and after a quick glance in the rearview mirror, was convinced he wasn't in any sort of trouble with the law.

"I knew it wasn't an official, driving a Toyota."

After loading them with up with gifts and a hearty welcome to the region, Bryanna hops back into the Phantom Tourist Tracker.

PRACTICE

It's time to report in to the radio station, and Bryanna is as much at ease doing that as she is greeting tourists.

"It comes with practice; I'm not nervous," she said.

According to local tourism and visitor services coordinator Michel Doucet, Bryanna's outgoing personality was a prime factor when the city decided to hire her.

Whether she will return to the job next summer remains to be seen, but she would probably not object should the opportunity arise.

"(There is) a great personal satisfaction," she said, adding, "I'm welcoming visitors and promoting the city."

Beresford mayor hopeful after meetings

Beresford Mayor Real Boudreau's trip to Fredericton last week provided some hope for the town's beach and traffic light plans.

"It will take a bit of time, but I'm hopeful," he said Monday, referring to his quest for government funding in relation to a proposed beach development study.

Based on information he received from representatives of the Department of Tourism, Recreation and Heritage, Mr. Boudreau feels confident funds will be forthcoming to pay for the feasibility study, perhaps as early as this fall.

"We'll keep up the pressure, so they don't forget us," he added.

Meanwhile, it will be up to the town to conduct its own study before implementing a plan to install traffic lights on Highway 134.

Mr. Boudreau's meeting with governmentofficials held "no surprises," in this regard, the mayor said.

The business of installing traffic lights is a complicated one, involving strict federal standards.

Because of this, Mr. Boudreau acknowledged no town council "in its right mind" would set up traffic lights without ensuring the standards can be met, through a complete and concise feasibility study.

Such a study would cost some $15,000, and the matter will be discussed at a future town council meeting.

Following the Fredericton meetings, Mr. Boudreau travelled to Woodstock for some rest and recreation, on the invitation of Woodstock mayor Harold Culbert.

"It was rather relaxed," he said of his trip, adding his only official function was an address to the Woodstock town council.

"I spoke to them for five minutes, about the environment and the (Nepisiguit-Chaleur Solid Waste Commission) landfill site."

Mr. Boudreau is president of the commission.

Mr. Culbert, who was in Beresford in 1989 as part of a Beresford-Woodstock cultural exchange, will pay a return visit at a later date, Mr. Boudreau said.

Tourists visiting the Bathurst area have more to look forward to than just the many attractions the Home of the Phantom Ship has to offer. They also stand a good chance of being named Tourist of the Day, if Summer Tourism Coordinator Bryanna White spots them in her Phantom Tourist Tracker van. Tracked down last Friday was the family of Dawson and Lorraine Sealy of Elliot Lake, Ontario. From left are city tourism and visitor services Coordinator Michel Doucet, Bryanna, and Mrs. and Mr. Sealy.

Love of sewing led to art of dollmaking

By MICHAEL J. BOURGUIGNON
Northern Light Staff

Dollmaking is an art that simply requires imagination.

"Oh yes, and patience; that's another virtue," noted Mildred Kennedy. She should know: she has spent countless hours over the last 13 years, bent over her sewing machine, creating rabbits, babies and brides.

They are all of the stuffed variety, of course; Mrs. Kennedy, who is the wife of Joe Kennedy of South Bathurst, isn't quite sure just how many dolls she has collected or made over the years, but there are "at least 200."

One cannot help but feel watched upon entering the small, quaint Kennedy home on Church Street; every room is dominated by dolls of every shape and size. The walls are largely adorned with embroidery and other stitched items — also products of Mrs. Kennedy's talents.

Some of the dolls look less than impressive, but those are the ones brought to Mrs. Kennedy to mend, repair, redesign or clothe.

Aside from those, some of the dolls have been bought at garage sales over the years, and adorned with clothing Mrs. Kennedy made herself. Others are birthday or Christmas gifts from family and friends, but most are the product of Mrs. Kennedy's own snipping, stuffing and stitching.

"It's just something to pass the time," she said in an interview with The Northern Light.

"It's also good for the nerves."

The hobby sprouted from Mrs. Kennedy's love of sewing, which was passed on to her and her siblings from her mother.

Mrs. Kennedy excused herself briefly to fetch the first doll she ever made. Tall, dressed in the style of yesteryear, the little girl is all beauty and flair.

She has weathered the years remarkably well, though Mrs. Kennedy refers to her as "looking a little worse for wear."

MANY MORE

But no matter; she was the first of a rich lineage. In the years since she was crafted, many more like her have been given as gifts, or have stayed behind, like the little girl herself, to adorn her creator's home.

Some have made their way, in the hands of appreciative friends, as far as the United States and France. Those that have carry a small tag graced with Mildred Kennedy's name — to let admirers know exactly where they came from.

The average doll takes about a day to make, from scratch; there is no pattern. Mrs. Kennedy simply goes out to buy the necessary materials: cloth, polyester stuffing, plastic or ceramic heads and limbs.

She makes the rest of the process — the actual meat and potatoes of dollmaking — sound easy.

"You cut out the body, stuff it and attach the head and hands."

Not to mention the hair and the often intricate costumes Mrs. Kennedy dreams up for her dolls.

It's a skill almost anyone can learn, she suggested.

Sentenced to 30 days

A man charged with breaking into Keddy's Hotel and Convention Centre earlier this year was sentenced to 30 days in jail Monday.

Marcel Bourgoin, 24, of Beresford, changed a previous plea to guilty on the charge of break, enter and theft, during a June 5 provincial court appearance.

He also faced two charges of stealing money from Keddy's; however, those charges were dropped. Instead, he was charged with causing damage to property not exceeding $1,000.

On the latter charge, Provincial Court Judge J. Frederic Arsenault sentenced Bourgoin to a 15-day jail term, to be served concurrently with the 30-day sentence for break, enter and theft. Bourgoin had caused the damage to a safe.

In addition, Bourgoin was placed on two years' probation, and ordered to pay a total of $1,400 restitution to Keddy's, as well as $70 in surcharges.

The surcharges go to the victims of crime fund, which is a fund set up to help those who are victimized by crime in New Brunswick.

Fire is under investigation

The Bathurst Fire Department continues to investigate the cause of a fire late Friday night at the former Iceberg ice cream bar atop Tetegouche Hill.

According to Chief Brian O'Neil, arson has not been ruled out.

The fire caused only minor damage to the establishment, and took only five minutes to get under control.

Awards night

Five Beresford residents will be honored with New Brunswick Day Merit Awards Aug. 5, for outstanding contributions to their community.

A jury comprised of Beresford Mayor Real Boudreau and fellow citizens will decide today which individuals will be so honored at a special ceremony, scheduled for next Monday, New Brunswick Day, at the Beresford Municipal Building beginning at 7 p.m.

According to jury spokesman René Roussel, the awards will be presented to nominees chosen from each of five categories.

Pamphlets were distributed throughout the community seeking nominations for the Merit Awards.

Foreign investment is on the upswing

Vic Parsons

By VIC PARSONS
Ottawa Bureau
Thomson News Service

Trade is the glamorpuss of international economics these days, but a lesser-known cousin, foreign investment, will come under closer scrutiny in future.

Because of that, there's increasing urgency to set up rules to govern country-to-country investment flows, and some sort of agency to monitor them.

The fact is foreign direct investment grew in the last decade at a considerably faster pace then international trade. A study prepared for Investment Canada says global flows of investment money rose an average 20 per cent a year between 1983 and 1988. World trade, by comparison, increased at an annual rate of five per cent.

The working paper, done by Ottawa-based Strategico Inc., notes that most of this flow is among industrial countries. Indeed, the five largest economic powers — the United States, Japan, Germany, Britian and Fance — accounted for 75 per cent of the flow in 1988.

Moreover, the driving force for international investment was the service sector. About 58 per cent of japan's foreign investment three years ago, for example, was directed at service industries.

The dismantling of the Soviet bloc is focusing greater attention on investment. Major industrial powers emphasized at recent summits that foreign investment can help rebuild the economies of Central and Eastern Europe, as well as the developing world.

WANTS INVESTMENT

It was no surprise, then, that when Mikhail Gorbachev came to the London Summit looking for Western aid for his beleaguered economy, part of his request centred on investment. At least one Canadian firm has taken the bait — Gulf Canada Resources will invest $250 million in an oil field venture. The Soviets also want money to transform hundreds of weapons factories into producers of consumer goods.

Despite these developments, investment gets relatively short shrift. Foreign investment is well out of the spotlight in the current round of trade talks under the GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade).

That's doesn't mean it has been ignored altogether. A GATT group is looking at investment measures that restrict and distort international trade.

There's also s split between industrial countries and the developing world. Third World countries such as Brazil and India want limits on foreign investment so they are able to direct their economic development.

This is understandable. it wasn't long ago that Canada closely monitored foreign investments and takeovers, and we still retain the general principle that investment should benefit the country. Occasionally, this doctrine is even taken seriously — the latest instance being Ottawa's spurning of the first takeover offer of aircraft manufacturer de havilland Ltd. by a joint French-Italian consortium.

U.S. RESTRICTIONS

Even world bastions of private enterprise are not immune to restrictions. There's a gorwing uproar in the U.S. about foreign ownership and Japan, notably, has complained about rising U.S. protectionism against its investors. Protected areas in the U.S. include transportation and telecommunications.

Against this background, the study for Investment Canada, which the agency stresses is not necessarily its opinion, suggests options for negotiating a new multilaterial investment agreement.

The prime choice, the study says, would be a new World Trade Organization, a notion proposed by Canada in 1990. Canada has argued there is serious doubt that existing GATT structures can cope with future trade and investment relations.

The new organization could oversee the development of an investment code integrated with international trade rules, the Strategico paper says. Dispute settlement could be based on precedents offered by GATT or the Canada-U.S. trade agreement. (The second is no surprise, in that Strategico's head is Gordon Ritchie, Canada's deputy chief negotiator on the ETA.)

Why now?

Summer is in full swing, and local merchants are geared up for a little extra business. Hopefully they will get it, as the past 12 months have been a disaster for many, due to our poor economic climate i.e. the lengthy strike for Brunswick Mining and Smelting, the recession, labor unrest at Stone Consolidated Inc. etc.

However, bad times are still upon the business community. We refer to the upcoming closure of the Village Bridge for repairs—three weeks of rerouted traffic, at the height of the tourist season. Whether someone is from Caraquet or California, it' s unlikely a lengthy wait in summer traffic will leave a positive memory of Bathurst.

How much more can the business community sustain? The bridge closure will negatively impact businesses in the downtown core and along our golden mile, St. Peter Avenue. Realistically, the bridge needs repairs (it actually needs replacing, but that is another topic for another day). But why now? Can the work not be postponed until September or October? Or better yet, next year, according to the Downtown Bathurst Revitalization Corporation.

The DBRC wants to address city council, to ask them to lobby the Department of Transportation, to have the work delayed a year. This would give the local economy time to recover.

Thankfully, City Hall is already on top of the situation. According to informed sources, the city manager was in Fredericton Tuesday, seeking an attentive ear about the bridge dilemma. This is good to see, and let us hope he is not fighting this battle alone. That is, one can only assume he has the full support of MLAs from this area, because that is their job, and they should be in the fray feet first. More and more grumblings are being heard about how the Bathurst area has long voted Liberal, with very little to show for it, from past and present Liberal governments.

Here's a chance for our MLAs to show us, in a very small way, that the government they belong to does not take the area's tradition of Grit red for granted.

Miramichi got our bridge monies

July 30

Dear Editor,

Sitting at the Wandlyn Motel dining room, reading the July 16, 1991 Telegraph Journal issue, I cannot help but be impressed with the "buzz" of activity in Newcastle. Across the street, a multi-million dollar building is being constructed to lease space to the province. Adjacent to this building, a new multi-million dollar wharf is being built. Then, down the street behind the town hall, a new library is under construction. Today's paper announces a new bridge from Newcastle to Nelson, expected to cost $20 to 25 million.

I was told that 43 per cent of the cost of the library is municipal; I can only speculate the total amount of federal and provincial monies, but $40 million cannot be unreasonable. This influx is a tidy sum, considering the size of this town.

What about the city of Bathurst? The loyal tranquil supporters of this province's ruling political party have been steadfast in their enthusiasm, in good times as well as bad for 50 years. When will we be able to speculate whether the city will have a much-needed civic centre, or a wide Village Bridge? After all, is it not obvious to everyone that the Village Bridge is the busiest bridge in the province, yet the need for renovation was by passed in favor of the Nelson-Newcastle bridge, "which creates a major bottleneck for truck traffic"(July 16, 1991 Telegraph Journal)?

For the present, it seems evident that the only "game in town" is the upcoming Liberal nomination convention, which will choose Bathurst's next important community leader. It is truly important that everyone from this city think above and beyond their usual political persuasion, to help in the choice of the right person, who will lead Bathurst in its quest for fair treatment.

It is nothing less than incredible, that the major financial achievement for the city for the last 20 years has probably been the renovations to the county courthouse, promised for at least as many years.

Only a social democratic system will work

July 29

Dear Editor,

In your last Editor's Mailbag, there was mention of double taxation by a writer. He was modest — as consumers, we're the victims of multiple taxation.

Over the past eight years, there appears to have been a vast increase in secrecy in our municipal, provincial and federal governments. A parallel awareness of corruption also appears. The electorate is at last becoming painfully conscious that We The People should be the governments at the three levels. Elected leaders, all appointed courts, our police forces, etc. have lost credibility. It's a disastrous problem now.

The failure of our political system is caused by our antiquated Victorian concept, which has never worked in Canada. We have government for, by and of the wealthy. We live it. Billionnaires and millionnaires control the limited money supply, thus creating the constant struggle for equality of the masses.

People who have entered politics and then left quickly did so because they had a conscience, were sincerely interested in the welfare of the electorate - but they could not function. The system has become dehumanized, and it will be difficult to break the stranglehold of the rich who are supposed to administer our affairs, because a wrong system means money talks, and not society. The value of humans is based on what one is, and not what one possesses. At the moment, I would state that 90 per cent of our politicians can't be trusted, because their priority is having both hands in the public purse.

We have proof. Over 34 taxes have been either introduced or increased since 1984. The reason is clear. When the national debt goes from $140 billion to almost $400 billion in eight years, it tells us that our politicians are wasting our money, are overpaid, are self-strangulated by the immense burden of a bureaucracy gone out of control.

Those who preach that Canada lives in complete freedom are the richer group who do not want anyone to "rock the boat". Something is very wrong when Canada has a million children who try to go to school hungry. Our province has at least 38,000 hungry children, like those who go to school without breakfast!

Dictatorship is alive and well. The sevent per cent GST (which we knew we couldn't afford) was dictated over an opposition of 86 per cent of our population. The solution? Do away with the two old governments and the Senate.

That would be a start. Only a social democratic system can save Canada. So please, all you voters: express your views and expose corruption. The very existence of Canada is at stake. Last chance to act.

The Moving Finger Writes

Events from the archives of The Northern Light

70 YEARS AGO
July 1921

Power from the new hydro-electric plant of the Bathurst Company Limited at Nepisiguit Grand Falls was turned on for the first time this afternoon.

One year and 10 months ago this great scheme of development was undertaken. At the time of commencement it was predicted that the work would be finished in 18 months but untoward difficulties with the water created a delay.

Incidentally the estimated cost of the plant proved excessively low, the original figure being a million dollars, and it is now asserted that the actual cost of the completed work will approximate a million and three quarters.

As it is today, the new power plant represents one of the biggest development schemes undertaken in the Maritime Provinces.

60 YEARS AGO

After being closed down for nearly two years the brick manufacturing plant of Joseph Tondreau, West Bathurst, has again started to make brick. New machinery of the modern type has been installed and an up-to-date brick burning kiln is now nearing completion the cost of which will exceed $3000.

Now that the plant has been modernized, a far superior quality brick will be manufactured here thereby enabling Mr. Tondreau to successfully compete with other firms.

Contracts for 60,000 bricks for the Royal Bank and 80,000 for the new school now being erected in Dalhousie have been awarded to the local firm.

Prohibition of the sale, delivery and distribution of gasoline and oil to motorists from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. weekdays and for all of Sunday were announced by G.R. Cotrelle, federal oil controller. The order, effective throughout Canada, was coupled with an appeal to citizens to cooperate against a serious shortage by cutting the use of their cars 50 per cent.

Authorization for an increase of one cent a gallon for gasoline was also annouced.

Use of credit cards is prohibited as gasoline and oil must be sold on a cash-and-carry basis only.

40 YEARS AGO
July 1951

The presence of early morning frost in Bathurst on two occasions this week was reported by a citizen who stated the occurrence at this time of year to be the earliest in his recollection of the past half-century. The first instancem it was stated, was on Monday morning, July 28, and the second time was on the day following.

Hail, in some places one and a half feet deep, fell at the Oliver's Garden last Friday night. The freak storm occurred about 7 p.m. and the Oliver's thought their greenhouse glass would be shattered but no damage resulted. Twelve hours later the pellets were still as solid as when they fell from the sky. Cletus Doucet, an Oliver employee, claimed the florist's property appeared to be a target as just a few yards away only a heavy rain fell.

Coincident with the shifting and building of the highway on King Avenue, South Bathurst extension, Doucet's Landscaping Ltd. has also done some building and moving. The firm now has a new office and apartment building of modern and attractive design.

When the company finds time to take a busyman's holiday and do a little landscaping for themselves, the property will be that much more of an asset and improvement to the local scene.

Talk On The Walk

Question: What are your alternate commuting plans, in view of the Village Bridge closing next Tuesday for three weeks of repairs? What do you think about the closure itself?

Stéphane Hachey
Bathurst

"I don't like this situation because going around the Causeway will interfere with my business-related travels. I'm not sure how it's going to work out during those three weeks."

Ann Hatheway
Bathurst

"It will be an inconvenience for everybody, especially for the tourists. The city should build a new bridge or fix it for good."

Ricky Francoeur
Lorne

"It's very simple: if the city would fix the bridge once and for all and make it last, we would not have to put up with the inconvenience."

Lynn Hachey
North Teteagouche

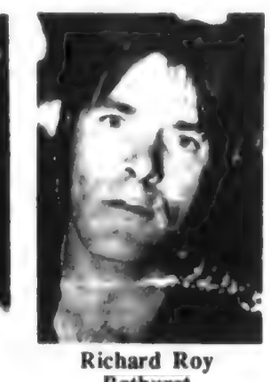
"I don't go through the Village Bridge much, since I use the Causeway bridge, but it will be too busy to use it while the repairs are being done.

Blair MacTavish
Bathurst

"It will create a lot of unwanted traffic on Riverside (Drive). It's a residential area which is not designed for the extra circulation."

Jocelyne Doucet
Bathurst

"Repairing the Village Bridge will be an inconvenience, but there's not much choice to close it every summer unless a new bridge is built."



Tammy Boucher
Beresford

"It's bad enough that we have to put up with a single-lane bridge when going into town; this will take up too much time when traveling."

Allan Nöel
Bathurst

"I will be making less trips to town, but the city should stop spending money on this continuous expense--they should invest into a four-lane bridge.

Richard Roy
Bathurst

"I guess it is better to repair the bridge now before it falls apart. They better get the job done by the fall, since it's bad news for bus drivers, among others."

Carey supported on his flag stance

July 30

Dear Editor,

The overwelming response to the flag issue from both English and French has been heartwarming and restored faith in Canadians. However, this issue has not been buried. We were again approached to compromise our stand.

Careys' will not waver from what we believe to be a true and just issue. Where would Canada be today if brave men and women in our armed forces wavered in their duty throughout history? Those responsible for this incident dishonor the memory of these brave men and women of all walks of life.

Freedom is not free. Sometimes great risks and sacrifices must be made to defend and preserve it. Carey's are willing, along with all of you majority, and the will of God, to stand firm to protect our flags and all that they represent.

We call upon Frank McKenna, Frank Branch, Doug Young, Mayor Kevin Mann, Bathurst city council, Bob Hornibrook, Ms. Mersereau, etc. to come forward and let the Canadian people know where they stand on this human rights issue. We will no longer accept politicians who are only visible at times of elections, with eloquently-written speeches and promises.

If Canada is to advance into the 21st century with dignity and respect to the world, Canada must practice what they preach. Our hat is off to only two exceptional politicians, Harvey Boucher and Claire Wilt, Bathurst city council members who came forward with support which we were very much in need of. Councillor Wilt even offered to replace the stolen flag.

We thank the RCMP for their security, fairness, understanding and assistance. The Acadian people are rich with culture, and have a proud heritage which embellishes the Acadian Peninsula with many benefits. And they have the same rights as the rest of us, to live and prosper. To deny one Canadian their rights is to deny all Canadians their rights.

Duguay enjoyed Miss NB Pageant

Sylvie Duguay is not going to forget the 1991 Miss New Brunswick Pageant.

The Grade 12 Bathurst High School student, the current Miss Beresford, represented her town at the provincial pageant in Woodstock July 23.

"It's an experience no one should pass up, and I'll never forget it. I was one of the lucky ones to go," she said during a recent interview.

Sylvie, the 17-year-old daughter of Eldon and Noella Duguay, left for the gala event July 17, and almost immediately began preparing for the big night with 24 other girls from around the province. Up at 6:30 a.m. every morning, the girls practised almost continuously until July 19, when the first of many official appearances began.

Things started with an interview with judges, worth 25 points towards the title of Miss New Brunswick. A fashion show on Main Street, in conjunction with Old Home Week, culminated the day's activities.

The talent portion of the contest, worth another 25 points, was held July 20 and saw Sylvie perform the Bette Midler song "From a Distance."

A pool party and supper at the pageant chairman's home on the weekend provided the contestants with some much-needed down time from the hectic pace.

"The girls didn't have to worry about anything and had a good time," she said.

The night of the pageant itself saw the girls take to the stage in evening gowns and swimsuits. Those two segments were worth 15 points each, with another 10 points awarded overall before judges sat down and selected its eight finalists, who were then asked to answer a question worth a final 10 points.

Although she didn't win a title, she didn't leave empty-handed.

"I'm not shy anymore; you can't be when you're at one of these," she said.

McColm on stage

Who says you can't go home again?

Ken McColm felt like he was home again Monday night, on stage at the Yuk Yuk's comedy club in Toronto.

Ken, a blind writer in the middle of a cross-Canada walk for diabetes research, was asked to perform at the club, as part of his public relations activity in Toronto. Now a resident of Bathurst, he used to perform at Yuk Yuk's when he was attending university in Toronto.

In an interview last week, Ken said his appearance Monday was scheduled to be filmed by a CTV television crew.

Ken's cross-country trek, dubbed the Incredible Journey, has now raised in excess of $100,000. He hopes to raise one million dollars by the time his trip wraps up in British Columbia in December.

Ken hopes to turn his experiences on the Incredible Journey into a book, and he's certainly finding plenty of good material in Ontario. He said last week that on July 25, he was made an official town crier for the town of Bellevue.

He also rode in an armored personnel carrier at Canadian Forces Base Kingston, and at Kingston's city hall, he was given the opportunity to play the bagpipes.

Break and enters continue

A rash of break, enter and thefts continue to haunt the Bathurst City Police, with three more reported this week.

A radio and an undisclosed amount of tools were stolen from Rendor Sales on Main Street late Thursday night or early Friday morning, and cigarettes and cash were discovered missing from Young's Canteen on Hillside Drive Sarturday morning.

Hot Dog 2000 was broken into late Sunday night or early Monday morning.

Sgt. Bernie Allain told The Northern Light Tuesday that all incidents are still under investigation by the police department.

Investigations continue as well in relation to seven other robberies reported last week.

Anyone with information regarding any of these crimes, contact the Bathurst City Police at 548-0420 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477.

Workers need a chance

July 29

Dear Editor,

There is still talk about a possible strike in region.

I hope this time that Mr. (Mike) McKee won't bury his head in the sand like an ostridge for 10 months like he did recently.

As a matter of fact I think his head has been buried for the last four years. If he doesn't wake to reality, he might suffocate.

I know that he and our premier are not too fond of organized labor, but they'll have to accept the fact that organized labor is here to stay, no matter what.

We just had proof that they are against organized labor by freezing the public sector's wages, breaking their contracts and trying to blame this on the lack of transfer payments and the recession.

I am convinced that if they would have implemented anti-scab legislation, they wouldn't have had to freeze wages. Millions and millions of tax revenue was lost due to those lengthy strikes across the province, crippling the economy of the province due mainly to thir stubbornness to implement that law. Mr. McKee said over and over that we in this province don't need such a law.

I think it's absolutely ridiculous we have the proof that in Quebec there is approximately 30 per cent less strikes since they implemented anti-scab legislation. Why? Because management is more willing to sit at the table and negotiate in a more civilized manner.

Our government is aware I'm sure, that we in the private sector have to sit at the table and negotiate — we don't get automatic pay raises and pensions after 13 years of service like our elected officials. It's about time that our Minister of Labor wakes up and gives the workers at least half a chance at the negotiation table.

Grocery store loss is lamented

Sitting Back
With GREG MULOCK
Personal opinion from the managing editor

What now for the downtown core?

That's what many people are wondering with the news last week, that the Big Deal market must leave its present premises, by order of the property's leaseholder.

"We've lost a liquor store, department store, and now the grocery store," said a lady who called me last week.

She was lamenting the fact that in the past 10 years, the Downtown has seen the loss of a New Brunswick Liquor Commission outlet on Main Street; the closure and levelling of the W.J. Kent and Co. department store; and the loss of a grocery store (first Mr. Grocer, then White's Grocery, and now perhaps Big Deal, pending what the owner, Aurele Frenette, decides to do).

The woman noted many downtown residents do not drive; for them, having a grocery store within walking distance is a great convenience.

"You can do without liquor, but you can't do without food, without basic staples," she said, wondering if a downtown grocery store is in the future.

HERO

Mr. and Mrs. Clement White of Bathurst are particularly proud these days of a grandson in the Fredericton area, who is a frequent visitor to Bathurst.

Young Josh Hambrook was recently given a Scouts Canada Certificate of Meritorious Conduct, in recognition of his mature and responsible actions, in a life-threatening situation.

The eight-year-old cub scout called 911 on his mother's instructions, after she suffered a stroke. According to a story in the Fredericton Daily Gleaner newspaper, Josh calmly and efficiently told the operator what had happened, relayed messages to his mother, followed instructions, and reassured his six-year-old brother, while waiting for the police and ambulance to arrive.

The incident occurred at 2 a.m. while Josh's dad was away on a business trip. Josh had been dreaming that his mother was calling him when he woke up.

Josh's mom is the former Brenda White, who was born and raised here. Her folks (Josh's grandparents) say she is doing fine, having fully recovered from the stroke.

Boy saved from drowning

Silver Points
By SONIA-SIMARD CORMIER
News from 25 years ago.

Aug. 4, 1966

Although I generally try to concentrate on events or occurrences taking place within the city limits, sometimes it's important to talk about the major employers in the region, as hundreds of their employees reside in Bathurst.

Such is the case with with the Brunswick Mining & Smelting Corporation where, 25 years ago already, work was underway to open a smelter complex in Belledune. At the time the story appeared in The Northern Light, the acid plant was about 99 per cent complete , the furnace building was also well along towards completion, with the zinc and lead plants not far behind.

Once this work would be completed and the Smelter started operations on Sept. 1, construction of the No. 1 Fertilizer plant was scheduled to begin. All toll, the tab was in the vicinity of $62 million.

As important as big business was and is to our community, small business also plays a key role in our local economy and in the summer of 1966 yet another business opened its doors in the city, when Burns Equipment began operations on King Avenue. Though the business is no longer around, owner Toby Burns remains an active presence in the business community as the owner of Trebor Line Markers, responsible for the lines on most of our city streets and in many private parking lots.

In researching this column I'm always impressed with the number of heroic rescues I come across. It seems they were almost a monthly occurrence in the mid 1960's.

The latest rescue account I've come across was that of 10-year old Claude Hornibrook saved from drowning by Hughie Smith, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith of New Bandon.

Claude, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hornibrook of Bathurst, had gone fishing while visiting relatives Downshore, and slipped off the rocks into the deep waters below. Hearing cries for help, Hughie quickly grabbed a nearby rope, which he tossed to Claude as he went under for the second time. Grabbing the lifeline, he was then dragged upon the rocks, a little worst for wear but glad to be alive.

OVER HILL AND DALE

A Christmas Campout organized by the city Department of Parks, Recreation and Tourism was underway at the Sports Chalet July 25 to 26. The campout was part of the Parks and Rec summer program. About 60 children, ages 8 to 12 from the Bathurst area, took part in games, singing, skits, and a camp fire during the overnight outing. Shown here are Derick Devereau in a garbage-bag going through the obstacle-course game. With him is Terry Poirier, Parks and Rec summer staff. Derick, 11, is the son of Maurice and Susan Devereau of South Bathurst.

Special Notices, Cards of Thanks, In Memoriams, Engagements, Weddings, Births, Deaths $10.50 for 6 lines or less. Each additional line $1.75 per line. Box replies extra. Transient classified display ad rate 69¢ per agate line. Minimum size one column inch (GST extra)

How To Write A Good Ad

1. Start your ad with the merchandise you are selling. This makes it easier for the reader to locate your advertisement.

2. Always include the price of the item you are selling. Many readers in Classified will not respond to an ad which does not include a price.

3. Place yourself in the reader's position. Ask what you would like to know about the merchandise you are selling. Include information such as brand name, colors and other specific descriptions in your ad and you will receive a quicker response from the reader.

CARD OF THANKS

GALLAGHER- Sincere thanks to all our friends, relatives, neighbours, who helped celebrate our 50th. wedding anniversary. Many thanks for all the Best Wishes, flowers & gifts.
Muriel & Bill

KNOWLES - Douglas & Mary Knowles & family wish to thank the Fire Depts. that responded to the fire June 29 in Clifton. Also to their many friends & neighbours, the clergy, Rev. Westgate & wife & Rev. MacDonald & McKay. Your kindness was greatly appreciated.

DEMPSEY - John & Frances Dempsey wish to extend sincere thanks to friends & family who attended their 50th anniversary celebration. Your cards, gifts and well wishes were greatly appreciated. A special thank you to our kitchen workers who served a delicious supper.

IN MEMORIAM

CHAMBERLAIN - In loving memory of a dear daughter an sister, Irene, whom God called home 2 years ago on July 29, 1989.

Memories are like threads of gold,
They never grow old.
God knew you were tired,
So he called you home
To be with your loved ones.

Lonely nights and days go by, but my dear Irene, you are always missed by Mum, sisters, Veronica, Sister Theresa and brother Herman.

CHAMBERLAIN - In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Irene who passed away July 29, 1989.

There will always be a heartache
And always a silent tear
Of days when you were here.
Remembering you is easy,
We do it every day.
But missing you is a heartache,
That never goes away.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by husband Victor & family and granddaughter Chelsea who would have loved to meet you.

INSTRUCTEUR POUR BLOC D'APPRENTISSAGE EN CUISINE

Le Collège communautaire du NB - Bathurst est à la recherche d'une personne qui s'occupera de la formation pour le bloc 1 et bloc II d'apprentissage en cuisine. La personne serait en fonction du 11 septembre au 17 décembre 1991 à titre d'employé occasionnel.

Le poste

Ce poste posera un défi à une personne intéressée à la formation des adultes dans le secteur de la cuisine. La formation complémente l'expérience pratique et prépare les apprentis pour écrire leurs examens à la fin du bloc. L'enseignant suivra un programme pré-établi pour chaque bloc en cuisine. L'enseignant donnera une partie théorique et une partie pratique dans chaque bloc.

Le titulaire

Doit avoir complété son cours de cuisine de base et/ou cuisine avancée, détenir son certificat de compagnon en cuisine; avoir au moins 3 ans d'expérience comme cuisinier après avoir complété son compagnon. Avoir enseigné à des adultes serait un atout. La connaissance du français parlé et écrit est essentielle.

Le traitement

NOTE: Cette sollicitation demeure valide à condition qu'il y ait un nombre suffisant d'apprentis.

Faire parvenir sa demande au plus tard le 7 août 1991.

NEW BRUNSWICK HEART AND STROKE FOUNDATION

MEMORIAL CARDS

Heart Memorial Cards have two special meanings. They are both a thoughtful expression of sympathy and a gift of life to others through the research your donation makes possible.

The special representatives listed below will see that your card is placed at the funeral home the same day you call.

You can make your donation simply by quoting your Visa number or, alternatively, by forwarding your cheque afterwards. Receipts for income tax purposes are automatically mailed for donations of fifteen dollars or more, and can also be obtained for smaller donations simply by asking for one when you call.

Memorial cards can also be obtained at most funeral homes and from many bank branches.

Your donations finance vital research on heart disease and stroke.

NOTICE OF TEMPORARY BRIDGE CLOSURE

The Department of Transportation wishes to advise the population that effective Tuesday, August 6, 1991, the Bathurst Village Bridge will be closed to vehicle and pedestrian traffic for a period of approximately three (3) weeks. Depending on weather conditions, this closure could be extended further. This closure is required due to major repair work to be done to the structure.

Traffic will be detoured starting at Murray Avenue onto Main Street, Queen Street (Causeway), Riverside Drive, Evangeline Drive, Ste. Anne Street and St. Peter Avenue. Harbour View Boulevard will remain open for local traffic.

During the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 9:30 p.m., shuttle bus service will be provided for pedestrians from Monday to Friday.

The Department apologizes for any inconvenience this temporary closure may cause.

Department of Transportation
Bathurst, N. B.

AVIS DE FERMETURE TEMPORAIRE DE PONT

Le Ministère des Transports désire aviser la population qu'à partir du 6 août 1991, le pont du Village de Bathurst sera fermé à la circulation et aux piétons pour une période approximative de trois (3) semaines. Dépendant des conditions atmosphériques, cette période de fermeture pourrait être prolongée. Cette fermeture est requise afin d'effectuer des réparations majeures à la structure.

La circulation sera détournée à partir de la rue Murray sur les rues suivantes: Principale, Queen (Causeway), Riverside, Evangéline, Ste-Anne et l'avenue St. Pierre. Le Boulevard Harbour View sera utilisé pour la circulation locale seulement.

Un service d'autobus pour piétons sera disponible entre 7h30 a.m. et 9h30 p.m. du lundi au vendredi.

It's My Paper Too!

I am composing room foreman at The Northern Light and am responsible for production schedule from page make-up to the press.

I make every effort to get all the pages to the press on time for our deadlines because...It's My Paper Too!

It's My Paper Too!

I am the circulation manager at The Northern Light and my job is to see that each one of our *8403 readers get their paper on time each week. With 100 carriers and over 100 dealers I am kept very busy but enjoy every moment of it.

It makes me happy to know that each week more people want to read The Northern Light because...It's My Paper Too!

Shopping Tips
To help cut costs on grocery shopping, make a list and stick to it. Also, shop only once a week, the more often you go to the grocery, the more unnecessary items you buy.

Weight Loss
The only way to lose weight and keep it off is to eat less and exercise more. But try not to lose more than 1-2 pounds per week. Faster loss can mean you are losing muscle, not fat.
